NAVAL LEAGUE ROW BRINGS ON BIG FLEET PLEA

Britten and Reed Demand Parity With British Sea Armament.

PRESIDENT'S BOARD DELAYED IN INQUIRY

Adams Again Denies He Will Resign Cabinet and Makes It Joke.

(Associated Press.)

The brightly lighted stage of Naval controversy was seized by congressional advocates of a strong fleet yesterday to spring a demand that the Navy be built up to parity with the British at once.

This development came as the Hoover five-man board found itself stalled in its preparations for receiving evidence intended to disprove the charges of William Howard Gardiner that President Hoover was seeking to starve the Navy.

Hammond Is Missing.

John Hays Hammond, one of the members was missing. Efforts to locate him failed. Others of the committee were sure, however, he would be found by tomorrow, and set that day tentatively as the time of meeting.

On that date, the Navy League's executive committee also will meet, to determine what to do in the situation precipitated by Gardiner, the organization's president.

The naval demands in Congress were voiced by Representative Britten, chairman last session of the House naval committee, and by Senator Reed, chairman of the military committee.

Both Demand Ships.

Both demanded a program of immediate construction. Britten, announcing the full cooperation of Senator Hale, chairman of the Senate's naval committee, specified for the coming fiscal year a $122,500,000 program of destroyers, submarines, a flying-deck cruiser and an aircraft carrier, 22 ships in all. He asked a $750,000,000 authorization for the Navy to build up to the treaty limit.

Reed wanted all the appropriation to be had for immediate building.

"If we can afford it we ought to appropriate the full amount," he said. "We need a balanced Navy, and we have not a balanced Navy today."

Silent on Holiday.

Neither spokesman for construction had a word to say about the year's naval holiday just entered into by President Hoover, a holiday which Gardiner's statement said played into the hands of the British and Japanese.

The Britten suggestion was received with pleasure at the Navy Department. Secretary Adams said:

"We'll be glad to get it. That or $100,000,000, or $200,000,000, or any other figure they give us."

While the Hoover committee remained inactive, a probability developed that Admiral Hugh Rodman, retired, would be chosen chairman. Hammond is an alternative choice. The three others are connected with the administration. Undersecretary Castle and Assistant Secretary Jahncke in official capacities, and Eliot Wadsworth through a post with the Gifford unemployment organization.

A suggestion from quarters close to members of the group was that its

Mrs. Judd Will Face Arraignment Monday

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Preliminary hearing for Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, confessed slayer of Mrs. Agnes Anne Le Roi and Miss Hedvig Samuelson, was set for next Monday at a justice court session today.

Mrs. Judd's lips trembled and her hands shook as she sat through the brief proceedings. Justice Clarence E. Ice ordered her returned to the county jail without bond, pending the hearing date, which was agreed upon by Paul Schenck, of Los Angeles, associate defense counsel, and County Attorney Lloyd J. Andrews.

Navy Blimp, K-1, Wrecked in Hangar

Crew of Largest Nonrigid Dirigible Is Unhurt as Monster Collapses.

Cape May, N. J., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The Navy blimp K-1, largest nonrigid dirigible in the world, was wrecked here tonight as a ground crew maneuvered it into its hangar.

The 220-foot dirigible was just back from a cruise to Lakehurst and had been brought to the ground when the accident occurred. Darkness had fallen as the ground crew was working the blimp into its hangar when a gust of wind caught it and hurled it against the hangar door. The nose of the craft was torn and with a roar of escaping helium, the ship collapsed. Lurching in the wind, the gas bag was caught in a barbed wire inclosure and the fabric ripped to ribbons.

The ship's crew of five, commanded by Lieut. F. Bailey, had left the gondola before the berthing was started.

Lloyd George to Quit; Commons in Session

Liberal Leader Expected To Take Rest, Seeking to Regain Health.

London, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—David Lloyd George, war-time prime minister of Great Britain, is expected to withdraw tomorrow from leadership of the British Liberal party, which has passed from under his control.

It was accepted as a virtual certainty in political circles tonight that the famous Welshman, who saw his party swing off to other leaders in the recent election, would inform its parliamentary conference that he does not intend to seek reappointment as chairman, a post he has held since 1924.

Sir Herbert Samuel, one of those who broke away from the Lloyd George ranks in the election, is expected to be chosen in his place at the conference of the historic party tomorrow.

The new group of National Liberals, who discarded the Lloyd George free

Capt. Fitzroy Is Elected Speaker Third Time; Many New Faces.

London, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The strangest scene on which any speaker of the House of Commons ever has looked during the five and a half centuries of that office, today greeted Capt. Edward Algernon Fitzroy when, chosen for the third time, he took his seat as presiding officer.

After he had been conducted by force to his great canopied oaken chair, in accordance with the tradition which has come down from the colorful days of the Stuarts, when speakers hesitated to take office because of the dread of losing their heads, he paused to glance about him and take stock of the unique assembly.

He saw a record government representation of 554 out of the 615 members, with a tiny opposition of 61, composed mainly of labor members who were huddled like lost sheep in one corner. And he saw 473 Con-

CANADIAN CHARGES HIGH-SEAS SINKING

Skipper Says U. S. Cutter Purposely Rammed Craft; Crew Is Lauded.

Boston, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The crew of nine men from a Canadian power boat was landed in Boston by the Coast Guard today, after their craft, the 80-foot Sophie E. had sunk to the bottom of the Atlantic.

James A. Brannen, British vice consul in Boston, revealed that the master of the power boat had told him she was deliberately rammed and sunk last night by the American Coast Guard patrol boat, Harriet Lane. Boatswain Maurice D. Jester, commander of the Harriet Lane, reported, according to Coast Guard officials, that the Canadian vessel, running without lights, had been sunk in a collision 20 miles off Gloucester. The Harriet Lane brought the Sophie E's crew into port.

Brannen said Capt. James Bellman, of the Canadian boat, told him his vessel was lying 19 miles off the Massachusetts Coast with a cargo of liquor, and that its signals to contact craft on shore attracted the Coast Guard boat which bore down upon it and sank it. He pointed out, the vice consul said, that he felt within his rights, inasmuch as he was seven miles beyond the twelve-mile limit.

A Coast Guard board of inquiry was immediately appointed, but it adjourned until tomorrow morning at the request of Mathew F. McGrath, counsel for Bellman. Aside from a statement that the Sophie E. was lying to, with her engines disabled, and an assertion that the Coast Guard boat was running without lights, Capt. Bellman made no statement to newspapermen. His attorney counseled Bellman not to discuss the case until it came before the board of inquiry.

Bellman alleged, Brannen said, that he had been warned several weeks ago by the captain of the Canadian schooner Firelight to beware of the Harriet Lane, because the

Son, 26, of Wadsworth, Elected to Assembly

Geneseo, N. Y., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—James "Jerry" Wadsworth, 26-year-old son of former United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, was elected to the New York State Assembly today. Like his father, he is a Republican.

Wadsworth is the third member of as many generations of the house of Wadsworth to start their political careers with a seat in the Legislature. Young "Jerry" ran as a wet in a normally dry county against a dry candidate, James J. Griffin, Democrat.

RAIL LABOR WITNESS FAVORS TRADE GUIDE

Working Groups Report No Reply to Request for Wage Meeting.

(Associated Press.)

Creation of a national economic council to guide industry away from the byways of hard times was advocated yesterday by D. B. Robertson, spokesman for 1,125,000 railway employes.

Testifying before a Senate manufactures subcommittee, the chairman of the Railway Labor Executives Association also approved amendment of the Sherman antitrust act to curtail production if public interests were protected.

Expressing his views in response to questions by Chairman La Follette, of the committee, Robertson said he favored conferences between representatives of investors, operators, workers and the public to safeguard the interests of each class.

The witness, the first for labor to appear at the hearings on an economic council, said business troubles had removed 500,000 railway employes from the pay roll and that replacement of men by machinery had taken away another 250,000.

Meanwhile, the Railway Labor Executives Association, composed of 21 national organizations, spent another day in session a few blocks from the Capitol, discussing problems of the workmen preparatory to submitting a legislative program to Congress.

A pension system providing for joint contributions by employes and employers was under consideration. No agreement was reached and action was deferred. At the present time some railways have pension systems for their employes to which the workmen do not contribute. No details of the proposed plan were made public.

The conferences of the labor leaders began Monday and will continue through today. Twenty-eight topics

Detroit Again Elects Murphy by Huge Vote

Detroit, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Mayor Frank Murphy was reelected today by one of the greatest majorities ever given a mayoralty candidate in Detroit. With only 47 of the city's 895 precincts unreported, he had a majority of nearly 70,000 over Harold H. Emmons, former police commissioner. The vote was: Murphy, 155,098; Emmons, 85,593.

In the council race, it appeared certain that Frank Couzens, son of U. S. Senator James Couzens, and former Mayor John W. Smith and John C. Lodge would be elected and that the new council would include only three of the nine present members.

Apparent Defeat of Gloth Is Sole Upset in Arlington

Douglas Far Ahead of Incumbent, Ahalt, Hosmer and Crounse in Race for Post of Commonwealth's Attorney.

Apparent defeat of William C. Gloth, Commonwealth's attorney, featured returns early today from the strenuous political fight which has been waged in Arlington County.

Mr. Gloth's defeat was, seemingly, the only upset of preelection forecasts. Lawrence W. Douglas, law partner of Frank C. Ball, who formerly has been one of Mr. Gloth's strong supporters, polled such a large lead on the basis of returns that there seemed little likelihood that Mr. Gloth or anyone else could overhaul him.

On the basis of returns from seven of the eleven precincts, Mr. Douglas had 1,509 votes, as compared with 923 votes cast for Mr. Gloth. Clarence R. Ahalt, the Republican nominee, for whom a determined fight was made and whose overwhelming defeat was a blow to the county Republican organization, polled 825; Emery Hosher, an independent, trailed far behind, with 99, and Amos C. Crounse brought up the straggling rear with 61 votes.

John Warwick Rust, Democratic candidate for State senator, whose election as conceded because of the Democratic complexion of the other counties comprising the senatorial domain, exceeded expectations in Arlington County. On the basis of returns from eight of the eleven six to one against the nearest of his competitors. The vote was Rust, 3,514; Painter, 135; Jones, 71; Norford, Republican candidate, 630. The vote was a bitter blow to the Republican county organization, which had conducted an energetic campaign for all of its candidates.

on the basis of returns from eight of got 3,177 votes against 1,212 votes polled by J. Foster Hagan, Republican candidate.

The vote of eight precincts put D. M. Hedrick in the lead, with 1,348

DEARER WHEAT SEEN AS SOVIET THREAT WANES

Estimates Show Russian Crop Is Insufficient for Exporting.

DELIVERIES TO POOL ONLY HALF OF QUOTA

Previous Dumping Has Held American Price Down; U. S. Acreage Cut.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

A hasty check of the Russian wheat position by two departments of the Government has confirmed trade reports that the Soviet collectives will be unable to produce grain for export during the remainder of the 1931-32 crop year, officials of the Departments of Commerce and Agriculture revealed yesterday.

Cable advices to both departments disclosed that wheat deliveries to the Russian government pool during October aggregated only about 50 per cent of the predetermined quota, on which, until late last week, the world markets had based their price calculations.

Although Russian exports last year were only about 110,000,000 bushels, the threat of Soviet dumping has been a major factor in the depression of United States wheat values during the last six months. The removal of this factor from the world equation for the remainder of the current crop year is expected to carry domestic prices to still higher ground.

Have Influenced Prices.

The Russian exports always have been relatively small when measured against the combined international wheat movement, but they have exerted recently a controlling influence on world prices—chiefly because the Russian government reports earlier in the year indicate a planting of 93,000,000 acres, against 83,000,000 last year.

In the absence of reliable crop estimates from Russia, the world markets were compelled to assume that the prospective increased production would be available for dumping wherever Russian credits commanded.

Within the last week, however, a series of private reports have indicated a greatly reduced yield per acre on the rapidly expanded collectivist areas. Yesterday's official advices confirmed this trade opinion, and Liverpool cables to the Commerce Department reported a renewed interest in American wheat contracts.

Production to Be Lower.

Against the 93,000,000 acres of wheat officially reported by the Soviet government earlier in the season, the Agriculture Department's weekly report on foreign crops, dated November 2, places Russian fall seeding this year at 82,408,000 acres, which is 78 per cent of the Russian plan, and 82 per cent of last year's total winter acreage.

Commenting upon the October 15 Russian status, as reported by the Department's attache in Berlin, the weekly survey says:

"The progress of sowing was reported very unsatisfactory in the North Caucasus, Crimea, Middle Asia and Ukraine, and it was said to be doubtful if the large winter wheat plan would be carried out. Sowings in the North Caucasus and Crimea were below the same time last year.

Demanding Prompter Delivery.

"Procurements during the first ten days of October were reported at only 14 per cent of the monthly plan. The Government is now reported to be demanding prompter delivery of grain from collective farms."

Government wheat experts place little credence in recent reports from

$1,608,124 Estate Left to Hammond

All Property of Wife Bequeathed to Member of Hoover's Naval Board.

John Hays Hammond, internationally known mining engineer and a member of the board appointed by President Hoover to investigate his knowledge of naval affairs, was bequeathed the entire $1,609,124 estate of his wife in her will filed yesterday for probate in Salem, Mass., according to word received here last night.

Mrs. Hammond, who died more than four months ago, specified that her three children either had been, or will be, provided for by her husband, a son, Harris Hays Hammond, and the Riggs National Bank, executors of her estate.

The will, filed in Salem Probate Court by three appraisers, included personal realty, exclusive of valuable furs, jewelry and plate in deposit. She owned a home and land in Texas and Mexico. Furnishings in the Gloucester home were estimated at $43,000. The major part of her personal property included $1,416,124 in municipal bonds.

JERSEY SEES MOORE VICTORY BY 100,000

One-Fifth of Districts Give Democrat 3-to-2 Lead for Governor.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—In an election premarked as indicative of political trends in the East, New Jersey today swept A. Harry Moore (Democrat) into the governorship.

Moore's term will be his second. He asked the voters to rebuke the Republican national administration.

The Republican candidate, former United States Senator David Baird, jr., campaigned along similar lines and asked indorsement of the national administration.

The Democratic candidate's indicated plurality, on the basis of returns from 780 of 3,349 districts, was more than 100,000.

"I view it as a complete repudiation of the State and national administrations," Moore said. The present governor, Morgan F. Larson, is a Republican. New Jersey law forbids a governor to succeed himself.

Baird had not commented at midnight.

The vote in the 780 districts stood: Moore, 146,264; Baird, 96,318.

The Democratic victory began to assume landslide proportions when the returns indicated surprising strength in several traditionally Republican counties.

Essex, the most populous county in the State and fiercest battleground of the campaign, was giving Moore an unexpectedly large lead. Indications were he would carry the county, normally Republican, by more than 20,000 votes.

This was more than Democratic expectations. Last year Essex gave the late Dwight W. Morrow a plurality of more than 40,000 votes for senator.

Connecticut Cities Elect Democrats

New Haven, Bridgeport and Hartford Choose Their New Mayors.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 3 (A.P.)—The three largest cities in Connecticut—New Haven, Hartford and Bridgeport—today elected Democratic mayors. In the former two the Democrats succeeded Republican administrations.

John W. Murphy, Democrat, won over Lawson W. Hall, Republican incumbent in New Haven.

William J. Rankin was elected Mayor of Hartford over William J. Mulligan, Republican. He will succeed William E. Batterson, Republican.

Mayor Edward T. Buckingham, Democrat, was reelected in Bridgeport over the opposition of William S. Mason, Republican and Jasper McLevy, Socialist. The Socialist ran second.

Last year Connecticut elected a Democratic governor—Wilbur Cross—for one of the few times in its history.

TAMMANY'S POWER SWEEPS NEW YORK

Norman Thomas Among Victims of Machine, Which Stands With Roosevelt.

New York, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—Tammany, Manhattan's Democratic machine, perfectly oiled and unperturbed under fire, demonstrated anew today its political power in New York City proper.

It swept into office again its borough president, Samuel Levy, crushing the opposition of Edward C. Carrington (Republican), and the perennial fighting Socialist, Norman Thomas. The latter, a one-time Presbyterian minister, rolled up more than 48,000 votes for the post, and exceeded his 1929 count in Manhattan when he ran for mayor. But any advance thought that the Hofstadter investigation of alleged municipal graft would swing an avalanche over the seemingly impregnable Tammany Hall turned out to be erroneous.

Tammany's close ally, the McCooey machine in Brooklyn, put on the political spot Robert K. Story, jr., Republican who fathered the bill that brought into being the city investigation with its numerous startling revelations of Tammany political methods. Story, running again for the Assembly was beaten by George Stewart (Democrat). The allied Democrats had hoped to swing the Assembly to their side, thus opening the way for killing the Hofstadter investigation and its (to Tammany) embarrassing disclosures. The down-State victory in Kings County, however, appeared on the basis of incomplete returns doomed to failure.

Tammany's cohorts likewise scored another victory when Supreme Court justices, named by a Democratic-Republican agreement on a basis of seven Democrats to five Republicans, were elected in the Second Judicial District, comprising Brooklyn and Queens. The four candidates of the newly formed No-Deal party—opposed to such parceling of judicial posts—were snowed under.

Democratic assemblymen in the greater city were elected en bloc, though Abbott Low Moffatt, Republican member of the Hofstadter com-

Roosevelt Scores New York Victory

Reforestation Amendment Adopted by Huge Vote; Is Held Harbinger.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 3 (U.P.).—New York State, with a record registration giving strength to its arm, cast an overwhelming vote in support of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight.

On the face of incomplete returns, which, nevertheless pointed to the almost certain final result, the State voted 2 to 1 for the reforestation amendment to the constitution which was opposed by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

The result of the vote was regarded as a favorable harbinger for Roosevelt's presidential nomination chances.

Longworth District Stays Republican by Big Margin

Hollister Quintuples Majority Given Late Speaker Last November; Campaign Pitched on Support of Hoover; Both Candidates Ardent Wets.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 3.—John B. Hollister (Republican), was elected to serve the unexpired term of the late Nicholas Longworth in the House of Representatives by the voters of the First Ohio Congressional District today.

With more than two-thirds of the district reporting, Hollister had a majority of more than 12,000 and conservative observers estimated his total majority at least 18,000 with probability that it would exceed 20,000. Precincts still to report have always returned a Republican majority in past elections.

Because of the close margin between the parties in the next Congress the race attracted Nation-wide interest. However, voters in the First District were not so enthusiastic and the total vote cast will be one of the smallest in recent years.

Hollister jumped into the lead from the start. Districts normally Democratic failed to return their usual majorities for State Senator David Lorbach, Democratic candidate. It was evident that the wet and dry issue, which cut Mr. Longworth's majority to less than 4,000 last November, did not figure in the result this year. Both Hollister and Lorbach are ardent wets.

Hollister made his campaign solely on the argument that a Republican district should send a Republican to support President Herbert Hoover.

Precincts in the neighborhood of Rockwood, the Longworth home, gave Hollister tremendous majorities. He lives not more than a mile from the home of the late Speaker of the House of Representatives.

At 10:45 o'clock tonight leading Democrats conceded Lorbach's defeat and Hollister was receiving congratulations from Republican leaders in Ohio.

DEMOCRATS TAKE 3 SEATS IN HOUSE TO GAIN CONTROL BY 2 PLURALITY

HOLLISTER DEFEATS LORBACH IN LONGWORTH STRONGHOLD

Democrats Hail Triumph in Michigan as Sure Indication They Will Elect Next Speaker; New Jersey Vote December 1 Will Decide If Tie Is Possible.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

A spectacular political upset—a wet Democrat victory in the Eighth Congressional District of Michigan—has given the Democrats, for the time being at least, a plurality of two in the line-up in the House of Representatives.

Democrats last night hailed the Michigan result as a sure indication that they will elect a Speaker in the next House.

The Democrats won three of yesterday's congressional elections, and the Republicans two.

The standing in the House now is Democrats, 217; Republicans, 215, and Farmer-Labor, 1. Two vacancies remain to be filled, but only one of them—that in New Jersey—will be filled before Congress convenes. Even if a Republican should win in New Jersey, the House Republicans still would be one behind the Democrats.

If Representative Paul Kvale (Farmer-Laborite), of Minnesota, should vote with the Republicans, he would create a tie.

The actual vote for Speaker, however, may be complicated by further deaths or absentees on December 7, the day Congress convenes.

In a beet sugar and potato region in Michigan that for 33 years had been sending a dry Republican to the House, Michael J. Hart, a wet Democrat, won out over his dry Republican opponent, Foss O. Eldred.

State Election Victories.

The vacancy in the Eighth Michigan District was caused by the death of Bird J. Vincent, who had succeeded the late Joseph W. Fordney, who had represented the Saginaw area for 24 years.

Taken as a whole, yesterday's elections represented a Democratic triumph, for, in addition to the victory in Michigan, there were Democratic victories in State elections in New Jersey and Connecticut.

In New Jersey, A. Harry Moore (Democrat) won over David Baird, jr., (Republican), in the race for governor. If Moore's majority is sizable, the Democrats are certain to claim that his victory is a blow to President Hoover.

Late reports said Moore had won by "landslide proportions." Considerable interest also is attached to the gubernatorial fight in Kentucky. The results of this, however, will not be known until the votes are counted today.

In Connecticut, three cities elected Democratic mayors, whereas previously two of them had Republican mayors.

Roosevelt Plan Wins.

In New York Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt won what will be regarded as a victory over former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, when the voters overwhelmingly approved his reforestation program.

Former Gov. Smith had opposed Roosevelt's reforestation amendment.

MICHIGAN DISTRICT ELECTS DEMOCRAT

M. J. Hart Wins Succession to Late Bird J. Vincent as Representative.

Saginaw, Mich., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Michael J. Hart, Democrat and advocate of prohibition modification, was elected to Congress in a special election today in the traditionally Republican Eighth Michigan District which for years sent Joseph W. Fordney to the House of Representatives.

With all precincts in the district reported, Hart had 25,843 votes to 20,792 for Foss O. Eldred, Ionia lawyer, his Republican opponent, who had the support of the dry organizations.

Eldred, in conceding his defeat and congratulating his opponent, attributed the Democratic victory to "dissatisfaction with economic conditions," although he also stated that "the prohibition issue had considerable to do" with the result. Gov. Wilber M. Brucker and former Gov. Fred W. Green, leaders among the Eldred supporters, attributed the result to economic conditions and unemployment.

In a statement tonight from his home here, Hart attributed the Democratic victory to "a protest against the false leadership of a majority party which, securely entrenched with overwhelming majorities, believed itself secure in riding roughshod over the rights of the people."

Hart carried Saginaw County, an industrial center and Montcalm, an entirely rural county. He also was victorious in Ionia County, the home of his opponent, which is mostly rural. Eldred had small leads in the three other counties of the district, rural Clinton and Gratiot and semi-rural Shiwassee.

Hart was the first Democrat to carry the district since 1896 when the late Ferdinand Brucker, father of the present Republican governor, was elected. Brucker was beaten by Fordney in 1898, and Fordney served until 1923, when he was succeeded by Bird J. Vincent, whose death made necessary the special election.

In 1930, Vincent defeated Hart by a vote of 38,891 to 18,838.

Huge Road Bond Issue Defeated in Alabama

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 3 (U.P.).—Unofficial tabulations of the Alabama vote today on the $25,000,000 road bond issue indicated the people of the State rejected the proposal by a 4-to-1 margin.

Cleveland's Manager Government Is Doomed

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The city manager form of government appeared doomed tonight in Cleveland, the largest city in the United States to adopt it. Returns from about a third of the city's precincts showed the amendment to the city charter running ahead comfortably with about a 2,000 majority, the ratio that has been maintained since the beginning of tabulation.

On this basis, the amendment, which provides for the mayor-council form of government, would carry by 10,000 votes.

NOMINEE INDORSED BY SMITH FORESEEN

Cermak Confident New York Leaders Will Support His Bid for Convention.

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Optimistic that the Democrats will nominate a presidential candidate next year who has the indorsement of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Mayor Anton J. Cermak tonight was on his way home to Chicago, where he hopes the party's national convention will be held.

He and the dozen fellow Democrats who accompanied him on his rapid swing through the East boarded a private car attached to the Broadway Limited at 3 p. m. They will arrive in Chicago at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

While the mayor came to New York to organize support for Chicago's convention bid and to determine what basis there was for reports of a breach between Smith and Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, it was the former object he emphasized during his visit and on his departure.

"We have talked with a group of New York leaders and feel confident they will back our bid to have the convention held in Chicago," he said.

But he took with him a feeling there was no seriousness in any disagreement between New York governor and former governor. He called it a minor matter after he had conferred with John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall; Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, and Mayor James J. Walker, of New York.

It was indicated by members of his party that he and other Illinois Democrats were anxious that the 1932 Democratic nominee have Smith's support. The mayor himself reiterated several times during his visit the candidate must be an out-and-out wet in order to suit the Illinois delegation.

Throughout his visit and after each conference with the kingpins of Democracy in this section, the Chicago mayor sought to evade questions about politics. He insisted all the meetings behind closed doors had been "purely personal" calls.

The only definite statement he made about what the Illinois delegation will do in the convention was that it would seek to nominate Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, and failing that would support Gov. Roosevelt, "if his wet stand at that time suits us."

Independents Note Pennsylvania Gain

Pinchot Aid Jumps Into Second Place Behind Republican.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The independent candidates were showing decided gains in Alleghany County's keen fight for commissioner as returns were received tonight from today's general election.

First tabulations revealed Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, Pinchot aid in western Pennsylvania and independent leader, running in third place behind State Senator W. D. Mansfield, Republican, and David L. Lawrence, Democratic nominee, who received regular Republican support.

With returns counted from 218 of the 932 districts in the county, however, McGovern jumped into second place ahead of Lawrence. C. M. Barr, former State senator, running with McGovern, also enhanced his advantage as additional votes were tabulated. The vote in 218 districts: Mansfield, 46,392; McGovern, 39,244; Lawrence, 36,871; Barr, 31,764.

Rust Is Leading More Than 5 to 1

Certain Victory Indicated, State Senate Candidate Issues Statement.

John Warwick Rust, of Fairfax, Va., Democratic candidate for State senator from the Thirtieth Virginia District, last night appeared to have won over his three competitors by a majority of more than five to one.

After returns from Arlington, Fairfax and Prince William Coun[illegible] and Alexandria City indicated his certain victory, Mr. Rust issued the following statement:

"The overwhelming vote cast for me by the people of the entire district is indeed gratifying, and has touched me deeply. I shall endeavor to justify the confidence placed in me by the splendid people of this section. They can rest assured that I will give to the office my best efforts. I wish I could thank each one of them personally, and my only desire is to serve the State."

DEMOCRATS GET HOUSE LEAD BY UPSET IN MICHIGAN VOTE

and yesterday's vote on the question was regarded as a test of strength between the two men.

The final vote was interpreted as strengthening Gov. Roosevelt's prospects of winning the Democratic presidential nomination in 1932 and as lessening Al Smith's chances to dictate the nomination.

Other Four Elections.

In the other four elections, held to fill vacancies in the House, Republicans won in normal Republican districts and Democrats were successful in normal Democratic strongholds.

John B. Hollister, the Republican candidate, was victor over David Lorbach, the Democrat, in the First Ohio, or so-called Longworth District. This was one of the "barometer" districts, and the Democrats were hopeful of carrying it.

If the election in Michigan heartened the Democrats, the outcome in Cincinnati gave some comfort to the Republicans.

Eldred, the defeated candidate in Michigan, attributed his failure to "dissatisfaction with economic conditions and unemployment." Prohibition, he said, also had a lot to do with it.

Minimize Dry Fight.

Gov. W. M. Brucker of Michigan and former Gov. Fred W. Green, who had campaigned for Eldred, claimed that the economic situation was responsible for the Democratic victory. They minimized the importance of prohibition in the fight, although the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment already is claiming that the election is another evidence of growing dissatisfaction with the dry law.

Gov. Green also blamed the Republican national committee. He said the committee had failed to give Eldred any support.

The outcome in Cincinnati was encouraging to Republican leaders here for this reason. The Democrats had been counting on winning this seat even more than they had been counting on winning the Michigan seat.

President Hoover Issue

Also President Hoover was more of an issue in Cincinnati than he was in Michigan.

Hollister, the Republican candidate, campaigned solely on the argument that a Republican should be elected to succeed the late Speaker Nicholas Longworth so that he might support President Hoover.

Lorbach, the Democratic candidate, consistently assailed President Hoover and the Republican tariff.

In the 1930 election, the late Speaker Longworth won by only slightly over 3,000 votes, although normally he used to win by 30,000 or so. The prospect was that Hollister would come through with a majority of about 18,000 votes.

The prospect was that when all returns were in, the line-up in the House would be as follows:

Democrats, 217.
Republicans, 215.
Farmer-Labor, 1.

New Jersey Votes December 1.

An election is to be held in New Jersey on December 1 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Representative Ackerman, a Republican. If the Republicans should win this the standing in the House would then be as follows:

Democrats, 217.
Republicans, 216.
Farmer-Labor, 1.

Thus the Democrats would still have a plurality of 1 over the Republicans. However, if the lone Farmer-Laborite, Paul Kvale, should vote with the Republicans, he would cause a dramatic tie. Kvale has never indicated how he will vote.

The vacancy caused by the death of Representative Fletcher Hale (Republican), New Hampshire, will not be filled until January 5.

Democrats Optimistic.

In any event Democratic leaders in Washington were convinced last night that their party would take over control of the House for the first time in thirteen years.

If the Democrats do gain control, it is a virtual certainty that Representative John N. Garner, long the Democratic leader in the House, will be elected Speaker.

Only Two In Doubt.

To practical politicians, only two congressional elections were in doubt yesterday—the one in Michigan and the one in the old Longworth district in Cincinnati, Ohio.

In the other three, the preelection forecasts were borne out.

Judge Martin L. Sweeney, Democrat, was elected in the Twentieth (Cleveland) district of Ohio, defeating William L. Padgett, the Republican candidate. The district is normally Democratic. The vacancy was caused by the death of Charles A. Mooney.

In the Second Pennsylvania District, which for 20 years or more was represented by the late Representative George S. Graham (Republican), the Republican candidate, Edward L. Stokes, was an easy winner over Charles S. Hill, the Democratic candidate, and John W. Edelman, Socialist.

In the Seventh New York District, which is located in Brooklyn, Joseph Delaney, the Democrat, was far and away the winner over his Republican opponent, William L. Padgett. This district was represented in the House for eight years by the late John F. Quayle. He died and Matthew V. O'Malley was elected to succeed him. Then O'Malley died before even taking his seat, and it was necessary to hold another election yesterday.

From the standpoint of the Presidential race in 1932, observers were keenly interested in the vote on the reforestation amendment sponsored in New York by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt. The amendment was vigorously opposed by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, who is known to be cool toward Roosevelt's Presidential aspirations.

The reforestation amendment was carried and Roosevelt's friends were hailing the vote as a victory which gives Roosevelt complete domination over New York and insures his nomination in the next Democratic national convention.

Had Majority of 100.

After the Hoover landslide of 1928, the Republicans had a majority of 100 in the House. It was so powerful as to make the Democratic minority helpless. In the Senate, the Democrats, through a coalition with the Progressives, were able to dominate, but in the House the Republicans were supreme.

In the election last November, the Democrats virtually wiped out the Republican majority. When the ballots had been counted, the standing was as follows:

Republicans, 218.
Democrats, 216.
Farmer-Labor, 1.

13 Deaths Since Last November.

Since then there have been thirteen deaths, seven in Democratic districts and six in Republican districts. The upset in Michigan yesterday, however, marked the first change in the line-up. In previous special elections to fill vacancies, Republicans had been elected to succeed deceased Republicans and Democrats to succeed deceased Democrats.

Michigan has been a hide-bound Republican State for many years. It has not had a Democratic member of Congress since 1923, and the Democratic membership of the Legislature for years has been limited to five members or less.

In addition to electing a Democrat to the House, the returns showed that Detroit is showing a growing interest in that party. Although the Detroit mayoralty is strictly a nonpartisan affair, the winner yesterday by an unprecedented majority was Frank Murphy, a young Progressive Democrat. His opponent was Harold H. Emmons, a Republican of many years standing.

Tremendous Interest.

Washington took a tremendous interest in the election last night. Newspapers were bombarded with inquiries about the results.

If the Democrats should gain control, Republicans who have long been chairmen of committees would be ousted to make way for Democrats, most of them Southerners; clerks and stenographers would face loss of jobs, and William Tyler Page, the veteran clerk of the House, might have to give way to a Democrat.

Gen. Coxey Is Far Ahead For Mayor of Ohio Town

Massillon, Ohio, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Gen. Jacob S. Coxey, who led his famous army to Washington to get help for the unemployed years ago, was running far ahead of his opponent in the race for mayor of Massillon tonight.

In 12 out of 36 precincts Coxey received 1,438 votes and Fred W. Justis, 873. Coxey is a Republican and Justis a Democrat. In his platform Coxey advocated municipal ownership of the city's public utilities and the flotation of a $200,000 issue of noninterest bearing bonds to aid the unemployed.

Mississippi Vote Replaces Bilbo

M. S. Conner, Businessman of Seminary, Defeats Incumbent.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Mississippi voters today ratified a ticket of unopposed Democrats to replace the administration of Gov. Theodore G. Bilbo.

Martin Sennett Conner, business man of Seminary, and a former speaker of the House of Representatives, was elected governor, and will take office on January 19.

Conner, with other candidates, was nominated in a heated Democratic primary three months ago, and today's general election was only a matter of form, since the Republican party did not have candidates in the field.

Others elected with Conner included Dennis Murphree, lieutenant governor; Greek L. Rice, attorney general; James B. Gully, State tax collector; Tom C. Ellis, clerk of Supreme W. F. Bond, incumbent superintendent of education; J. C. Nolton, incumbent commissioner of agriculture; Court; Louis S. May, State treasurer; ture, and Walker Wood, incumbent Secretary of State.

The nominations of a new legislature and various county officials all Democrats and all unopposed, were also ratified.

Alexandria Votes For John W. Rust

Fairfax Democrat Leads All Candidates for State Senate.

Polling the lightest vote in years, Alexandria, Va., where there were no local offices at stake, cast its ballot overwhelmingly for John Warwick Rust (Democrat), Fairfax, Va., for the State Senate.

Rust polled a total of 611 votes, more than five times the combined ballot for his three competitors, Mrs. Julia Morgan Jones, Landon Cabell Painter and William L. Norford.

J. Fred Birrell (Democrat), unopposed for the House of Delegates, received 672 votes in the six Alexandria wards. The vote compared with 1,746 he received in 1929, when 1,545 were cast for his opponent, Tyson Janney. Little interest was shown in the election. The polls closed at 5 o'clock.

Dorothy Mackaill Wed To N. A. Miller, Singer

Yuma, Ariz., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Dorothy Mackaill, screen star, and Neil Albert Miller, Los Angeles radio singer, were married here this afternoon by a justice of the peace. The bride wore a sport suit of blue and tan. Mr. Miller was dressed in a gray suit, blue shirt and checkered tie. Both gave their age as 26.

They arrived here by airplane and planned to return to the coast the same way. Rex Cole accompanied them to Yuma. The actress was divorced from Lothar Mendez, film director, in 1928.

FAIRFAX DEMOCRATS CARRY EVERY OFFICE

Huddleson Defeats Freeman for County Treasurer; Allen Is Victor.

Democrats were swept into every county office in Fairfax County yesterday, the county going overwhelmingly Democratic as well in its vote for State Senate and House of Delegates.

An average vote of about 3,500 was polled in the balloting, which developed only one real contest, that for county treasurer. F. W. Huddleson, of Fairfax, Democratic candidate, won over his Republican rival for that office, L. L. Freeman, of Vienna, by a vote of 2,090 to 1,543, according to unofficial estimates.

Freeman, incumbent member of the House of Delegates, was replaced as delegate by E. H. Allen (Democrat) Newington, who defeated W. R. Gray (Republican), Oakton, by a vote of 2,764 to 892.

Wilson M. Farr (Democrat), Fairfax, was returned as Commonwealth's attorney. Although he was unopposed on the ballot, 798 persons wrote in the name of Robert W. Stump, of Fairfax, for the office. Farr polled 2,672 votes.

Rust Wins Senate Seat.

John Warick Rust (Democrat), of Fairfax, received strong support from his home districts, Fairfax County presenting him with 2,950 votes in his successful bid for the State Senate.

William L. Norford, Republican candidate for the Senate, trailed with a 341 vote in Fairfax, while Mrs. Julia M. Jones, Socialist, polled 128, and Landon Cabell Painter, single-tax Democrat, 228.

James U. Kincheloe (Democrat), of Fairfax, received 2,788 votes for commissioner of revenue, compared with 790 votes for B. W. Middleton (Republican), of Floris.

Kirby Sweeps Sheriff Race.

E. P. Kirby (Democrat), of Fairfax, was easy victor in the contest for sheriff, his 2,839 votes contrasting with 723 votes cast for L. B. Morris, of Forestville, his Republican competitor.

Preliminary returns indicated the following had been elected to the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors: C. H. Powell (Democrat), Falls Church District; K. A. Davis (Democrat), Lee District; W. F. P. Reid (Democrat), Mount Vernon District; G. W. Carper (Democrat, unopposed), Providence District; W. H. Elmore (Democrat), Dranesville District; D. W. Buckley (Democrat), Centerville District.

In only two districts, Mount Vernon and Providence, was there a contest for justice of the peace, candidates being unopposed in each of the other four. It was impossible to determine from last night's incomplete returns which were successful.

Herbert Brownell Loses in New York

Lawyer Who Used Records With His Speeches Runs Close Race.

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Herbert Brownell, jr., 28, lawyer who campaigned for the State Assembly by sending phonograph records with band music and a 10-second speech by himself to 18,000 voters in the Tenth New York County Assembly District, was defeated by the Democratic incumbent, Landon W. Post.

He ran a comparatively close race, however, polling 5,254 votes to 6,942 with only two election districts missing.

Bullets and Apathy Mark Two Balloting Extremes

Bowling Green, Ky., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—A package of election cards in his coat pocket probably saved W. K. Dent, election worker, from being wounded in an election fight here today.

Officials said H. B. "Hank" Hines, prominent Warren County Democrat, fired a pistol at Dent in an argument and the bullet passed through the election cards and two coats and lodged in Dent's clothing.

Boston, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Several arrests were made in Boston and State police augmented the city police of Everett and Medford today as twelve Massachusetts cities elected mayors or other city officials. Mayors were selected in all cities except Boston, where the contests were limited to places in the city council and school committee.

In this city two arrests were made for illegal voting and others grew out of fights in front of polling places.

Bronxville, N. Y., Nov. 3 (U.P.).—Alfred E. Smith voted the straight Republican ticket here today. He is a Bronxville builder, and he said that he disagreed with former Gov. Alfred E. Smith on each of the six amendments up for referendum.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Democrats made a clean sweep of legislative offices in Richmond today, Socialists polling their usual scattering of votes in a Democratic landslide. The vote was very light, reflecting an apathetic campaign.

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The election district in Manhattan in which John R. Voorhis, noted Tammany sachem, now in his 103d year and former president of the board of elections, cast his eighty-first vote today, went strongly Democratic as usual.

Glen Cove, Long Island, Nov. 3 (U. P.).—James E. Burns, Democrat, first mayor of this city, was reelected today for the sixth time.

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith's election district today gave Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for president of Manhattan Borough, only nine votes less than the successful Democratic candidate, Samuel Levy.

Levy received 140 votes to 131 for Thomas and 116 for Col. Edward C. Carrington, Republican.

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Robert K. Story, jr., the Republican assemblyman who introduced the resolution creating the Hofstadter legislative committee to investigate New York City affairs, was defeated for reelection today. George W. Stewart, Democrat, led him by more than 1,100 votes with only four districts unreported. Story had 6,926, and Stewart 8,051.

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Al Smith came into Tammany Hall tonight, congratulated Samuel Levy for being reelected Manhattan borough president; kissed Martha Byrne for winning the post of register of New York, and refused to comment on the apparent victory of the reforestation amendment.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Mississippi's next governor, Martin Sennett (Mike) Conner, 40, won the governorship after three trials through homely speech to the farmers.

He was plain Mike Conner to the countryfolk, who for the moment forgot his education at the University of Mississippi and Yale, and accepted him as a son of the soil. In the campaign it was Mike Conner, farmer and practical politician, against Hugh White, millionaire. In droll speech, aided by a performer who mimicked the bay of a fox hound named "Mike," he swept in votes from the hustings.

Childersburg, Ala., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Women had complete charge of the polls here today for the first time.

Leaving household cares to masculine hands, women managers and clerks took their places at the polls early as the populace, inspired by the novelty, turned out to ballot on a proposed $25,000,000 State highway bond issue. Voting, reported lagging in other sections of the State, was brisk throughout the day.

Schenectady, N. Y., Nov. 3 (U.P.).—With returns from only three of 77 districts unreported, J. Ward White, (Dem.), was conceded victory over Henry C. Fagal, incumbent, for mayor. The vote stood 13,693 for White and 11,267 for Fagal.

Hamilton, Ohio, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Aaron Harden, 25, Negro, New Miami, was shot to death today by Constable Worley Minor, during a disturbance at a rural voting booth. Minor said Harden was drunk and acted in a disorderly manner whereupon the officer ordered the Negro from the booth.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Voters of Pinellas County legalized pari-mutuel betting at dog races today by a vote of 3 to 1. The St. Petersburg Kennel Club will open a 90-day racing season at its track near here late this year.

Schenectady, N. Y., Nov. 3 (U.P.).—Republicans retained assembly control of Schenectady County, electing Oswald D. Heck and John H. Burhmaster. Mrs. Izetta Jewel Miller, Democratic candidate in the Second District, was defeated by 600 votes.

Boston, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—Democratic mayors were elected tonight in Springfield and Worcester, the two largest Massachusetts cities holding mayoralty elections.

LONG ARGUES CLAIM TO OFFICE IN COURT

Louisiana Governor Brushes Aside Legal Array to Fight Cyr Suit.

Shreveport, La., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Brushing aside his array of legal talent, Huey P. Long today argued his own claim to the governorship of Louisiana against the ouster suit of Dr. Paul N. Cyr, who, as lieutenant governor, set up the contention Long is a United States senator and is no longer governor.

Before a crowded courtroom, the governor argued for an hour and a half to nullify the suit. Frank J. Looney, chief counsel of Cyr, spoke next.

Oral arguments were concluded with summation of points by both sides. Judge T. F. Bell received the written briefs of Gov. Long and instructed attorneys for Mr. Cyr to file their briefs within five days, after which he said he would take the case under advisement.

Gov. Long argued he will not be a member of the Senate until he has taken the oath of office and therefore has a constitutional right to finish his governor's term, ending next May.

Looney contended that Long became a senator last March 4 despite the fact he had not taken the oath and that he ceased being governor when Cyr took the governor's oath October 13.

Long contended that only the United States Senate had authority to pass upon the qualifications of a senator and that the district court hearing the suit was without jurisdiction. He further claimed the State Legislature also had the right to remove a governor from office and that the courts had no such authority.

Ohio Welfare Program Trails in Early Returns

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The proposal of Gov. George White and the State Legislature to issue $7,500,000 in bonds to finance a State welfare improvement program apparently had been defeated on the face of returns from a fifth of the State tonight, 1,680 precincts out of a total of 8,911 in the State gave: Yes, 73,160; no, 148,654.

This vote was represented by 64 of the 88 counties.

CLOSE RACES MARK VIRGINIA ELECTIONS

Democrats Win Easily From Socialists and Run Ahead of Republicans.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Few upsets marked the Virginia elections today.

Democrats, who were unopposed in the majority of the State legislative districts, piled up the usual landslides in the districts where they were opposed by Socialists and were running nip-and-tuck races with the Republicans in the southwest and middle Shenandoah Valley sections.

A high spot was the election of Daniel L. Porter, of Orange, Democratic delegate from the Orange-Madison District, by a majority of only 15 votes over E. A. Carpenter, of Madison, on complete unofficial returns. In Nelson County, John Ryland Coleman, independent, unseated Delegate F. K. Whitehead, Democrat.

In Norfolk County, where one of the most spirited primaries in the county's history brought out 90 per cent of the vote, Democrats were swept into office all along the line. Democratic County officers likewise won over their Republican opponents.

In the Twenty-first Senatorial District, composed of Roanoke City and Roanoke County, Senator A. P. Staple (Democrat), piled up a huge lead in Roanoke City which was believed to assure his election.

Roanoke City also gave a big lead to Senator Robert J. Noell (Democrat) from the floater district of Roanoke County and City, Franklin, Floyd, and Montgomery Counties and the City of Radford.

In the Harrisonburg-Rockingham-Page-Warren District, Aubrey Weaver (Democrat) was leading John Morrison (Republican) for the Senate, with most of the urban votes still to be counted.

Owen Bard and Sam C. Salzel (Democrats) were leading John D. Miller and Howard Zigler (Republicans) for the House of Delegates in Rockingham and Harrisonburg.

Democrats Carry White Plains Area

Westchester County Picks County Judge and Trio of Mayors.

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 3 (U.P.).—A general Democratic trend in Westchester County, attributed to Republican opposition to county financial aid in the fight of commuters against railroad rate increases, enabled Democrats to elect a county judge for the first time in more than a decade, gain ten places in the board of supervisors and elect mayors in three of the four Westchester cities.

The Democratic surge, however, failed to invade the Westchester Assembly delegation, to which five Republicans were elected. This contest was watched with interest because it might have affected the Hofstadter legislative committee investigating New York City.

Three hours after the polls closed Henry R. Barrett, secretary of the Westchester County Republican committee, conceded that County Judge John B. Coyle, a Democrat, appointed by Gov. Roosevelt, had been elected by a plurality of more than 7,000 over his Republican opponent, Frederick C. McLaughlin, of White Plains.

votes against 1,070 for Walter U. Varney, 743 for J. Hammond Brewer, jr., and 674 for Bryan Gordon. Lawrence Dudley followed with 189 votes; Melvin G. Ely had 122; William Thomas French, 82, and Hugh M. McCaffrey, 79, and 103 for William Thomas French.

On the basis of the returns from eight precints reporting, Sheriff Howard B. Fields was coasting to his expected victory. The vote was: Fields, 2,287; Andrew Cornelius Clements, 1,250; Edward Duncan, 351; Carl Arthur Schulze, 58, and Z. O. Kines, 68.

The ballots cast for members of the county board were the last to be counted and at an early hour this morning only two precincts had reported. They were the East Falls Church and the Glen Carlyn Precincts.

TAMMANY'S POWER WINS IN NEW YORK

mittee, retained his Assembly post from a "silk stocking" district.

Outside the city, Democratic forces in Westchester County, wealthy suburban territory, marched to victory. A slogan in some of the Westchester County contests was that Tammany was seeking to get a hold upon this community, with a view to annexing to New York some of the adjacent suburbs.

Democrats made surprising victories in the county judgeship contests and in supervisor posts in Westchester, though the Republican Assembly phalanx was unbroken.

Meantime, in Suffolk County, the home county of Kingsland W. Macy, Republican State chairman, Democrats battered Macy's machine and won some supervisor posts.

The Tammany machine stood with Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt on the so-called reforestation amendment—a measure designed to increase forests up-State, but attacked by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith as a special privilege measure beneficial to paper pulp men. In Manhattan and the Greater City the vote was about 2 to 1 in favor of the amendment. Many had viewed this amendment as a test of strength between Roosevelt, and Smith, since the latter suddenly attacked the measure only a few days ago.

Some said this meant he was seeking with John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, to curb Roosevelt's boom for the Democratic presidential nomination. Whether Tammany shared this interpretation is not certain, but in any event, the braves of the wigwam went down the line for Roosevelt's measure.

In Brooklyn, John J. Delaney, Democrat, as anticipated, won the race for Congress over William L. Padgett, Republican.

Edward J. Ahearn, Democratic incumbent, was elected by about 2½ to 1, as State senator over Henry Steinberg, Republican.

LLOYD GEORGE DUE TO QUIT POST TODAY

trade banner, today elected Sir John Simon to head their faction.

Surrounded by his last little family band of four loyal supporters, Lloyd George, according to the best available information, will sit with the Labor opposition.

Of this small clan—relics of the Welsh leader's once vast following—Miss Megan Lloyd George will be the sole "rank and file." For her father, her brother Gwalyn and her brother-in-law, Maj. Goronwy Owen, all have distinctions entitling them to sit on the front bench of the opposition, which presumably they will do.

What the ultimate future holds for the once virtual dictator of Great Britain and whether he finally will become leader of the Labor or any other opposition, none today could say.

He is expected to take a long holiday to recuperate from his recent illness, having planned a trip to the Mediterranean and a vacation in Wales, and he may not attend Parliament sessions after taking the oath.

Sir John Simon, noted lawyer, achieved a new standing in the Liberal party when he broke with Lloyd George, who has since proposed joining hands with the remnant of the Labor party.

During the election campaign Sir John headed that section of Liberalism which was of the opinion its members should support some sort of tariff for protection of British industries during times of national stress, if such measures were deemed necessary.

He was opposed from the ranks of the Liberals by their titular leader, who was, however, too ill to take active part in the campaign. His chief active opponent was Sir Herbert Samuel, home secretary in the National government, who, however, balked at the idea of relinquishing the principle of free trade which had been a bulwark of the Liberal platform for generations.

The group which picked Simon to lead them, comprising about 30 members of Parliament, also resolved today to obey the government whip wielded on behalf of Prime Minister MacDonald, whose formation of the National government cost him leadership of the Labor party.

The parliamentary Labor party, now the opposition in Commons, gave its new leader, Arthur Henderson, a vote of confidence today and invited him to remain in control, with George Lansbury as chairman and floor leader.

MANY LEADERS GONE AS COMMONS OPENS

servatives—the largest representation any party ever has had.

Scores of the faces were new and most of those with which he was familiar were among the members supporting Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and his National government.

Virtually all the great leaders of the Labor party were missing. In the place of their distinguished leader, "Uncle Arthur" Henderson, sat the gray-haired septuagenarian, George Lansbury.

On the government bench sat the handsome and distinguished looking prime minister amidst the members of his late National cabinet, all of whom had been loudly cheered as they entered the house.

On one side of Mr. MacDonald was "Honest Farmer" Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader and former prime minister. On his other side was his lifelong friend and worker in the cause of labor, J. H. Thomas.

A little further along were the two famous Chamberlain brothers, Sir Austen and Neville. Scattered about the house were other familiar personalities, such as Winston Churchill and Nancy Lady Astor, looking as lovely and pert as ever is a black and white suit.

The government bench no longer saw Philip Snowden, the little iron chancellor, always a dominant figure despite his white, drawn face and crippled body.

The proceedings were brief and formal, but a few moments of humor were interspersed. Lady Astor was one of the first to impress her presence on the new members. She walked up to Mr. Lansbury and, with a taunting laugh, spread her arms wide in a derisive gesture which suggested that the whole Labor opposition could be gathered into that space.

Will Thorne, one of the few Labor leaders remaining in the house, convulsed the members during his speech in seconding the election of Speaker Fitzroy.

CONGRESS TO PROBE MAIL FUND HANDLING

Appropriations Committee to Investigate Ship Line and Air Contracts.

(Associated Press.)

The administration of the $56,600,000 ocean and air mail funds and contracts is to be investigated by the House appropriations committee in December.

This announcement by Representative Wood, chairman of the committee, last session was met by a Post-office Department statement that the inquiry would be welcomed.

Wood said numerous complaints had been received from air and steamship line operators over the methods by which contracts had been awarded and were being handled.

Arch J. Coleman, acting Postmaster General, said the administration of the air and ocean mail contracts had been based strictly on the enactments of Congress.

"If there is anything wrong with it," he added, "it is with the laws and not with the administration. Postmaster General Brown will gladly furnish any information which the congressional committee may desire."

Although Postmaster General Brown has charge of the contracts and funds, the direct supervision of the funds comes under W. Irving Glover, Second Assistant Postmaster General.

Last year ocean mail appropriations amounted to $36,600,000, of which $7,000,000 was for foreign ocean airmail. Under the recently enacted waters act, the domestic airmail subvention is $20,000,000 annually.

The Shipping Board certifies to the Postmaster General lines entitled to seek ocean air mail contracts. Shipping Board commissioners, Postmaster General Brown and air and steamship line operators, are to be called before the appropriations committee, Wood said.

PROGRESS and change of great magnitude are evident when the aspect of Columbia road and Mintwood place, as shown in this photograph, is compared with the locality at the present.

The house is that of Brig. Gen. George L. Andrews. It was erected in 1893, at which time it was surrounded by vacant fields. On the opposite side of Columbia road there was an oak grove.

No car tracks show on Columbia road, as the Connecticut avenue line stopped at 8 street then. The horse, coachman and carriage reflect the splendors of a bygone age.

NAN BRITTON TALKS WITH COURT LOCKED

Judge Bars Public as Author Bares Story of Life; Trial Nears End.

Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Behind the locked doors of the Federal courtroom here, Miss Nan Britton, author of "The President's Daughter," today testified before the jury which is to decide her $50,000 libel suit against C. A. Klunk, Marion, Ohio, hotel operator.

Miss Britton claimed in her book that the late President Warren G. Harding was the father of her child. She is suing Klunk on the ground that he circulated another volume, entitled, "The Answer to the President's Daughter," which she claims damaged her reputation.

The testimony of Miss Britton was kept a secret by order of Federal Judge John M. Killits, but the fact that she was on the stand only about a half-hour was evidence that her story was brief.

Sister Takes Stand.

After Miss Britton had testified, her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Willits, of Chicago, was called. She remained in the courtroom only a few minutes.

Doors of the courtroom were locked to all spectators and newspaper reporters after Judge Killits announced many persons had been visiting the trial solely in the hope of hearing testimony of lasciviousness. The judge also forbade the attorneys and principals in the proceedings to discuss the case outside the courtroom.

Yesterday Judge Killits was quoted as saying the "Answer to the President's Daughter" contained statements libelous to Miss Britton and that the only thing remaining for her to prove was the extent of the publication.

Judge Qualifies Statement.

Today Judge Killits denied the apparent meaning of these quotations by adding amendments which explained that his previous comment was based on the status of the trial at that time, but that it had been still subject to qualification by the right of the defense to prove, if possible, that the alleged libels were truthful statements.

Judge Killits repeated his statement of yesterday that Miss Britton's book had not libeled President Harding, because it was published four years after his death.

The trial was close to a conclusion tonight, and court attaches expressed belief that it might go to the jury tomorrow.

DELAY IS REFUSED TO RALPH CAPONE

ProcessGoes On to Send Him to Jail; Rehearing Sought From Supreme Court.

(Associated Press.)

It's just one legal reverse after another nowadays for the Capone family of Chicago.

Attorneys yesterday asked the Supreme Court to delay in notifying a Court of Appeals that it had refused to review Ralph's conviction for violating income tax laws.

The lawyers explained they intended to ask the Supreme Court for a rehearing. "Too late," Charles Elmore Cropley, clerk of the court, told them. "The Court of Appeals has already been notified."

Only a little while afterwards two judges of the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals denied Capone a stay on the order which will send him to prison soon. His attorneys again said they intended to ask the Supreme Court for a rehearing, but the judges answered they saw no reason for a further delay.

Capone is now out on bail, but a warrant ordering his delivery to prison was expected to be in the hands of a United States marshal by today.

The Supreme Court could step in and hold up his departure for Leavenworth until it acts on his petition for a rehearing. This would give Ralph almost a month more of liberty. The court is in recess until November 23. It would not act on the petition until November 30. There was no indication yesterday that it intended to take any such step or that it would grant him a rehearing.

Chicago, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—An alleged counterfeiting plant and arsenal, believed by police to have been connected with the headquarters of "Scarface Al" Capone's gang, was raided late yesterday.

Police said they found 63 pistols, many of them with the numbers filed off. Five men were arrested. Police said they believed the place was used by the Capone gang to have the numbers filed off their weapons, to keep their pistols oiled and ready for action.

Ralph Capone on Way To Begin His Sentence

Chicago, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Ralph Capone was en route tonight from his winter place in Miami, Fla., his attorneys told Government officials, to surrender for imprisonment on income-tax violations.

The elder brother of the more notorious "Scarface Al" is due here tomorrow night or Thursday morning to accept service of a mittimus from the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals, which ordered today that Capone be taken at once to Leavenworth Penitentiary.

RAISE IN TAXATION BY CONGRESS SEEN

Restricted Sales Levy Predicted by Senator Reed to Meet Large Deficit.

(Associated Press)

The tremendous Federal deficit led yesterday to a flat prediction Congress soon will raise taxes.

Just as storekeepers have been balancing their books for the past day or so, Secretary Mellon's experts had to find out how the Treasury stood at October's end. Their answer was $661,000,000 in the hole.

This is almost four times as much as the bad balance shown for the first four months of the previous fiscal year, which ended last June 30 with the Treasury $903,000,000 behind. No sooner did the fact become known than talk of new and higher taxes was revived.

Senator Reed, whose opinion goes a long way in administration policy on money matters, said at the Capitol he expects the Congress meeting next month to adopt some sort of restricted sales tax to get more income. It may be on luxury articles only, but he is convinced the base should and would be broadened.

The Pennsylvania Republican cited the recent Conservative landslide in Great Britain's election, showing determination there to balance the budget. This determination he expects to be reflected in the American Congress.

Whatever is decided, it seems certain much of this year's deficit at least will be cared for as it was last—by adding to the public debt.

The gross debt on October 31 was $17,291,000,000, an increase of more than $1,000,000,000 in a year, with indications pointing to a still greater increase in the coming twelve months.

President Hoover is being kept advised of the outlook from the Treasury point of view as well as the congressional. Senator Watson, the Republican floor leader, opposes any tax increase. Senator Harrison, ranking Democrat on the finance committee, joins in that conviction.

The President's position may not become known until his message to Congress. It can be said no final decision has been made further than that a detailed report of the Government's financial plight will be forwarded. To this a recommendation for getting more money may be added.

Meanwhile plans are under way among House members of both political parties to press for tax revision regardless.

Feast of Thanksgiving Proclaimed by Hoover

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday proclaimed Thursday, November 26, a day of national thanksgiving for the advantages enjoyed despite a "measure of passing adversity."

The presidential proclamation said:

"We approach the season when, according to custom dating from the garnering of the first harvest by our forefathers in the New World, a day is set apart to give thanks, even amid hardships, to Almighty God for our temporal and spiritual blessings. It has become a hallowed tradition for the Chief Magistrate to proclaim annually a national day of thanksgiving.

"Our country has cause for gratitude to the Almighty. We have been widely blessed with abundant harvests. We have been spared from pestilence and calamities. Our institutions have served the people. Knowledge has multiplied and our lives are enriched with its application.

"Education has advanced, the health of our people has increased. We have dwelt in peace with all men. The measure of passing adversity which has come upon us should deepen the spiritual life of the people, quicken their sympathies and spirit of sacrifice for others, and strengthen their courage.

"Many of our neighbors are in need from causes beyond their control and the compassion of the people throughout the Nation should so assure their security over this winter that they too may have full cause to participate in this day of gratitude to the Almighty.

"Now, therefore, I, Herbert Hoover, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, November 26, 1931, as a National Day of Thanksgiving, and do recommend that our people rest from their daily labors and in their homes and accustomed places of worship give devout thanks for the blessings which a merciful Father has bestowed upon us.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the City of Washington this third day of November, in the year of Our Lord 1931, and of the independence of the United States of America the 156th.

"(Signed) HERBERT HOOVER."

Not Guilty, Plea of Ship Master in Assault Case

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Capt. Charles Olsen of the Baltimore Mail Lines steamer City of Hamburg today pleaded not guilty to charges of striking his first officer while the ship was at sea. Capts. Paul H. Tyler and David C. Young, steamboat inspectors, who heard the case, reserved decision for 30 days.

The charges were brought by First Officer Harry M. Purcell, who testified the master of the vessel struck him as the boat neared Havre at the end of the eastern run of its maiden voyage. Federal law makes it unlawful for a master of an American ship to enforce discipline with violence.

Prague Parley Opens On Foreign Exchange

Prague Czechoslovakia, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—An international conference on foreign exchange opened here today under the auspices of the Bank for International Settlements to consider ways of straightening out Europe's currency difficulties.

The session, however, was purely of an informative nature, and after a short general discussion two commissions were nominated to examine the situation more closely, and, working secretly, to seek solutions.

$50,000 Slander Suit Citing Bishop Dropped

Charlotte, N. C., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The $50,000 slander and libel suit brought by the Rev. Rembert G. Smith, of Sparta, Ga., against Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, has been dismissed by Federal Judge E. Yates Webb.

The case, based upon remarks the bishop was said to have made during the general conference in Dallas, Tex., in 1930, was ordered erased from the court slate today because Mr. Smith failed to perfect an appeal within 90 days of the district court hearing at Asheville, when a decision in favor of the bishop was rendered.

Atlanta Police Head Will Retire in Row

Mayor Asks Resignation in Word War on Enforcing Prohibition.

Atlanta, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—A lengthy controversy between Mayor James L. Key, Chief of Police James L. Beavers and civic reform leaders was climaxed today by the mayor's request for Chief Beavers' resignation. The chief immediately filed application for pension, effective January 26. This action was considered tantamount to resignation.

The mayor's action was taken after Chief Beavers had demanded that John Manget, reform leader, name 100 policemen he has charged with drinking and protecting bootleggers.

Manget made a quick reply, but did not name the offending officers. "I blame you far less than I do your liquor lecturing, liquor drinking, law denouncing mayor, who demands to control the department that you and the police committee are responsible for," Manget wrote.

DREISER PARTY GOES TO COAL AREA TODAY

National Defense Body Asks Kentucky Protection for Strike Probers.

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Theodore Dreiser, author of "An American Tragedy," John Dos Passos and a group consisting of several other well-known writers will leave tomorrow for the Harlan County, Kentucky, coal fields to conduct open inquiry into alleged strike terrorism there.

The national committee for the defense of political prisoners, sponsor to the inquiry, sent telegrams today to Gov. Flem Sampson, of Kentucky, and Sheriff John H. Blair, of Harlan County, demanding protection for the writers.

"In view of the fact that two newspaper reporters were shot while trying to get news on the strike, that two magazine writers were searched and intimidated, that several theological students were threatened and a free speech investigator from the American Civil Liberties Union held five weeks in jail for criminal syndicalism," said the telegrams, "we demand full protection, and will hold you personally responsible for the lives of Theodore Dreiser, John Dos Passos, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rumford Walker, Josephine Herbst, Lester Cohen, Samuel Ornitz, Bruce Crawford and other members of the investigating committee sent by the national committee for defense of political prisoners to make open inquiry into charges of denial of constitutional rights to Harlan miners."

At the same time Mr. Dreiser made public a letter from United States Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, in which he expressed willingness to introduce in the Senate a resolution calling for investigation of the Harlan situation.

Mr. Dreiser said the evidence collected in his investigation would be turned over to Senator Norris.

Bowles Is Rewed, Declares Paper

Oregon Capitalist Is Found Living in Denver; Refuses to Talk.

Denver, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Nelson C. Bowles, Oregon capitalist, who was acquitted with his former secretary, Irma G. Loucks, last March of the slaying of his wife in Portland, sought refuge here from the public more than a month ago, the Denver Post said today. The Post said Bowles is married and living in a fashionable residential district.

When questioned about his wife's identity, Bowles refused to talk. However, persons who have seen the woman since the couple came here identified her as the capitalist's former secretary through photographs.

After Bowles and Miss Loucks were acquitted of the murder charges the prosecution preferred statutory charges against them. They were both fined when taken into court on the charges. Shortly afterward they both disappeared.

NAVY ROW BRINGS ON FLEET DEMAND

proceedings would be limited to gathering from administration files available information relating to each specific statement of fact made by Gardiner.

Expects Vindication.

This material, from which the President expects full vindication, would then be embodied in a terse report to Mr. Hoover. No hearings, no witnesses and no record complicated by opinions and discussion would be needed.

The procedure would be in line with the announcement of the White House that the inquiry must be "solely into assertions of fact" by Gardiner.

The latter received more criticism yesterday for his strongly-worded assault on the Chief Executive. Almost in the same breath with his demand for a bigger fleet, Senator Reed condemned Gardiner's statement as "indefensible."

"No loyal American should speak in that way of his President, that kind of attack hurts a cause rather than helps it," was his comment. This was much in line also with a statement issued late Monday by Secretary Adams, who resented the attack and suggested it would alienate supporters of the Navy.

Five-Man Committee.

Appointment of the five-man committee was not free of embarrassment to some of its members. Assistant Secretary Jahncke, who has been a close friend and stanch supporter of Mr. Hoover, has also been a lifelong advocate of a strong Navy, and for years was Louisiana State chairman of the Navy League.

Jahncke's situation, however, has been complicated by frequently published reports that Secretary Adams would resign because of disagreement with the President on naval policy and that he would be elevated to Adams' place. The assistant has protested loyalty to his chief and to the interests of the Navy.

Rumors of the Adams resignation have been so frequently repeated that the Secretary employed a joke in his latest denial.

Makes Joke of Affair.

"Yes," he informed newspapermen who asked if the denial was emphatic, "and be sure to say I denied it with tears in my eyes."

That touching suggestion had been made by some writers expanding on Adams' rumored rift with the White House.

Aroused by the published reports that Secretary Adams might resign, White House officials later stated formally that the Secretary would not leave his post.

Reports coming to the White House, at first, were not taken seriously, but later one of the President's secretaries said he could be quoted as saying that Adams would not resign.

It appeared certain last night that the chairmanship of the investigating committee would go to one of the two members who are not connected with the administration.

Although word came yesterday from those close to Jahncke and Castle that neither of them expected to be considered for chairman, both said last night they had made no statement on that subject and would await the action of the committee when it met.

Diogenes Turns Light Off On Swain Under Moon

By JOHN J. DALY

UNDER the spell of a romantic moon, a young fellow on the West Coast told a maid he was prosperous and would give her a number of expensive things. They were married, she never got the gifts, and now annulment proceedings are under way. The judge, a wise man from the West, says:

"Every girl is promised all manner of things under a soft moon. Not that they expect to take such prattle literally, but they sort of expect the wooer to paint a rosy picture of the future. One of the oldest laws entitled a man to 'puff his wares.'"

Prattle, indeed. Love talk! It is the oldest language in existence, and although a man may be tongue-tied in the daytime, yet at night, under the moon, with maid at his side, he becomes eloquent.

It may be that he lives in California, but he still has castles in Spain. He may be a dweller on the Island of Crete, but he owns extensive real estate on the continent. It will be noticed that the holdings of the dreamer are always in far-off lands.

* * * *

BEHOLD, my beloved, I'll give you one of the Thousand Islands, and a yacht, and servants galore; for 'tis under the moon that a man dreams that he dwells in marble halls, with vassals and serfs at his beck and call.

They talk about that old dabil Sea but that old dabil Sea can never work the ravages wrought by the Harvest Moon. A man and a maid are never safe under the moon, and heaven help the girl who believes all she hears in the pale moonlight.

Those are the nights that are filled with music, when the moon shines over the mountain, and a fellow and a girl a-wooing go.

Ragged mountaineers become millionaires; timid souls are heroes in their own right; mutes develop into orators, clodhoppers are poets, and the saddest heart in the world leaps into ecstasy as the mmmm-mmmmmmmmmmmoon shines over the cccc-ccccow-shed and two hearts beat as one by the kkkk-kkkitchen door.

Moonbeams and honeysuckle, and all the world lies down and turns over at the lovers' feet. So that a man gladly gives a girl the universe, with the solar system thrown in for good measure, though on the morrow he may not have enough to take her for a street-car ride.

* * * *

FOR Cinderella the pumpkin and the mice were turned into a coach and six, under the spell of the fairy godmother's wand. For milady in the moonlight, with her gallant by her side, the royal raiment, the regality and splendor of her gifts are as the riches of Solomon. All the world is a garden, and all the mansions in the world melted into a love nest, a magic cottage by a waterfall.

Certainly the man promises the maid a lot—and with her help he hopes some day to build a house on it—the castle of dreams. It is, as the saying goes, the way of the world, which is the way of a man with a maid; and if the maid should want it the man would give her the moon.

Bori to Sing at Symphony Concert on November 15

Enthused over the brilliant performance given by the National Symphony Orchestra, Hans Kindler, conductor, at its inaugural concert in Constitution Hall Monday afternoon, an anonymous music-lover of Washington has donated the services of Lucrezia Bori, celebrated Metropolitan Opera prima donna, as soloist at the first Sunday afternoon concert of the orchestra at Constitution Hall, on November 15.

This statement was contained in an announcement made yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Wilson-Greene, manager of the National Symphony, who declined to reveal the name of the donor, but who confirmed a story that became current after the opening concert Monday. Conductor Kindler has revised his program to include Bori's appearance as soloist twice during the afternoon's performance. Mrs. Wilson-Greene stated that the contributor of Bori's fee insisted on strict anonymity as one condition of the gift.

Lucrezia Bori's appearance as soloist practically assures the financial success of the orchestra's first Sunday afternoon concert. In addition to four orchestral works Mme. Bori will sing at least two groups of songs, exclusive of any encores which may be asked. Bori's program has not been made public, but will be soon. The orchestra will play Beethoven's overture to "Lenore," Bizet's Arlesienne suite, Moussorgsky's "Chant Russe" and the waltz from Tschaikowsky's opera, "Eugene Onegin."

Lucrezia Bori, Spanish prima donna soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, is not only one of the outstanding operatic sopranos before the American public, but is a prime favorite with Washington audiences. Those who heard the Metropolitan Opera Company's performance of Deems Taylor's new opera, "Peter Ibbetson," at the Fox Theater last April will recall Bori's brilliant performance as Mary, Duchess of Towers, in the same cast with Edward Johnson and Lawrence Tibbett. The year before, at the same theater, Bori captivated Washington audiences with her performance of "La Boheme" in the role of Mimi, with Tibbett as Marcello and Gigli as Rodolpho.

The presentation of the National Symphony Orchestra in its first Sunday afternoon concert—the first of eight such concerts to be given during the current musical season—on November 15 will be preceded by the first children's concert at Central High School on Thursday afternoon, November 12, at 4 o'clock.

Dr. J. F. Williamson To Talk on Music

Conductor of Westminster Choir Will Speak in Constitution Hall.

Dr. John Finlay Williamson, conductor of the Westminster Choir, which will be heard tonight in a concert at Constitution Hall, will hold an open meeting this afternoon in the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets northwest, in which "Music and the Church of Today" will be discussed.

Dr. Williamson has consented to conduct this open forum on church music in order that questions concerning the conduct of choral choirs may be fully discussed by pastors, choir leaders, singers and others.

The meeting is designed primarily as a round table conference with Dr. Williamson on the ministry of music.

Inhalator Relieves Pneumonia Victims

Father and Son Improve Under Treatment by Rescue Squad.

The lives of a father and son probably were saved yesterday by members of the fire rescue squad of the Rockville, Md., Fire Department, which brought its new inhalator into action for the first time. The squad worked from 5 o'clock Monday morning until last night, when their conditions were reported improved.

William L. Payne, of Rockville, and his 11-year-old son, Alvin, were so critically ill Monday morning of pneumonia that their lives were despaired of by attending physicians. The rescue squad's inhalator was called in as a last resort, and 5 or 6 members of the squad stood by until last night.

Cold Insurance

He carries it with him, ready for just such times. That little box of Bayer Aspirin. If he catches cold, what of it? Bayer Aspirin will stop it. If his throat feels sore, he will end the soreness with one good gargle made from these tablets.

Dangerous complications can follow the neglect of "a common cold!" Every case of tonsilitis began with "just a sore throat!" It's a wise plan to take aspirin after any undue exposure to bad weather, or whenever there is any chance that you've caught cold. If it's genuine aspirin it can't possibly hurt you; and how it does banish the aches and pains caused by colds, neuralgia, neuritis, lumbago, and even rheumatism.

Bayer Aspirin will insure your comfort through the worst cold season. The more susceptible you are to colds, the more you need it. Does not depress the heart.

PITTS WILL ANSWER CONTEMPT CHARGES

Smith Company Head Faces Accusation of Falsifying Papers at Trial.

G. Bryan Pitts "and others" face court action for introducing into Pitts' trial on charges of embezzlement 140 documents purporting to authorize expenditures of large sums of money of the F. H. Smith Co. by Pitts, all of which the Government alleges were spuriously manufactured in Florida.

Authorizations entitled Pitts to money that the Government contends he embezzled from the company. In a preliminary hearing some time ago in the office of United States Commissioner N. C. Turnage, witnesses testified that they aged the documents to give them the appearance of having been prepared in bygone years and that a solution containing bromic acid was used for the purpose.

If the Government is successful in bringing Pitts before the court, and his appearance has been ordered for next Monday, he will face a contempt of court ruling for the alleged spurious papers. The ruling is so worded that others who might be found to have had a hand in preparing the documents might be prosecuted.

Justice F. D. Letts, in Criminal Court No. 2, signed the rule for Pitts to show cause. Hearing will be before him.

2 Men and Stills Seized By Agents in Maryland

Two men were arrested and two stills were seized in two raids made yesterday by Federal dry agents in southern Maryland. Benjamin Proctor, of Waldorf, was arrested when the agents captured a 500-gallon still near his home. The raiders also seized 26 gallons of alleged whisky and 3,600 gallons of mash. Proctor was taken before United States Commissioner J. Frank Farran at Marlboro, who set his bond at $1,000.

In a raid near Indianhead, Marshall Queen was arrested on similar charges and his bond was set at the same figure. Agents said they found a 250-gallon still, 16 gallons of what they believed to be whisky, and 2,500 gallons of mash.

El Salvador Envoy Presents Papers

Dr. Carlos Leiva Formally Greets President as New Minister.

Dr. Carlos Leiva, Minister from El Salvador, formally presented his letters of credence to President Hoover at the White House yesterday. Minister Leiva is no stranger to the Capital, however, as he has been a familiar figure here as first secretary and charge d'affaires for his government for many years.

The minister was presented to the President by the chief of the division of protocol, Warren Delano Robbins, who was last year American Minister to Dr. Leiva's country.

Last year Dr. Leiva was the heroic figure in a holdup of his legation when four armed thugs beat him as he surprised them carrying away several cases of liquor.

Although he was not armed at the time, the diplomat, who is a powerfully built man, battled with the thugs and they were forced to flee. He was in the hospital for several weeks and immediately after his government sent him to Switzerland to convalesce. At the same time he was promoted in rank to be minister.

Girl's Father Held In Escort's Death

Doctor Called in Shooting Voluntarily Goes to Illinois Jail.

La Harpe, Ill., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Oliver E. Peck, 27, was shot and killed early today as he sat in an automobile with Jayne Casey, 17, in front of her home. Dr. Clyde L. Casey, 43, father of the girl, admitted the shooting and surrendered to authorities. He remained in jail and was to appear at an inquest later.

The shooting took place as Peck and the girl returned from an automobile ride about 1 o'clock. Two other young men and another girl, whose names were not learned, were also in the automobile.

Dr. Casey, angered by the late arrival of his daughter, who is a high school student, slapped her as she sat in the car and in an argument with the other occupants fired a shot. The bullet struck Peck in the neck. The other youths took him to a nearby hospital, from where a nurse, not suspecting who shot him, called Dr. Casey. Dr. Casey pronounced him dead. He then called the sheriff, admitted the shooting and went voluntarily to jail at Carthage.

ARGENTINE EMERGES FROM MONEY CRISIS

Peso Pegged at 427, Only Few Days Ago Is Expected to Climb to 405.

Buenos Aires, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—A combination of favorable agricultural, political and monetary developments, bearing fruit almost overnight, was hailed today by commercial leaders as enabling Argentina to emerge from her financial crisis with seven-league strides.

The paper peso, which a few days ago was held to 427 per $100 only by the efforts of a federal commission, was permitted to improve to 418 and government figures showed huge exports of wheat, linseed, wool, hides and other staples against the lowest imports in years.

Despite the commission's efforts to prevent a too sudden recovery in exchange rates, one grain merchant did business today at 415 paper pesos per $100 and bankers freely predicted the peso would improve to 405 if the peg were removed.

Developments yesterday and today were the first hopeful signs since foreign exchange eighteen months ago started its long decline which was terminated recently by pegging the peso's price at 427. The sudden turn was attributed to three factors:

(1) Indications of orderly elections next Sunday terminating the de facto government, since Argentina's unfavorable position internationally has been ascribed largely to political troubles;

(2) Impending bounteous crops at better prices;

(3) Healthier monetary conditions owing to the provisional government's policy of economy, control of exchange, debt payments and limitation of imports.

The Lee House Spokesman Says—

WASHINGTON hotels, beyond all hotels of the country, should be noted for graciousness and hospitality. Throughout the year we provide accommodations for visitors coming to us from all parts of the world and whose imaginations have glorified our Nation's Capital.

THEY will find here things majestic and inspiring; the treasure houses of authorities and the shrines of the great.

THEY should find, too, a cordial people and our personal ways to them should be so ordered that Washington shall be regarded as a city of kindly and worthy citizens, so that these visitors shall return to their homes, in our country or abroad, cherishing the memories of their stay as of a visit with pleasant friends.

THE Lee House, providing accommodations as it does for many thousands of visitors yearly, pledges its purpose to have such regard toward this civic obligation, and that the doing of these things shall be, with us, an opportunnity rather than a duty.

SUCH a greeting will be yours at the Lee House, whether just for the day or through the Winter.

80 CHINESE KILLED IN JAPANESE CLASH

Stimson Returns to Find Manchuria Situation Complicated.

Tokyo, Nov. 4 (Wednesday) (A.P.).—A Mukden dispatch to the newspaper Asahi said today a Japanese battalion clashed Monday with 500 Chinese bandits near Toutsokou, Manchuria, and that 80 Chinese were killed and 100 wounded. Only one Japanese was reported killed.

The battle lasted more than six hours, the dispatch said, and was intensely fought.

Toutsokou is about 75 miles north of Mukden.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Secretary of State Stimson returned from New York yesterday to find the Chinese-Japanese controversy over Manchuria on the verge of further international complications involving Soviet Russia. Unofficial dispatches announced the occupation by Japanese infantry, artillery and airplanes of the City of Tsitsihar in northwestern Manchuria. This is a strategic spur on the Chinese Eastern Railway which is administered jointly by the Chinese and the Soviet governments. The present situation is the gravest point in the checkered history of recent events in Manchuria.

The State Department will not proceed in the present crisis until the most complete information has been received from George Hanson, the American Consul General at Harbin, who was believed to be in the beseaguered city in the midst of the developments. No official word of his presence in Tsitsihara had reached the department up to a late hour last night, but he was reported there in unofficial telegrams.

Tripped Troubled Zone.

Mr. Hanson recently returned to his post after another "observation" trip through the troubled zone with Laurence Salisbury, from the American Embassy in Tokyo. The Secretary of State has given his nearest representative, who happens to be Mr. Hanson, the discretionary powers of moving from his post in Harbin to whatever center seems to be the focal point for possible action by the massed troops of China, Japan and Soviet Russia.

The State Department will be obliged to move with the greatest delicacy and tact in the present crisis on account of the rebuff administered to Secretary Stimson by the Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, Maxim Litvinov, the last time the United States assumed the role of peacemaker between China and Russia when they were in the same position as China and Japan today.

Acting in concert with the other signatories of the Kellogg pact, the United States had undertaken to remind the Moscow government of its obligations as a signatory of the pact outlawing all war. On practically the same ground where now Chinese troops and Japanese forces are ranged, the Soviet government was seeking to protect its national interests in the Chinese Eastern Railroad by troop movements.

The Soviet government in a very unmannerly and discourteous tone replied to the good offices of the American Government by rejecting the suggestions and announcing its intention of following its own interests in the matter. The clash at that time was finally settled by the appointment of a Chinese Soviet commission which is still seeking in Moscow to find a compromise point for the two countries.

Futility Indicated.

Japanese encroachments into Manchuria have indicated the futility of counting on the fulfillment by the Japanese Government of the League of Nations date of November 16 for evacuation of the Manchurian territory. The Japanese troops could not be strategically released from occupation by that date and it will be necessary for the league if it wishes to save its face, to take more drastic measures to enforce its demands.

A strong possibility is believed to exist that some sort of economic sanctions will be threatened against the two countries unless they are mutually agreeable to carry out the league's peace-making program. The United States which has participated in the discussions of the League Council would be faced with the problem of either retreating precipitately from the league or else committing itself to a joint action with the other nations for the putting into effect of economic sanctions or blockade against the two nations.

Planes, 20,000 Feet Up, Fly to Capital

12 Navy Craft Make Altitude Hop From Michigan.

Flying at an altitude of 20,000 feet, and maintaining close formation at an average speed of 200 miles an hour, twelve Army Air Corps pilots of the Ninety-fourth Pursuit Squadron, from Selfridge Field, Mich., under the command of Capt. Harry Johnson, arrived at Bolling Field yesterday afternoon on a nonstop flight. The fliers were obliged to use oxygen tanks, and the single-seated Army fighting planes were specially equipped with superchargers to enable the motors to function in the rarefied atmosphere.

Leaving Selfridge Field at 1:45 p. m., the planes climbed to the high altitude and flew above the clouds never seeing the ground until they were past Pittsburgh, Pa. At 3:45 p. m. they circled Washington, completing the 400-mile flight in exactly two hours.

The pilots will replenish their oxygen tanks here tomorrow, and fly back to the Michigan field on another high altitude mission.

Part-Time Park Work Will Not Be Available

The Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks will not follow the lead of the District Commissioners and provide part-time employment for per diem workers in accordance with the suggestion of Walter S. Gifford, chairman of President Hoover's Committee on Unemployment, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director, said yesterday.

Trained laborers are required to maintain the parks during the winter months, he explained, and it could consequently be difficult to use inexperienced workers. The parks division, like the District government, is dismissing some of its per diem workers gradually as winter approaches, as usual this year.

U.S. AND CHINA SWAP 2 FORMAL PROTESTS

State Department Asks for Release of American; Raid Is Protested.

(Associated Press.)

China and the United States yesterday swapped protests.

The State Department said "urgent representations" had been made to Nanking for the rescue of J. W. Vinson, of Lexington, Va., an American Presbyterian missionary, captured by bandits. Arrest and punishment of the kidnapers was requested.

China, through Yung Kwai, Charge d'Affaires, protested the round-up Monday in Chicago of 42 Chinese as illegal alien suspects.

The Chinese Consul at Chicago, the charge said, complained that Federal immigration agents acted without legal authority in making wholesale arrests; subjected the Chinese to "indignities" and destroyed some of their property. Secretary Stimson notified the Labor Department, under whose jurisdiction the agents operate, and expects an official report.

Acts Through Counsel.

In calling upon the Nanking government for prompt rescue of Vinson, the Department acted through Willys R. Peck, American Consul General at Nanking, in the absence of Minister Nelson T. Johnson from the city.

In addition to appealing to the national authorities through the ministry of foreign affairs, Peck telegraphed to the chairman of the provincial government of Kiangsu, in which the incident occurred.

He acted upon receiving word that Vinson had been taken by bandits Sunday 30 miles southeast of Haichow, in east central China near the coast and far removed from Manchuria, where the Sino-Japanese dispute has raged for a month and a half.

Yung Kwai said most of the Chinese arrested at Chicago had been found innocent and released.

The raids were described by the Labor Department as a part of its drive begun nine months ago against aliens smuggled into the country during the last ten years.

Arrested in Chicago.

The arrests were said to have been made by Chicago police and Federal agents under Murray W. Garsson, Assistant to Secretary Doak.

In a preliminary report to the Labor Department, Garsson denied any Chinese had been mistreated. He said that of the group, 30 were arraigned before a United States commissioner on charges of entering the country illegally, 8 on charges of possessing fraudulent papers and 4 as leaders of a smuggling gang. He reported ten had confessed they were smuggled into the country.

2 IN BOAT 100 MILES AT SEA ARE RESCUED

Men Given Up for Dead Near Collapse After Nine Days Without Food.

New York, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—Two Brooklyn sportsmen who drifted nine dreary days 100 miles off New York in an open, crippled motorboat were rescued by coast guardsmen today a week after their wives and children had given them up for dead.

They are David Warshauer, 31, and his brother-in-law, Irving Tushyner, 28, who drifted out to sea a week ago last Sunday when the motor on their 17-foot fishing boat developed trouble.

Both men were exhausted and at the point of starvation when coast guardsmen, aboard the cutter Cuyahoga, sighted their disabled craft in the Atlantic 60 miles east of Fire Island. They had subsisted nine days and nights on rainwater.

Hospital Expects Recovery.

Tonight they were in the Staten Island Hospital, each in a serious condition, though they are expected to recover.

Members of their families were at Staten Island Coast Guard base docks to meet the Cuyahoga as it steamed in. They made it known that they are arranging a banquet to celebrate the rescue and will invite 30 or 40 of their friends and neighbors. Warshauer is the father of three small children; Tushyner has one. Their wives are sisters.

When Boatswain Frank Rados, of the Coast Guard cutter, came upon the tossing motorboat today, he found Warshauer lying unconscious in the bottom of the boat. The rescued men's limbs were swollen and cracked, and Rados, in a radio message, said that a few hours more probably would have meant death for them.

Seaplane Fails to Aid.

An hour afte Rados' first message reached the Coast Guard base at Clifton, Long Island, a New York police seaplane took off for the purpose of rushing the rescued pair to a hospital.

Two flying patrolmen, Joseph Smith and Arthur Wallander, were in the plane, under instructions to descend on the water near the Cuyahoga, and transfer Warshauer and Tushyner to their ship.

The fliers picked up Dr. Philip Goldstein, of Harbor Hospital, before they headed for Montauk Point and the open sea. They were unable to locate the Coast Guard cutter, however, and returned to New York.

Four Men Arrested In Car With Drug

Carolinians and Cargo of Morphine Halted on Baltimore Pike.

Three hundred and fifty grains of morphine and accompanying paraphernalia were taken yesterday from four occupants of a Washington-bound car on the Baltimore pike. The men held, who admitted being addicts, said they had purchased the drug in Baltimore, but declined to say from whom.

They were taken to a State police substation near Laurel until detectives from Baltimore arrived. They will be turned over to Federal authorities tomorrow charged with violation of the Harrison narcotic act.

The men gave their names as Samuel L. Carter, 32, Winston-Salem, N. C., whom police say, has served a term of a year and a half in Leavenworth for violation of the narcotic law; Charles Holt, 42, of Spartanburg, S. C.; Leon Cash, 39, Winston-Salem, and Luther Hendricks, 42, Concord, N. C.

GENERAL UPRISING NOTED IN BUSINESS

Commerce Department Reports Upward Leap in World Trade.

(Associated Press.)

An upward leap in business sentiment was reported yesterday from many parts of the world in cables and radiograms from Commerce Department representatives.

The wekely review of favorable and unfavorable factors in world conditions recorded a generally stronger outlook in Great Britain; improved conditions in parts of Canada due to higher grain prices; an increase in Egyptian exports during August; a favorable trade balance in Italy; improvement in Chile and Argentina, and better merchandise movement in Mexico.

Flood conditions in south China were reported rapidly improving, with trade satisfactory in that section and activity fair in the Shanghai and Hankow regions. The Chinese situation, however, still was clouded by political uncertainty.

The report said:

"The general tone of markets and sentiment in Great Britain has become stronger since the abandonment of the gold standard. The coal, textiles and automobile trades, particularly, show gains. Unemployment, though still higher than last year, has recently declined.

"Several indications of better business have appeared in Italy, including the continued stability of lira exchange; the unusually small adverse trade balance; the general feeling that government programs will provide adequate relief for unemployment, which has recently been increasing, and the favorable reaction to the increase of 15 per cent in ad valorem duties. Foreign trade during September recorded an export balance which is extremely unusual in Italian commerce.

"Egyptian exports increased during August as compared with the previous year, while imports declined, resulting in a sharply improved trade balance. The balance for eight months is also much better than for the corresponding period last year. * * *

"Sentiment in the interior of Argentina has improved as a result of higher cereal prices and better exchange conditions, but imports and distribution in Buenos Aires continued slow.

"Fundamental conditions in Chile have been strengthened by the continued favorable trade balance, but industrial activity is slow, the credit position remains strained and retail trade continues inactive. * * *

"Although the commercial outlook of China is clouded by political uncertainties, activity is fair in the Shanghai and Hankow regions and trading is satisfactory in South China, while flood conditions are now rapidly improving.

"Philippine export markets are slightly firmer, but import merchandise continues to move slowly.

"Wheat and wool markets are maintained firm in Australia and security prices have improved."

DEARER WHEAT SEEN IN SOVIET'S FAILURE

Paris that Russia has definitely decided against wheat exports for two years. Exports have dropped off only because the current Russian yields do not permit sales abroad, say those whose business it is to keep in constant touch with world market developments.

Thus far Russian wheat exports this year have totaled a little more than 50,000,000 bushels. Other countries, therefore, must supply during the remainder of the crop year the additional 60,000,000 bushels dumped by Russia last season.

This increased demand comes in the face of the Department of Agriculture's official computations showing the world wheat yield outside of Russia to be 115,000,000 bushels below the November estimate last year.

Mid-October reports to the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome revealed reductions of 25 per cent in wheat acreage in Australia and 20 per cent in Argentina, as compared with 1930.

Domestic Acreage Reduced.

Intensifying the bullish influence of all these foreign reports on United States price movements are the current trade estimates indicating a sharp reduction in domestic winter wheat acreage. The average of half a dozen private estimates indicates a fall planting of about 33,000,000 acres against 40,700,000 acres harvested this year.

Officials of Farm Board Feel That Worst Is Over

(Associated Press.)

Believing that agriculture always leads industry into brighter business skies, the Farm Board is watching with interest the upward swing of the wheat market.

What levels—high or low—it will reach in the immediate future, neither Chairman Stone nor Carl Williams would guess yesterday, but they were optimistic and said "the worst is over."

The chairman reiterated that wheat prices have been unjustifiably low in the face of bullish reports of short crops in European importing countries, reduced harvests in the Southern Hemisphere, adverse weather in the American winter wheat belt and uncertainty over Russia's export position.

Williams observed that while agriculture has always pointed to better times, cotton usually has been the leader.

Woman Kills Three Children and Self

Writes Two Notes, Turns on Gas and Then Shoots; Mate Tells of Row.

Philadelphia, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—After writing two notes in which she complained of her husband's treatment of her and their three small children, Mrs. Anna Nathan, 21, today shot and killed the children and committed suicide.

Police said Mrs. Nathan stuffed cloth and paper into cracks along windows and doors and turned on the gas in the kitchen range before the shooting in order to make certain all four would die. The position of the bodies of the children indicated, police said, they had been overcome before they were shot.

Clothing for the children's funeral was found laid out, each piece neatly pressed. After reading the notes, police said, Nathan told them he had an argument with his wife at breakfast.

BODIES OF 3 FOUND IN MINE EXPLOSION

Rescue Crews Seek 2 Others Missing as 241 Escape in West Virginia.

Logan, W. Va., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Three of five men unaccounted for after an explosion of gas in the Whitman No. 20 mine of the Island Creek Coal Co. were known to have met death and little hope was held for the others as rescue searched the workings tonight.

The bodies of William Dingress, Lounie Napier and David Amos, timber workers, were recovered. A total of 241 miners escaped after the blast.

The explosion occurred while a timber crew and the fire boss were restoring props in a temporarily abandoned section of the mine some 2 miles from the entrance.

The blast was described as local in character by officials of the State department of mines, who said the workings had been scientifically treated with rock dust, which is sprayed over the coal dust to prevent spread of fire after an explosion.

Men coming out of the mine reported that a slate fall knocked down an electric wire and that sparks from it caused the explosion.

The missing men include Tully Frye, a fire boss; Lonnie Nahler and James Hobbs.

Officials reported there were 246 men in the mine and that all had been accounted for with the exception of the five working near the scene of the explosion.

Many of those who left the mine were in other sections. When dust began flying through the mine they realized that something was wrong and started for the surface.

Capital and Alexandria Men Hurt in Car Wreck

Richmond, Va., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—John Fletcher, mechanic, Washington, and Elbert Carl, 22, student, Alexandria, were brought to a hospital here tonight suffering from injuries received in an automobile accident on the Richmond-Washington highway last night. The men had first been taken to Ashland where they remained in unconscious condition until today.

State highway police had received no report of the accident tonight and hospital attendants said they were told only that Fletcher was driving when the crash occurred.

IOWA MOB EXPELS 3 CATTLE TESTERS

Veterinarians and Two Sheriffs Stoned by Farmers in Lee County.

West Point, Iowa, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Three veterinarians and two sheriffs today were driven off by a mob of protesting farmers today as they attempted to test cattle on the Frank Boeding farm near here.

The five officials, Drs. P. A. Weires and J. M. Wineinger, veterinarians, and Sheriff Harry Maas, of Koekuk Deputy Sheriff S. L. Klopenstein, of Fort Madison, and Dr. Peter Malcolm, State veterinarian supervising the tuberculin tests, said they were pelted with clods and other missiles and forced to flee pursued by a crowd of 200 farmers.

The mob gathered about their automobile, Sheriff Maas said, cut one tire, deflated another and broke a trunk carrier on the machine.

They explained their mission, but the farmers said they would not be permitted to test Boeding's herd. Sheriff Maas said he would ask Gov. Dan Turner to send Iowa National Guardsmen into Lee County from Des Moines County, where they are now stationed, to enforce the State law requiring the tuberculin testing of cattle.

After the incident at the Boeding farm the farmers dispersed, he said.

Burlington, Iowa, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Twelve arrests were made today by Iowa National Guardsmen in quelling the first open resistance to the enforcement of the bovine tuberculosis test law in Des Moines County.

The trouble occurred in Benton Township when the farmers placed trees across the highway.

Reinforcements were sent from the guard camp and infantrymen rounded up the dozen farmers in hills and gullies near the scene of the blockade.

They were taken to the camp and held for investigation and questioning.

The latest outbreak followed the departure from this vicinity of 1,100 National Guardsmen leaving 500 troopers still on duty.

Southern Phone Plans To Spend $4,000,000

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The Southern Bell Telephone Co. plans to spend $4,000,000 between now and the end of 1932 for revision of the Louisville system, it was announced today. The expenditure will be made in changing to the dial system of operation.

A Portrait in

Black and White

by GOUPY

For gala evenings, this picturesque gown of dull black crepe Morrocan has no peer. Moulded Empire silhouette, high waistline subtly set off by drapes drawn at each side and fastened with baguette clips, forming a gracious minaret, which is lined with white phosphorus satin. The graceful skirt falls to a full flare . . . and like a single precious jewel glittering in dark artistic setting, a "lei" of genuine Ermine encircles the neck and continues down the back.

DEMOCRATIC GAINS.

By snatching the Eighth Michigan District from the Republicans, the Democratic party stands to win the fight for control of the House of Representatives. The Republican defeat in Michigan is the most significant feature of yesterday's election—more significant in a national sense than the victory of a Democrat over a Republican for Governor of New Jersey. The net result of yesterday's congressional elections gives the Democrats 217 members as against 215 Republicans.

The Democrats of the House are solidly behind John M. Garner, of Texas, for Speaker, while the Republicans divide their forces between John Q. Tilson and Bertrand H. Snell. Several days ago it appeared that the House had been lost to the Republicans by the declaration of Wisconsin insurgents that they would vote for a Democrat for Speaker unless the Republicans would accept the Progressive legislative program. But yesterday's election gives the majority to the Democrats without the aid of insurgent Republican votes; and barring death and accident in the meantime the election of Mr. Garner as Speaker will occur, and the Democrats will distribute chairmanships among themselves without obligation to Republican insurgents.

Gov. Roosevelt seems to have prevailed over former Gov. Alfred E. Smith in the contest over the reforestation amendment to the New York constitution. It was not a final test, but so far as it goes it indicates that Gov. Smith will find it very difficult to wrest the New York delegation from Roosevelt.

Democrats will probably point to the Michigan returns as proof of a Nation-wide revolt against the Republican party on account of the depression. But the election of a Republican to the late Speaker Longworth's seat in Cincinnati, by a larger plurality than Mr. Longworth himself received, does not support the assumption that voters generally are turning away from the Republican cause on account of the depression. Local considerations doubtless affected the result, both in Michigan and Ohio.

The defeat of former Senator Baird by A. Harry Moore for Governor of New Jersey is not a surprise. Mr. Moore proved to be the more astute campaigner, and Mr. Baird was handicapped by the death of Senator Morrow, who might have turned the scale if he had lived.

Kentucky's results will not be known until later. Much interest attaches to the outcome of the gubernatorial contest, because of the special efforts put forth by Executive Director Lucas of the Republican national committee in behalf of his friend and townsman, Mayor William B. Harrison, of Louisville. The Democratic candidate for governor bears the alluring name of Ruby Laffoon, and it seems highly improbable that Kentuckians would refuse to place that name in the hall of fame. Ruby Laffoon—who knows that this magic name will not lead all the rest in the historic National Derby of 1932?

A RAILROAD CONFERENCE.

The spirit of cooperation that has existed between employers and organized labor throughout the depression is further manifest in the offer of the Railway Labor Executives Association to negotiate with railroad managers on the questions of wages and unemployment. If the labor leaders took an arbitrary attitude they might defeat or indefinitely postpone wage reductions. Yet in the interest of their fellow workers who are now idle and in the hope of securing greater stability for the future, they take the lead in a cooperative movement.

The resolution adopted by the Washington conference of railway labor heads is a far cry from the methods of early labor unions. Of course, the labor unions have not agreed to a reduction of wages and they are not apt to do so unless corresponding concessions are forthcoming from the railroad executives. But they have adopted a policy that looks beyond the immediate future—a policy that is based on the welfare of all railway employes, not merely those who are fortunate enough still to hold their jobs. It does not seem possible that the Association of Railway Executives will neglect this opportunity to discuss a readjustment of wages and working hours.

A reduction of railroad wages is regarded as inevitable by virtually all the executives since the Interstate Commerce Commission refused to grant an increase in freight rates. Some of the weaker roads are hardly able to meet their obligations, to say nothing of paying dividends. The larger roads are unable to make needed improvements, even though the price of materials has declined, because labor charges remain high. Since wages have been reduced in most industries, the railway unions are being urged to accept a temporary reduction to restore a balance and allow the carriers to catch their breath.

Labor leaders regard the situation from quite a different angle. While wages have remained constant, the carriers have trimmed their forces down to the minimum number of men required to maintain their service. It is estimated that 350,000 railway employes are out of work. The labor chiefs are interesting themselves in a plan that will reabsorb these men back into the transportation system as well as stabilize employment during future depression periods.

To harmonize these points of view will be a difficult task. But it can be far more easily achieved around a council table than by strikes or protracted disputes before the United States Labor Mediation Board. The unions can cooperate without admitting that wages are too high. In this emergency relief for railroad men out of work and stabilization efforts are more important than the maintenance of high wages for those who are still employed. On the other hand, railroad executives can cooperate without committing themselves to any uneconomic schemes. A meeting of the two groups is the most practical way of reaching a compromise on problems that otherwise may hinder the orderly recovery of the transportation industry.

CANADA CONSERVES GOLD.

The necessity for greater conservation of Canada's gold has been revealed by the Dominion. Gold is being mined at the rate of $4,600,000 a month in that country, but too much is being exported. There has never been any question as to the ability of the Dominion government to meet its obligations, but the provincial and municipal bonds issued abroad have been considered questionable in some cases. To protect Canada's prestige in all securities a ban has been imposed on the export of gold, except through one of the chartered banks by authorization of the minister of finance.

This drastic measure aims to prevent any possible speculation in the export of Canadian gold and also to prevent unnecessary shipments of bullion from the mines. The present heavy discount of the Canadian dollar is not due to domestic conditions, yet it entails a considerable increase in the payment of all obligations. The Dominion can not drain itself of gold in an effort to support the dollar, but it can take measures to insure the payment of all its bond obligations in gold. The gold embargo is expected to accomplish this, while at the same time it will tend to create a more favorable trade balance which will support and probably restore value to the Canadian dollar.

For the last three weeks the Dominion government has been paying Canadian mines for their gold in New York funds. This offer was accepted by only Ontario and Quebec, as the British Columbia mines were able to get the same rate and quicker delivery in Seattle and San Francisco.

In the first seven months of this year Canada lost $55,890,000 in gold exports, though it added to its reserves during the same period $31,919,700 through production and imports, thus leaving a net loss of $23,970,000. The department of finance reported more than $14,000,000 in its gold reserves at the end of August. This was sufficient to back up its circulation of notes. Furthermore, the chartered banks showed $27,530,800 in reserves and $64,567,000 in their vaults. Ample security was held, therefore, to back both national and bank notes, but there remained insufficient gold in excess to ship abroad to meet provincial or municipal obligations. The new regulations are confidently expected to provide this necessary surplus.

MERCHANT MARINE AIDED.

Sale of the United States Lines to a powerful shipping combination, including the Dollar-Dawson interests, of San Francisco, and the Roosevelt-International Mercantile Marine interests, of New York, marks the beginning of a new chapter in the history of the American merchant marine. The reorganized company has signed a contract with the United States Shipping Board giving assurance that the Leviathan and other vessels formerly operated by the Government will continue in the North Atlantic trade under the American flag and that the two 30,000-ton liners now under construction will be completed.

Shipping has suffered heavy losses as a result of the depression. Foreign trade has declined to such an extent that shipping capacity far exceeds the demand. A sharp decrease of tourist traffic has brought further contraction of revenue for shipping concerns throughout the world. Many vessels have been laid up awaiting more prosperous times. This situation has been accentuated by keen rivalry between the various national interests operating in the North Atlantic. All of them were engaged in a program of building finer and faster vessels when the depression began, and the shrinkage of traffic left them in a precarious financial position.

As a result European shipping interests have consolidated their resources. Large combinations similar to that which is now formed in the United States have strengthened the position of these competitors. It is gratifying to see the American merchant marine fortified by the infusion of new capital and the amalgamation of resources in this period of keen competition. With the revival of trade and passenger traffic, vessels flying the American flag will be on hand to claim their share of the increase.

The United States has established shipping lines to all parts of the world, and regular service is maintained. The policy of Congress is to promote merchant marine interests in anticipation of the extension of American trade. In some cases the present check upon foreign commerce makes it difficult for the new lines to carry on. But the development of a strong merchant marine is of such vital importance to the welfare of the United States that temporary reverses should not be allowed to jeopardize its future.

A PEACEFUL DICTATOR.

It remained for Mexico's greatest modern war lord, Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, to inaugurate an entirely new style of bloodless revolution in the republic that has witnessed so many scores of military coups. Without a single shot having been fired, without any outward sign of revolt, without even deposing the amiable President Ortiz Rubio, Gen. Calles has assumed a dictatorship as absolute as though he had stormed the national palace and deposed the government by force of arms.

A few months ago, when Gen. Calles was made financial czar by placing him at the head of the government bank, it seemed that his position there would be sufficient to stabilize the weakening authority of the nominal executive. A servile congress passed bills with unprecedented rapidity, every demand from Calles being quickly translated into law. A long-delayed labor bill was rushed through, giving employes such rights that old establishments closed rather than try to conform to the requirements. Retroactive taxes were decreed. The law making silver the sole legal tender and thereby confiscating half the value of gold contracts, deposits and mortgages, is now famous.

But Calles as a power outside the government itself was not sufficient. There were some strong military men in the cabinet. Gen. Juan Amaro and Gen. Juan A. Almazan, at the head of the portfolios of war and communications, were able to further, or quietly delay, measures emanating from an outside source. The situation became much more tense than was generally known outside of official circles and was rapidly getting out of hand so far as President Ortiz Rubio was concerned.

The blow fell with the rapidity of a midnight uprising of the castle guard. The president, in a cryptic statement referring to the necessity of changes due to political unrest, announced the appointment of Gen. Calles to the post of minister of war. Three other changes in the cabinet were made, and all in a day the little group that was supposed to hold the future destiny of Mexico in its hands was out. No arrests, no deportations, no revolution in the old-fashioned sense, but Calles is in the saddle again, as absolute a dictator as formerly. The president now merely goes through the formality of executing the Calles decrees.

Ecuador has recently ousted a president, installed a provisional ruler and elected a new president, all in a fortnight. Now Mexico effects a radical change by proclamation. Argentina is about to hold general elections that will be watched with great interest as an expression of democracy from the leading nation of the A B C list. Possibly a new spirit dominates the dreams of Latin-American republics.

FUTILE CLAMORING.

Sponsors of the "People's Lobby" and other unofficial but officious organizations have formed another propaganda dispensary to instruct Congress and the National Committee on Unemployment. The effrontery with which these petty cliques pretend to represent nation-wide sentiment is astounding. With all the machinery of democratic government at hand through which to exert their influence, they set up rump organizations and attempt to dictate public policies.

This newest coterie of fanatics attacks the administration and refers to the policy of the President's relief committee as "brazenly contemplating the placing of nearly 30,000,000 persons on the most degrading dole." Utterly ignoring the real aims and procedure of the committee, this reform group demands a huge Government appropriation for the unemployed and unemployment insurance. This is a good illustration of how Prof. Dewey and his associates stand on their heads and vociferate against the world for spinning upside down.

The time, work and money spent by such organizations could be used to far greater advantage in educating their membership in the rudiments of political economy. But that, of course, is not their purpose. They exist to memorialize legislative bodies and brazenly to misrepresent the constructive work of the Government. They exercise much the same functions as do mosquitoes in a construction camp, and their dizzy droning produces essentially the same results—disgust and irritation. When the public patience reaches the breaking point a new kind of anti-parasitic campaign may be expected.

ATTACKING THE HOME.

It is difficult to understand why Bertrand Russell came to America with his scheme for abolishing the family and having the state rear all children. Why didn't he go to Soviet Russia, where his philosophy would be appreciated? In spite of his radical views Mr. Russell has let it be known that he must return to England in time to decorate his children's Christmas tree. By no means should he neglect such an occasion for the sake of preaching his heresies in the United States.

Who is this British "philosopher" who advocates destruction of the home? At the age of 3 years he became an orphan. What does he know of the effect of normal home life on children? Out of his own warped experience comes a conviction that "human stock farms" would produce a better type of humanity than does the home. As a result of long years of wasted excursions in speculative sociology he has apparently lost sight of actual human values, and now favors the cultivation of a race of automatons.

It was not necessary for any one to defend the home before an American audience. The reaction of the audience against Mr. Russell's distorted logic would have been sufficient rebuttal without any further waste of words. An answer is never essential when a reformer becomes ridiculous. Mr. Russell's fantastic theories bring his words to naught and fortify the institution which he attacks.

If Mr. Russell were really a philosopher he might sit down some day and try to calculate what the influence of home and children has been upon himself.

TOMBOYS.

Where is the tomboy of yesteryear? The word is heard no more nowadays, and perhaps has fallen out of American speech, says the St. Paul Pioneer Press. In the old days any girl who took part in sports would have been deprecatingly dubbed "tomboy," and distinct sniffs would have been heard from her more decorous sisters who were always "little ladies."

This is the season of the year when golf and tennis tournaments bring out the girl competitors, those who would have been called "tomboys" in the days of their sheltered grandmothers. Today the representative of the fair sex, in natty sports attire, smashes them across the net or steps up to the tee, takes a swing, man fashion, and sends 200-yard drives down the fairway. And there are sunburned youths and successful business men in every gallery who would give the shirts off their backs if they could do likewise.

What has become of the tomboy of yesteryear? The answer is, they are all tomboys. The day seems to have gone forever when it was unladylike for women to be competent in a sport.

You Can't Be a Citizen of the World if You Are Afraid to Leave Home.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THIS is another one about finances. You say you aren't interested in that, but you'd better be. Your interest or lack of it eventually makes the wheels turn this way or that in Washington, and the turning of the wheels eventually affects your pocketbook.

America has come to a fork in the road. A decision must be made. Your Nation must become the world's banker or quit dabbling in the world affairs and live at home.

It is quite possible to let other nations alone, keep America's money in America, buy very little abroad and sell only to those who can pay cash.

That policy couldn't be adopted at once, for American bankers already have loaned some billions of dollars abroad. You can't lose all interest in a man after you have loaned him money—unless you are willing to lose the money, too.

America could live by herself in complete security, but she couldn't make much money without foreign markets. Japan lived alone, ages behind the world, until an American sailor opened her ports with soft words and threatening cannon and thus made the little islands a world power. Living behind walls pleases the timid, but it isn't profitable.

Shall America, then, become the world's banker? That duty and privilege is almost forced upon her. The great war made her rich and the others poor.

England served as the world's banker for a century. It made her rich. There is money in banking.

But banking requires something more than money. It requires courage, patience, foresight, vision—and staying qualities.

American bankers have loaned their own and their customers' money abroad—sometimes foolishly—and then asked the Government to use marines, threats and "influence" to get the money back.

You can't do a banking business if you get frightened every time your customer has a dull day.

America has the billions to lend—at a profit—but banking for the world means learning to think in world-wide terms. Borrowers who are weak must be supported—by the Government if necessary— until they are strong again. World banking means wet-nursing the world.

If America hasn't the courage to do the job right, it would be better for all concerned to quit lending and quit meddling and leave the financing of the world to France.

The world needs backers who won't lend money on bad security or lose faith in security that is good.

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Topeka Capital.

Trouble is reported by the Democrats in launching the pious project of the national committee to obtain funds from the rank and file of Democrats to pay the committee indebtedness in preparation for the 1932 campaign. The Democrats are under attack for being under financial obligations to a single creditor, not partisan attacks, but from their own affiliation. They want to get out from under Mr. Raskob's financial control, or the presumption of it. So they are organizing a popular campaign to pay off their notes.

It is reported that the replies are disturbing. Too many of the faithful say they would be glad to contribute, but they are dry and do not propose to put up money to run a wet campaign or finance a party which is dominated by a bunch of wets, or with the likelihood that they will be promoting a wet candidate on a wet platform.

Political Navy League.
St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Navy League, despite its claims to the contrary, is a political organization. It has been active for years on behalf of a big navy. Its propagandists have penetrated into every part of the country, always in the guise of patriotism. Ordinarily there would not be great objection to this, since all the people are naturally loyal and friendly to the Navy; but when the Navy League assumes to set itself up as a self-constituted admiralty and can make such charges against the President as Mr. Gardiner has made, it becomes a nuisance.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Post Commended for Editorial on "Senate Socialists" — Writer Thinks Democrats and Progressives Want the Depression to Continue.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to commend The Post for the editorial entitled "Senate Socialists." It was very true in its statement that in reality the Senate insurgents are marching under the banner of socialism. Yet, they have the gall to call themselves Republican Progressives. The name "socialist paranoiacs" would suit them better, for they are laboring under the delusion that economic laws and human nature can be changed overnight. Given free rein they would plunge the United States into conditions rivaling Soviet Russia.

The editorials of The Post that expose the true aims of Democratic and insurgent demagogues have very good educational value and should be put in pamphlet form and distributed to voters in those States where the Progressives seek congressional seats. Then the voters would know the truth.

I notice that business throughout the Nation seems to be improving. But watch the Democrats and Progressives in Congress do all they can to halt it. They only thrive on hard times, and don't want to see business conditions improve until after the presidential election in 1932. They are not worrying over the distress of the unemployed. If anything, they are glad that the depression occurred for they think that it will result in a Democratic or Progressive President being elected next year.

Observer Proposes Renovation of Public Statues in Preparation for Bicentennial and Beautification of City.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With the George Washington Bicentennial to be held next year, which will draw tens of thousands of additional visitors to the Capital, might it not be an excellent idea to renovate the many public statues that adorn the squares of the city?

It is a deplorable fact that these statues, erected to perpetuate the memories of our great men, are allowed to deteriorate into a condition that is not only extremely unsightly but incompatible with the respect due to the memories of those men that they were constructed to perpetuate.

An amazing improvement in appearance has been wrought by cleaning business buildings, and at a very small cost the same process could be used to beautify the statues of the city.

Many of these statues are so covered with stain and dirt that the features and inscriptions are almost obliterated. Certainly, to beautify these statues, which after all, are points of interest to visitors, would considerably enhance the beauty of the National Capital.

OBSERVER.

Unique Plan Suggested for Getting Rid of Starlings on Pennsylvania Avenue.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Alfred Sandboy has suggested a plan for ridding the Avenue of starlings. I have a much better plan than his and a more economical one. Why not have all the Progressive members of Congress meet at Peace Monument at dusk, each having a horn in his possession to be blown while walking up the Avenue in order to scare the starlings away? I think it would be best to have Senator Borah lead the parade, Senator La Follette in the middle, and Senator Hiram Johnson bring up the rear. If the noise from the horns of the leaders is not sufficient to start the starlings in flight, it is certain that Senator Johnson will be capable of dislodging the birds from their perches.

This unique procession will terminate at Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. This is as close as the Progressives will ever get to the White House. The Treasury Department must be securely locked on this evening.

LINES FOR POPULAR SONGS.

A song should tell a story, so the publishers declare,
And there should be a snappy line to fit a catchy air.
So here are lines a-plenty to the music writers tossed:
"Some may call you red-hot Mable but to me you're just a frost!"
"The night I found you in his arms I really found you out!"
"It isn't the depression, it's my girl I'm mad about!"
"Let's carry on together, now the best of men are broke."
"She must have a sense of humor, for she's married to a joke."
"You'll weary of your dancing man in just a little while!"
"Don't turn your nose up, Sally, you are prettier when you smile!"
"If I can't have your kisses, you can't burn my gasoline, I'm a lover, not a chauffeur—just remember that, Irene."
"If you think that I'm Dumb Dora, you will find I know the score."
"All I ask is your forgiveness for the night I slammed the door!"
"When I tell you that I love you does it any difference make?
Have a heart! Take pity on me! All I'm asking is a break!"
"Don't tell me that your mother tells you everything she knows!"
"If you feel that way about it let our book of memories close;"
"The fairest peach that ever grew possessed a heart of stone,"
"When you are out with someone else don't think I'll be alone."

GLASS AIDS HOOVER ON ECONOMIC PLANS

Bipartisan Program Moves Forward in Conferences With Many Others.

(Associated Press.)

The bipartisan emergency economic program moved along yesterday at a series of conferences revolving about President Hoover and Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia.

The President called Senator Glass to the White House from his Lynchburg, Va., home to go over his ideas and plans on the financial situation. A fairly general understanding between Mr. Hoover and the Democratic spokesman on banking legislation was reached.

Later, Eugene Meyer, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, and a group of the board's experts called on Senator Glass at the Capitol. Earlier in the day, George L. Harrison, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, conferred with Glass.

Senator Glass said the various conferences had no relation and the Federal Reserve officials insisted no immediate new steps were in prospect.

Hoover Confers on Homes.

Mr. Hoover spent nearly all morning in conference with a group of real estate and insurance men, bankers and builders on plans to accelerate home building and some relation between this conference and the subsequent moves was seen.

Senator Glass is a coauthor of the Federal Reserve act, and there was some speculation on whether Federal funds were to be made available in any way for the unannounced home-building program.

Senator Glass has opposed opening to any extent the doors of the Federal Reserve System for the rediscounting of new paper, and the fact that he and the President found themselves in general accord quieted speculation of any drastic move along this line.

In this connection the Virginia senator yesterday announced opposition to the legislative proposals advanced yesterday by Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan. However, they will be considered by his special banking committee.

United Front Evident.

The day's round of conferences was taken as fresh evidence of the intention of the administration to seek a united front in dealing with the Nation's economic situation, in accordance with the bipartisan understanding reached at the White House parley last month.

There is every indication that Mr. Hoover intends to leave to Congress the decision on details of carrying through the general emergency program agreed upon at that conference of Republican and Democratic congressional leaders.

Already there is evidence of widespread views as to how this agreement shall be carried out specifically, and considerable debate is in prospect, but there is no evidence that it will follow partisan lines.

Senator Vandenberg, for instance, would increase the amount of credit paper eligible for rediscount by the Federal Reserve system. Senator Bulkley, Democrat, of Ohio, and Senator Glass would leave the Federal Reserve system alone and carry out the emergency program through other Government agencies, such as the Federal Land Bank system. No agreement on the form of the legislation is in prospect for some time.

Men at Conferences.

Those present at the White House conference on homes yesterday were: Secretary Lamont, William A. Starrett, Starrett Bros. & Eken, New York; John M. Gries, executive secretary of the housing conference; Frederick H. Ecker, president, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.; William E. Best, president, U. S. The transfer of Mr. Podoski to the foreign office in Warsaw causes much regret among his host of friends in Washington; it is with equal regret that he bids au revoir. For he declares that his departure is only for a period of time, and to insure his return, Mr. Podoski, with a large group of friends, performed a little ceremony yesterday afternoon, derived from an old Roman custom. The group met on the new Memorial Bridge in Potomac Park and each gave Mr. Podoski a penny which he tossed into the river, according to the old custom inaugurated by the Roman soldiers, who before they went forth to battle tossed a coin of the realm into the Tiber to insure their safe return.

Red Cross to Help Disabled Veterans

"Special Charge" Ordered to Find Work or Relief for 75,000.

(Associated Press.)

The unemployment problem of 75,000 disabled veterans, as shown by returns from a Nation-wide questionnaire, was tackled yesterday by the American Red Cross. Chairman John Barton Payne instructed the 3,600 chapters of the Red Cross to get in touch with these veterans with a view to finding them work or providing relief if they were in distress.

He pronounced this group the Red Cross "special charge" during this period of unemployment, and urged utilizing all community machinery to meet relief needs. "The chapter will not be content merely to refer the case to another agency and then forget it," Judge Payne said.

E. C. Babcock, commander of the disabled American veterans' organization, who asked the survey, pledged his organization to investigate the cases of the 13,124 men who claimed they were unfitted for employment, and solicited Red Cross aid for those able to work.

What Today Means to You

"SCORPIO."

IF November 4 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:30 a. m. to 1:30 p. m., from 5:15 p. m. to 7 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11:20 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:30 a. m. to 9 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3:40 p. m.

The astrological picture for November 4 is not clearly indicated. You do not seem to be beset with dangers. On the other hand, there are no illuminating stars of good luck shining over your head. It would be advisable to go along the even tenor of your way, and to avoid entering into any disputes. A romantic attachment is shown.

The child born on this November 4 is shown to have both reliability and affection. It will be a clear thinker, a plodding worker, a cheerful companion and a loyal friend. Much humor and gaiety is indicated, and it will always try to have a good time through life.

Much energy and enterprise is shown in the horoscope of those born on a November 4. You are a progressor with the time, and the attic of your brain is seldom allowed to become cluttered with the rubbish of the past. Your convictions are solid, but are not without elesticity; your ideas are positive and firm, but they are not set. You get along well with your associates because you are both tolerant minded and understanding. You never place yourself on a saintly pedestal or attempt a holier-than-thou attitude. The kindliness of your speech, the frankness of your nature and the straightforwardness of your actions gain for you the love and respect of your friends.

You seldom allow your work to get on your nerves; you do your best, and are willing to let things go at that. You do not fuss over details, but you never slight what you consider to be essentials. You are liberal with your praise and chary with your criticisms. Gossip can seldom be traced to your lips, nor a broken confidence laid at your door.

You are capable of very deep feelings, and are not ashamed to show them. You have a natural hunger for your share of love and admiration, and you become depressed when you are left out in the cold. You will be in love with love many times before you tie up with your life mate.

Successful people born on November 4:

Edward S. Ables, actor.
Corine Griffith, film actress.
Don Alvarado, movie actor.
Dixie Lee, movie star.
Will Rogers, movie star.
James Douglass, mining engineer.

FRANCES M'DONALD

Marriage at Eighteen.

DEAR Frances McDonald: I am so sick with despair. I hope you can help me with your good advice.

My husband and I met at 16 and married at 18. We have been married five and one-half years and have four lovely children.

He got running around to dances and eventually of course went out with girls. There have been times when we have been very happy together and others when we quarreled and I even received physical abuse at his hands. After these times he would be so contrite and be the same as before we were married, loving, courteous, and I forgave him, of course.

I still love him, very dearly, but my pride is beginning to balk. I have found out that he has been going out again. I knew he went to dances when he went out, but we have been getting along so good—he is always loving me, calls me sweetheart, etc. I didn't think he was cheating again.

I am heartbroken. I had a talk with him and all he will say is "Do what you like." He admits he doesn't want to stop running around. He wants a good time. He says he cares only for me, the others are just amusement, but he doesn't intend to change and so I can use my own judgment.

I found out one of these girls and went to see her. She is married herself and has a child. I'm sorry I even bothered to do it now. She said if he went with others, he might as well go with her. I didn't go to ask her not to go with him, but to tell her, if she did, she was getting herself in trouble, that I intended to get a divorce and would use her name.

But that's a side issue, for my husband doesn't care anything about her, she's just one of the variety.

However, I can't make a decision. My common sense says divorce him, but my heart won't let me. I can't bear the thoughts of giving him up and breaking up our home. The children, also, are crazy about their dad, and he seems to be over them.

So, Miss McDonald, what shall I do? I love him dearly. He says he loves me but can't settle down and don't know when he will. Please answer as soon as possible.

UNHAPPY.

If you still love your husband there is no reason why you should feel that divorce is the answer to your problem. It is not. He married in childhood and is now growing up. This is hard upon you. And it is one of the reasons that we so heartily disapprove of youthful marriages. It is possible for a girl to be a woman at 18 and ready for all the demands that life makes upon a woman of sacrifice and patience and wisdom. But it is impossible for any 18-year-old youth at that age to be ready to buckle down to double harness and pull fair for all the days of his life with the load tugging heavier and heavier each year. He balks. He prances. He even goes over the traces. And almost upsets the load. He just isn't broken yet. If his teammate is excitable and as unbroken as he is, then there is a nasty spill. But if his teammate is willing to take a little extra load for just a little while they may hope to bring the load safely home and dog-trot along after that in fairly comfortable fashion.

You must not be "sick with despair," dear girl. You must believe him when he tells you that he loves only you. It is undoubtedly true. But he has never gone to dances and is the sort that craves that sort of superficial and artificial enjoyment. You care nothing for all that and find happiness in your home and babies. Because you are a woman full-grown. He is still in the stage of growth that demands the thrills of adolescence—jazz, noise, excitement. It will pass. He will grow up. You will be a calm gray-haired couple one of these days, worrying about the wild didoes of your grandchildren. Can you believe that? Well, you had better believe it, for that is just what this wise old owl sees ahead for you—so won't you try to see it too? Smile and say you do! And soon you will be dog-trotting along, as pretty a team as ever pulled a load! It's been done a thousand times—and never a spill. Giddyap!

Art Interprets the Mode

Black wool crepe, cut on form-fitting lines and with an adjustable scarf collar, makes a smart between-seasons coat. (A New York model.)

New York, November 4.

DEAR DARE: I have some awfully good wool crepe dresses that have been kept in mothballs for several seasons. Now, I'd like to wear them, but they just don't look right around the neck and sleeve. Could you suggest a few ways in which I might bring them up-to-date?"

Yes, my dahr-ling, I can and will suggest some ways to bring that neck and shoulder line up to date, 'n' this season of contrasting materials and interesting and varied neck and shoulder treatments is the time to bring out your old clothes and get away with them.

In the first place, if you can't find little extra pieces of material that can be spared from the frock itself, buy some smart contrasting color, either silk or wool, and use this. As the season progresses, the daytime neckline gets higher and higher, which can be achieved by a square yoke and shallow upstanding collar. Another smart neckline height is just to the base of the throat. This is extremely trying, though, unless you soften it with a narrow edge of wool lace, or a softly draped scarf arrangement of some sort.

And if you would have a wide shouldered effect, as what woman wouldn't, why not make wide notcher revers of a gay contrasting color? Ever so many of the newer, smarter frocks use these revers in single or double arrangements, and these revers are left loose so that they may be fastened crisscross for variety! Then, if you have a very wide and shallow yoke, this gives an effect of shoulder broadness, as do epaulets and tiny shoulder capes, which you can attach to your old frock easily.

It's surprising, isn't it, that there do exist lots of lovely ladies who prefer their coats furless? Or it was, until the couturiers began doing such interesting things with just plain cloth coats which resulted in models of anything but "just-plainness!" There's the coat sketched today, for instance. Isn't it smart with its form-fitting lines, adjustable scarf collar and sleeves with low puffs and two bows? It is made of heavy black wool crepe which shows up the perfection of cut and fit beautifully.

* * * * *

If you're one of the lovely ladies who really like 'em furless, you are as smart as anyone, if you distinguish your coat in some other way!

And if you have wondered how the new high necklines look, I've sketched you a little blouse of white crepe romain which accentuated the neckbase line with a shoulder yoke and three plain pearl buttons.

* * * *

Three and a half yards of material, a half hour of time and the know-how that you may obtain by sending your stamped, self-addressed envelope right off to the Dare department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet, and you'll be the proud possessor of the loveliest nightie-negligee combination that you can imagine! Really, it's different from any other nightgown and negligee that you've ever seen, and in its classic simplicity, flatters your figure unbelievably. You'll want a milyun of them in various fabrics and colors for yourself, and another milyun to give to favorite friends, so you'd better send for the leaflet right this minute!

Au revoir!

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

THE FINESSE COMPLEX.

IT is a wise Contract player who knows when to take his finesses and when to leave them alone when players first begin to acquire expertness in play many of them develop what might be termed the "Finesse Complex." As a result they unnecessarily finesse, thereby losing contracts which might be made by correct play. Today's hand is an example.

South—Dealer.

The Bidding

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
2◇(1)	2♡(2)	Pass(3)	Pass
2NT(4)	Pass(5)	3◇	3♡
5◇	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—South has a practically solid trump suit with 4½ honor tricks. His bid on two diamonds is therefore safe.

2—West's bid of two hearts, though vulnerable, is not too daring. The hand contains 3 honor-tricks plus and strong distributional value.

3—North knows that he will have an opportunity to give his distributional Raise later in the bidding.

4—Disclosing a stopper in the suit adversely bid.

5—In view of South's strong bid, West cannot continue with a silent partner.

West opened the Singleton diamond. The Opening lead of a heart might give the dealer an advantageous play and West was unwilling to disturb his tenace situation in the club suit. When South studied the combined hands he could see that his contract was certain if he could limit hi. club losers to 1 trick, as his only other losing card was a heart. This, of course, was a certainty if East held the club King, but South was without information as to distribution of any of the suits. The finesse would suggest itself at once as the way to play the hand, but South, while holding this play in reserve, decided to make it as safe as possible. He next laid down the Ace of Spades and led a small trump to the Dummy to lead the Singleton heart toward his tenace combination. East won the trick to help out his partner who might have an undesireable hand from which to lead. He led a club up to dummy's weakness. South let it run and West won, but was through. He had nothing to lead but a heart or a club.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Question: On what is "valuation language" based?

Answer: On the standard table of honor-tricks, the distributional count and the ruffing values in Dummy's hand. The sum total of these values makes up the playing-trick strength of the partnership.

FLOWERING PLANTS FOR THE HOUSE.

WHILE all the nice things we may say about foliage plants are true, we must admit that they are rather slow at times and are not exactly "gay and giddy," nor are they fragrant. Of course, we must have them if our homes are to be really livable, but they never exactly fill the special niche as do the flowering plants.

Foliage plants are more adaptable, though less decorative. They do not require the same attention as do the flowering varieties. Their wants may be definite, but they are fewer.

The first requisite of practically every flowering plant is sunshine. Some varieties demand more than others. Plants that produce their blooms in the growing shoot, such as the heliotrope or begonia, need a great deal of sun. The heliotrope should always be placed in a south window and a begonia should be where it will have morning sun such as it will receive in an eastern window. A bay window, provided it faces the south, is the best place for geraniums. To show how they appreciate such a location, you will notice that in two weeks after you bring them into the house, all their leaves will face the light.

While sunshine is perhaps their greatest requirement, flowering plants must also have an abundance of both heat and water if they are to fulfill their mission.

If the temperature where flowering plants is kept remains around 65 degrees during the day and does not drop much below 55 degrees at night, they will remain quite healthy during the two coldest months of the year, and, while they may not flower profusely, they will be storing up strength to unfold more buds as the season progresses and the days grow longer.

The following plants should all do well in a room that has a southern window and where the air is kept fresh: Abutilon, heliotrope, lantana, any of the primrose family, impatience, African violet, cineraria and fuchsia. It is well in the case of any of these plants to keep the surface soil in the pots quite loose and to remove the dead or dying foliage and flowers.

Jobless Women Spend For Clothes, Not Food

New York, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—Unemployed women who seek jobs through the emergency relief committee spend their last funds for clothing instead of food, according to Mrs. Harry Field, in charge of the Williams Street Application Bureau.

"And they're right," said Mrs. Field. "They have to, because employers invariably choose the young, attractive and well dressed woman. Just because most of our applicants are well dressed, don't get the idea they're not hungry. For they are. We have investigated and learned the true state of affairs."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

ACID AND ALKALI-ASH FOODS.

A PERSON who has symptoms that are commonly ascribed to acidosis should have a blood examination to determine the degree of alkalinity. If this is impossible, careful study of the reactions of several specimens of urine will have to suffice. This is recommended, because the symptoms of alkalosis, or too much alkali are almost identical with those of the opposite condition, acidosis, or too much acid.

The symptoms of acidosis are due to excess of any one of several acids, one of which is the acid ash, which results from eating too much food of one kind and too little of another. This article has to do principally with the prevention of acidosis due to this cause.

According to Dr. V. E. Levine, the acid producing foods are all of the breads and cereals, and all the products of grains. In his list, whole wheat, shredded wheat, whole wheat flour, and oatmeal head the list, with a rating of 12, and white bread and buckwheat flour end it with one of 7. Yellow of egg is much higher, being given a rating of 25. The white is rated 5, and the entire egg, 11.

Among the meats and fish, smoked herring leads with a rating of 18, and beef juice is lowest with one of 3. Other meats and fish rank, from above downward, in this order: Oysters, dried beef, lean ham, codfish, round beef free from fat, whitefish, salmon, sardines, beef steak, liver, veal, chicken, turkey, pork, lamb, blackfish, halibut, trout, haddock, kidney, and pork sausage. Walnuts and peanuts are on the acid list.

It will be noted that the meats having the greatest acid content are those that have been dried. It is the concentration of substance, by reason of the drying and not the composition of the fresh meat itself, that makes these foods run high in acids.

The alkali or base ash foods are headed by figs and dried beans (both concentrated by drying), and are followed by other foods in the order given: Olives, soy beans, spinach, watermelon, dried beans, chard, fresh lima beans, rutabagas, chestnuts, almonds, parsnips, beets, carrots, dates, raisins, canned lima beans, rhubarb, celery, cucumbers; lettuce, potatoes, pineapple, muskmelon, fresh chestnuts, fresh apricots, sweet potatoes, cabbage, fresh tomatoes, fresh string beans, cauliflower, lentils, cherries, orange juice, oranges, currants, lemons, condensed milk, dried peas, peaches, lemon juice, grape juice, apples, mushrooms, fresh peas, string beans, radishes, squash, turnips, pears, grapes, onions and coconuts.

Dieting is not the only method of prevention of acidosis in children. Some are subject to such attacks because of rickets. They need more sunlight and air, and more cod liver oil, viosterol and radiated foods. Some need more calcium; others need to alter their mode of living.

In the treatment of acute attacks of acidosis it is still customary to give soda. Levine quotes Clarke and Dow: "Our own experience in the treatment of acidosis with alkalis has led us to believe that if one wishes to succeed in his care of these suddenly stricken children, some treatment other than alkali is necessary. We have injected whole blood subcutaneously, with the mother as donor. Recovery was gratifying."

THERE ARE MANY CAUSES.

Mrs. M. J. writes:

1. What is the cause of glaucoma?
2. Is high blood pressure one cause?
3. What is the cure, if any?
4. When the first symptoms just begin to show, can the disease be checked?
5. How long does it take before the vision is destroyed?

REPLY.

1. There are many causes—diabetes, high blood pressure, cataract and others.
2. Yes.
3. Since there are so many conditions that cause this eye trouble, it follows that some cases of it are cured. Some are held in check for many years or for life—and some are incurable. Removing the cause is one cure. Putting drops in the eyes is another, in a sense. Operation is required for many cases.
4. In many cases it can be.
5. Again there is variation. Given proper care, vision may be retained many years, or permanently.

...OUT IN FAIRFAX WILL DISCUSS FAIR

Incumbrance of Trust Note of $15,000 Held by Baird to Be Considered.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Fairfax 168.

The board of directors of the Fairfax County Fair Association will hold a special meeting this evening in the offices of Secretary Robert D. Graham in the Richardson Building at Fairfax, Va. The fate of the Fair Association is somewhat in doubt because of financial difficulties.

The fair grounds and buildings at Fairfax are incumbered with a first trust note of $5,000, which is held by the National Bank of Fairfax. This note, it is stated, has been overdue for some years but the interest payments have been kept up. The State bank examiner has recently objected to the bank holding an overdue note any longer and has notified the bank officials that it will be necessary for them to foreclose on the note. Action by the bank has been held up pending the outcome of the stockholders meeting this month.

Second Trust Notes.

The second trust notes totaling $7,500 are held by a number of persons with investments ranging from $100 to $1,000. It is said that the interest on these notes are also overdue. The directors meeting at Fairfax this evening is for the purpose of formulating plans to be submitted to the stockholders at their annual meeting.

The proposed cut-off of the Lee highway around the town of Fairfax will cut through the exhibition section of the fair grounds and will greatly increase the value of the associations' holdings. Bids for the construction of this cut-off were opened by the State highway commission in Richmond yesterday. Several of the trust holders have stated that while the Fair Association has voted to give the necessary right-of-way to the State none of the trust holders have been asked nor have they given their permission.

It is expected that the State will proceed with the construction of the road before deeds are given to the property, leaving the adjustment to be settled later by court action and condemnation.

Thirteen person were sentenced in Prince Georges County Circuit Court yesterday at the end of the current term. The penalties meted out included one life imprisonment, prison terms aggregating 44 years, and a fine of $200. A number of cases which remain to be tried will be held over for an auxiliary term later in the fall.

Receives 10 Years.

John Matthews, convicted of a statutory offense against a young colored girl, was given 10 years, and William Landis Lewis was sentenced to eight years on one conviction of manslaughter, and two years on another indictment to which he pleaded guilty. These two sentences run concurrently.

Wilfred Braxton, who pleaded guilty to second degree murder, was sentenced to serve five years in the penitentiary. Because he believed he was acting in self-defense, the judge said he was given the minimum sentence. James L. Jones, convicted of stealing auto tires, was given a sentence of three years in the House of Correction.

Horace Beach was sentenced to one year in the House of Correction on each of two charges of receiving money under false pretenses. 13 Auto Deaths Bring Strict Maryland Tests

The thirteen auto deaths in Maryland last week have led Col. E. Austin Baughman, commissioner of motor vehicles, to order all Maryland cars entering Baltimore to pass through the safety lanes for inspection.

Under the Maryland law all cars must have brakes, lights and other equipment tested each fall and must have faulty devices repaired. The compulsory order merely hurries the inspection. Washington cars and cars from other States do not have to undergo the test, but it will be given free, if they request it.

Rice described one of the men as weighing about 200 pounds, wearing a yellow shirt and brown trousers. Police have been unable to obtain any of the bandits.

Later in the night P. E. Shultz, of Seminary, Va., reported to the police that five men attempted to hold him up while en route to his home from Dumfries, Va., and that he hit their car and drove on.

HOOVER TO BE HOST TO FOOTBALL TEAM

Members of Leland Stanford Squad of 1894 to Meet Here November 12.

A college football cheer may ring through the White House on the night of Thursday, November 12. Part of the team that made football history for Leland Stanford University in 1894 with Herbert Hoover as financial manager is gathering with him there for a reunion.

President Hoover was advised a short time ago that his old team was contemplating a reunion in the East. Immediately, one of his secretaries said yesterday, he invited them to meet at the White House.

It was a successful team that played for Stanford in 1894. Under the coaching of the late Walter Camp it won the championship of the West, conquered its rival, California, and, turning in a triumph over a new intersectional rival, the University of Chicago, coached by Alonzo Stagg.

The men who will gather to talk over old times with the President at the White House dinner likewise have been successful.

They will come from Honolulu and from New York, from San Francisco and from Dallas, Tex. Some are bankers, some are physicians, one is a State senator and another a rancher.

The list of guests given out at the White House yesterday numbered twelve. They are Jackson E. Reynolds, president of the First National Bank of New York; Paul M. Downing, San Francisco engineer and vice president of the Pacific & Electric Co.; Abraham Lewis, Honolulu banker; W. W. Olcutt, Los Angeles engineer; Dr. Julius B. Frankenheimer, San Francisco physician; William M. Harrelson, of San Francisco, vice president of the Bank of Italy; Joel Y. Field, Dallas, Tex., rancher; State Senator Herbert S. Hicks, of Illinois; Martin H. Kennedy, Washington, D. C., lawyer; Charles Field, New York author; Judge William Campbell, Washington State, and Dr. Guy Cochran, Los Angeles physician.

Will Irwin, author, who attended the university during the '90's, has been invited and Secretary Wilbur, of the Interior Department, president of the university and now on leave of obsence, probably will be present also.

B. F. Wyville Is Named Marlboro Tax Official

Bernard F. Wyville, of Marlboro, Md., yesterday was appointed tax assessor for Mellwood and Marlboro districts by the Prince Georges County commissioners at the regular weekly meeting. Mr. Wyville is a contractor and builder.

The commissioners yesterday also received the report of the county police court for October, which shows a total of 713 cases tried. The county will receive $3,438.05 in fines, of a total of $8,769.55, the remainder going to the State.

Suspected Rum Car Chase Ends With Bottles Broken

One man was arrested and Montgomery County police are searching for a second as result of a wild chase through Gaithersburg and along the road to Quince Orchard, Md., yesterday, in the course of which County Policeman Ralph Howard fired several shots at a fleeing automobile suspected of carrying rum.

Charles Howes, 35 years old, Rockville, was arrested and charged with possession of intoxicating liquor, intent to sell liquor and breaking glass on a public highway.

Warrants charging Charles H. Weaden, 30, Rockville, alleged driver of the car, with reckless driving, possession with intent to sell and breaking glass on the highway have been issued and police are looking for him. Howes' hands were badly cut by glass.

Policeman Howard chased the car at a high rate of speed over the narrow, winding Quince Orchard road. Throughout the chase, the policeman reported, Howes was throwing out jars. When he finally stopped the car the policeman found only broken glass and a strong odor he identified as liquor.

Weaden jumped out and escaped. He is at liberty on an appeal bond following conviction on liquor charges on which he was sentenced to pay a fine of $200 or serve six months in jail and a nine-month jail sentence was suspended.

MARYLAND OFFICERS PRAISE LABORATORY

Research Quarters in New Rockville Courthouse to Be Fully Equipped.

State department of health officials expressed great gratification over the action of the Montgomery County commissioners in establishing a branch bacteriological laboratory in the new Rockville courthouse, in a letter presented to the commissioners yesterday by Berry E. Clark, clerk to the county commissioners.

The letter was signed by Dr. Walter N. Kirkman, chief of the division of personnel and accounts of the State department of health at Baltimore.

The State offered to provide a full-time laboratory expert and assistant and assume the expense of operation if the county would expend the initial equipment cost of approximately $1,500, to which the county commissioners agreed.

Dr. Benjamin C. Perry, of Bethesda, and Dr. William T. Pratt, county health officer, have been appointed a committee to take charge of the equipping.

The county commissioners yesterday authorized the extension of Avenel road for a distance of 615 feet toward White Oak and awarded the contract for the macadamization of the Glen-Travilah road at a cost of $3,837.64, to J. Herbert Johnson, the low bidder. The contract for furnishing 200 long tons of coal for the courthouse heating plant was awarded to the Rockville Fuel & Feed Co., at a price of $3.98 a ton.

Silver Spring Boy Burned in Blast

Recent Arrival Starts Fire by Pouring Gasoline on Coals.

Douglas Mason, 19 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy S. Mason, of 8420 Cedar avenue, Silver Spring, Md., is recovering from his first encounter with coal fires. He was seriously burned several days ago when he attempted to light a coal fire at his home while his parents were away.

Young Mason had never seen a coal fire until he came here as his experience in a Western city from which he came had been with gas and wood fires. He made five or six attempts to build the fire and then threw a bucket of gasoline on the coals. The gasoline exploded, setting fire to his clothing and temporarily blinding the youth, who ran out into the yard and fell down a steep bank on the lawn. This is believed to have extinguished the flames.

He returned to the house and smeared lard over his hands and climbed into a tub of cold water, where his mother found him some time later. Dr. W. R. Haynes, of Silver Spring, was called and treated the youth for burns on the face, hands, arms and shoulders.

Arlington Delegates Back From Convention

In addition to reports of various State officers and chairman, Mrs. J. K. Bowman, chairman of the State convention recently held at Richmond, gave a detailed report of the handling of that affair.

Net income of Capital Traction Co. for September totaled $9,452.49, its statement of operations filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission, reveals. This represents a decrease of $20,807.14 from that of the month last year. For the nine months of the present year, it amounts to $275,481.51, a decline of $44,908.78 from that of the corresponding period in 1930.

Distribution of drugs and prepared remedies has been affected to a lesser degree by general trade inactivity than have most other lines of direct consumer products, says the Standard Statistics Co., of New York, in a current survey which continues in part: "Selling prices of drugs and medicines have been lowered moderately, but reduced raw material costs, as well as management and distribution economies, maintained first half year earnings within 2 per cent of those for the similar 1930 period. Advertising expenses in most instances are moderately larger than a year ago. Nevertheless, most well situated organizations will be able to report comparatively satisfactory earnings for the full current year.

"Sales of cosmetics and allied products have been well sustained during the current depression, although a decided shift to lower priced products is being witnessed. Moreover, rapid changes in consumer preference have continued, and all units have not been able to maintain their former important places in the industry. With the continuation of such conditions, the long term outlook of even those organizations which currently are the most strongly situated must be considered somewhat uncertain."

Cigarette Production Drops.

With the single exception of 1920, production of cigarettes will show a decrease this year for the first time since the industry became important, it is announced by the Brookmire Economic Service, Inc., which expresses the opinion that higher cigarette prices are a more important factor in the decline than the business depression.

An interesting feature of present tobacco statistics, it is observed, is the rather large increase being shown now in the consumption of snuff and of manufactured tobaccos. Snuff, which moved up to a new high level in 1922, the first year following the post-war depression, has seen more consumption each year since that time than in any year prior to 1922.

Unlike the consumption of snuff, manufactured tobaccos, as distinguished from cigarettes, declined prior to and during the post-war depression and have never since reached their previous status. The increasing emphasis on smoking tobacco now being made by the major tobacco companies will bear watching, it is said.

Shell Pipe Line Income.

Shell Pipe Line Corporation reports for the third quarter of the current year gross income of $4,574,333, compared with $4,817,436 the previous quarter, and a balance before providing for 1931 Federal tax of $3,403,578 against $3,726,448. Revenue from transportation of crude oil and miscellaneous income amounted to $5,717,187 and cost of transportation and general expenses totaled $1,142,853. Deductions, including interest paid or accrued, depreciation, retirements, &c., were $1,170,754. The surplus of the corporation on September 30 last, after payment of dividends, amounted to $13,277,379, against $11,678,800 on June 30 last.

S. Palmer Harman, financial newspaperman and contributor of financial material to leading magazines for the past eighteen years, has joined the Standard Statistics Co., of New York, as editor of its Standard Facts and Forecasts service.

Following graduation from Washington and Lee University in 1913, Mr. Harman was with the Wall Street Journal for two years. In 1915, he joined the financial department of the New York Evening Post, serving as assistant to Alexander Dana Noyes, then financial editor, and continuing with the Post for five years.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Wholesale profit taking for recent big buyers led to a sharp setback in wheat prices today, but not until the market had scaled new heights. The maximum fall from the day's peak, a new top record for the season, was 2¾ cents a bushel. Contributing to the downward swing of the market was widespread belief that the most unexpected extent and unusual speed of price advances of late had made some reaction inevitable.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅞@1¼ cents under yesterday's finish, corn was off from 3-4 decline to ¼ gain, oats 1½@1⅞ down, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 2 cents.

Moscow's reiteration of denials that Russia had withdrawn from the world market as an exporter of wheat had but slight effect as an immediate bearish influence. The trade hesitated for quite a few minutes at the outset, and then proceeded with storms of new buying that were unchecked until quotations had whirled upward to 3¾ cents above where the advance started on October 5. Going parallel with the fresh buying fervor were advices that the Liverpool market was excited because denials of this Russia is to withdraw as an exporter, actual suspension of wheat offerings from Russia continued unabated. In the violent reaction that followed the extreme new price bulges, some of the heavy selling was associated with explanations that apparent dearth of wheat offerings at Liverpool was at least partly due to uncertainties of British exchange rates. The gyrations of sterling had caused tenders of North American and Argentine wheat to be held back in the hands of overseas agents. Furthermore, late Liverpool wheat quotations were less bullish than was the case earlier. On the downswings of Chicago prices, however, good buying developed again, with quick rallies numerous, and a two-sided market ensued during the remainder of the day, with the pit tone nervous to a degree seldom equaled.

Corn and oats were governed chiefly by wheat market changes. An improved shipping demand for corn existed. An opposite factor was favorable weather for completion of husking.

SPOKESMAN OF RAIL WORKERS FAVORS FEDERAL TRADE GUIDE

are up for discussion in executive session. Another conference will be held before Congress meets.

Robertson said he had received no word from R. H. Aishton, chairman of the Association of Railway Executives, concerning a joint conference between railway executives and employes to reach an agreement on their problems. A conference was requested Monday night by the labor representatives.

In his testimony before the committee, Robertson said the number of railway employes in the last few years had dropped from 2,000,000 to 1,250,000 and that another 40,000 or 50,000 would be out of work now if the amount of employment available had not been prorated.

Stabilization Efforts Futile.

Replying to La Follette, the witness said the employes had made proposals to the employers for stabilizing work but that little had been accomplished. The railroad managers have proposed nothing along this line, he added.

Robertson said no machinery is available now for balancing production and consumption. He added an economic council would serve as a mirror to reflect changing trends of industry and provide a warning if that were needed.

Expressing the view that conferences between the various interests would aid in stabilization, Robertson said labor now has no voice in the management of industrial enterprise.

"The railroad industry," he added, "would be in much better condition today if there had been cooperation and exchange of ideas."

Outlook Held Discouraging.

Asked the present outlook of the railroad industry from the viewpoint of the employes, Robertson said it was "very discouraging."

The creation of an emergency governmental agency to steer the Nation back to economic efficiency was recommended by Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, to avert what he considers a possible drift toward dictatorship. Hillman said something of that kind would be useful in the future, but called upon Congress to create immediately an agency with sufficient power to deal with the present emergency.

"Industry has failed to cope with the situation," he said. "The Government must step in and assume the responsibility for leadership."

He recommended the creation of a body representative of employers, workers and the community at large "under the direction of Congress in such a way that we can not drift into a dictatorship."

Rail Executives Promise Action on Wage Meeting

Chicago, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The American Association of Railway Executives announced today it has passed along to the "proper officials" the proposal of the Railway Labor Executives Association for a conference on employment stabilization and wages.

R. H. Aishton, chairman of the executives' association, said in a telegram to the labor officials, made public here, that "immediate consideration will be given to your suggestion.

"To bring about immediate consideration," the telegram said, "I have transmitted by wire to L. F. Loree, chairman of the Eastern Presidents Conference; W. R. Cole, chairman of the Southwestern Presidents Conference, and J. W. Higgins, chairman of the Western Executives Association, the text of your proposal.

"The Association of Railway Executives has no jurisdiction over these questions, but realizes its responsibility in assisting to promote general welfare and to aid in restoration of prosperity."

The proposal for the conference was made yesterday in Washington at a meeting of the labor group. It was said at that time that 35,000 railway workers are idle. Need for more stabilized employment was stressed in a statement given out after the meeting.

A similar proposal was rejected last summer by the Association of Railway Executives, Aishton saying at that time that it was believed the questions involved should be treated separately by each of the roads.

CANADIAN CHARGES HIGH SEAS SINKING

patrol boat's commander had said he intended to sink the Sophie E. The schooner Firelight was seized last winter and later was released.

The Sophie E. had cleared from St. Pierre, Miquelon, for "the high seas" and "Nassau" October 29 and arrived off Cape Ann Sunday.

The Canadian craft had been reported off the New England coast off and on since May, 1930. Coast Guard vessels often trailed her, but never found themselves in a position to take action against her. Yesterday, Coast Guard officials revealed, 20 service vessels went out on patrol after information had been received that an effort was to be made by rum-runners to make several large landings during the night.

The Harriet Lane was one of these craft, and reported to have picketed the Sophie E. for four hours before the collision. After the collision the Canadian boat remained afloat three hours. The members of the Sophie E.'s crew, except one, are Newfoundlanders. One is a Nova Scotian.

They were landed at the immigration station, where they were allowed to come and go at will. The British vice consul engaged counsel for them.

Arlington Firemen to Vote.

The Arlington Volunteer Fire Department at its meeting to be held tonight at the firemen's hall will receive nominations for officers and directors for 1932. The election will take place at the December meeting.

DIVORCE BY COURTS IMMINENT IN SPAIN

Cabinet Decree Presented to Assembly to Place Civil Law Above Church.

Madrid, Nov. 3 (A.P.)—A cabinet decree granting to civil courts the sole right to judge marital, divorce and nullification questions, hitherto regulated by ecclesiastical law, was presented today to the Assembly.

Several Catholic deputies are expected to protest against the decree, but few obstacles are seen in the way of final approval by the Assembly.

In presenting the measure, Provisional President Manuel Azana said it was designed to elevate civil law above canonical law in keeping with the trend of the times.

Government ministers said the decree would prepare the nation for the enactment of a specific divorce article in the constitution.

A general provision, allowing divorces to either husband or wife for "just cause" was incorporated in the constitution October 17 by the Assembly by a vote of 169 to 153. That action overthrew laws against divorce which had been in effect for centuries. It was described by Catholic deputies as "another indication of the attempt of Leftists to revolutionize Spanish life entirely."

Today's decree, government ministers said, will warn Spaniards now contemplating separation that they must first consult the civil authorities. The government also expects it to curb a practice of the last five years by which some richer Spaniards with children have obtained nullification by way of Paris.

Whether "Lear" is looked upon by its sponsors as the piece de resistance of the Stratford-Upon-Avon Sakespeare Festival Company's current week of Shakespearean repertoire, I do not know, but certain I am that the week will produce no more profoundly impressive single performance than Randle Ayrton's superb portrayal of the title role in this tragic drama epitomizing all that is poignant in paternal anguish. It was an illuminating, forceful and tremendously sympathetic reading of the part that stood out crystal clear among a gallery of fine portraitures.

The Stratford-Upon-Avon players lay major stress upon the intrinsic value of the Bard's dramas and by an artistic compromise between the barren severity of the Ben Greet Elizabethan settings of the works and the sumptuous productions, say, of Sothern and Marlowe, bring to them new qualities of intimacy and appeal. The stage is continuously set with two levels of a massive forum executed in a dignified and substantial verde antique. The dispersions of scenes is accomplished by painted drops showing through an aperture comprising not more than one-third of the total breadth of the masked-in stage. By this device not only is the atmosphere and spirit of the play admirably created and sustained, but opportunity is presented for the enhancement of Shakespeare's lines by a series of stage pictures that might almost be a succession of old English prints. This was a circumstance liberally availed of last evening.

But the prime virtue of the Stratford-Upon-Avon Festival Co. remains the intelligence and the clarity of its rendering of Shakespeare's text. Here are a group of artists who evidently feel a heavy responsibility and love their work. They render the most difficult passages not alone easily intelligible, but lucid and eloquent. Only occasionally last night was the performance of "King Lear" marred by too heavy emphasis, and then only in one or two comparatively minor roles.

Too much can not be said, I think, of the superlative excellence of Mr. Ayrton's King Lear. He is a figure at once sovereign and imperious, who, through the unnatural cruelty of the two daughters upon whom he has bestowed the generous heritages of his realm slowly crumbles into a pathetic spectacle of senile lunacy and futile despair, to be restored to something of his former state only when succored in the home of the daughter whom he had disinherited and banished from his kingdom. Here, of course, is a rich role that runs the gamut of masculine emotions and experience. For that very reason it can so easily be ruined that Mr. Ayrton's complete encompassment of every light and shade, every nuance, of the part adds to his stature as an actor of the first rank.

His, however, is not the only interpretation bearing the stamp of excellence. Dorothy Massingham and Dorothy Francis, as Gonerii and Regan, the daughters whose perfidy unseated the reason of their father, and Hilda Coxhead, Cordelia, the daughter whose worth her father failed to recognize until too late, are necessarily in sharp contrast, but equally competent.

Among the men, Stanley Howlett, as Kent, the exiled but faithful follower of the king; Eric Maxon, the Earl of Gloucester; Gyles Isham, the natural son of Gloucester, and R. Eric Lee, as the Duke of Albany, offered effective readings. Geoffrey Wilkinson merits especial praise for the rare artistry of his skillful limning of the King's Fool.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

MORE than 1,000 voices will join tonight with the 60 singers of the world-famous Westminster Choir, at Constitution Hall, at 8:15 o'clock, in the "a cappella" concert to be conducted by Dr. John Finley Williamson.

The thousand voices belong to that many choir singers of the Capital City who will take part in this extraordinary choral event, appearing in the vested processional preceding the concert by the guest singers, and joining in the final hymn, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," under Dr. Williamson's direction.

Not less than 50 churches throughout the city will be represented by the local singers taking part in tonight's program.

The visiting choir, by the way, will be heard in a number of new selections, several of which were unearthed in Spain by Dr. Williamson and high officials of that nation for the particular use of the Westminster Choir. "The Death of the Choir Boy" is among these recent additions to the choir's program, which includes also, "The Song of Mary," by Krans; Williams' "A Clear Midnight;" "The Pharisees and the Publican," by Schutz, and others.

Soloists will include Lorean Hodapp, soprano; Nettie Rayle and Elizabeth Jensen, all of whom scored personal triumphs in the capitals of Europe when the choir toured there in 1929.

It came as a bit of surprise to discover in yesterday's published review of "Brief Moment," at the Belasco, that I had seemed to say, "this somewhat abstruse comedy, so CLEARLY written by Mr. Behrman." What I thought, and still think, I intended to say was, "so CLEVERLY written by Mr. Behrman."

You will admit it makes a difference!

About "Brief Moment," it seems to me that Mr. Behrman, the author, has gone sufficiently far into the psychological peculiarities of his two principal characters, Abby Fane and Roderick Dean, to necessitate a clearer and a little more clinical analysis of their final determination to condone all of their respective shortcomings and erase from consciousness the multiplicity of incompatibilities that had brought them to the verge of divorce.

As it is, the final curtain finds them precisely where they were at the beginning of the first act, with no assurance whatever that the disturbing conditions revealed during the three acts will not forthwith be repeated.

Or is it Mr. Behrman's idea to pander to a popular taste for longer bouts by putting on a finish fight of which this is only round one?

And about this Alexander Woollcott. Mr. Woollcott has proved himself a pretty swell reader of a long succession of excessively smart speeches and an actor up to the point that taking naps may be interpreted as suiting the action to the word.

Now let's cast him as Falstaff and give him a chance to move around a little and see if he really can act. Just a little red paint on the nose, Mr. Woollcott!

Mrs. Harriett Hawley Locher, for many years director of the Public Service and Educational Department of the Crandall Theaters in Washington, is in charge of specialized exploitation of "Way Back Home," the first screen vehicle for Seth Parker (Phillips Lord), the world-famous radio character, to be given its world premiere at the RKO-Keith Theater tomorrow night at 8.

As the furthermost outrider of the second Theater Guild production of the current season of the National Theater, "As Husband's Go," Tom Kane was a caller at this desk yesterday.

Back in the remote days of the Great War Mr. Kane was a representative of the Creel committee in Washington for many weeks, in charge of the local presentation of a considerable list of war pictures, including "Pershing's Crusaders," D. W. Griffith's "Hearts of the World," and numerous others.

That Brummelian burlesque entrepreneur, Mr. Jimmy Lake, is promoting a fine attack of laryngitis this week heralding the fact that "Hello Jake" Fields and his "Sugar Babies," current at the Gayety, comprise the season's peak—or do I mean peek?—achievement on Ninth street to date. Mr. Lake, I may add, from a long acquaintanceship, makes very few mistakes. Very few.

Comes a kindly invitation from Mr. James Hall, musical comedy, cinema and vaudeville actor, wowing both genders by a week of personal appearances at the Earle, to lunch with him one day, which the time of the week and my present condition of servitude render it regretfully impossible to accept.

And a note from my charming contemporary Miss Eleanore Wilson, applauding a recent brief tirade appearing here against the lamentable affront offered intelligence by the advance trailer on "The Guardsman" that has been intermittently occupying the screen at the Columbia.

As Miss Wilson says, "It was like putting a 'paste' tag on a bona fide diamond, or giving a bodcarrier a succulent dish and reassuring him that it was only 'stew.'"

Ah, there, Mr. Harriman!

A late communication from RKO officialdom brings tidings that tomorrow night's world premiere of "Way Back Home," starring Seth Parker (Phillips Lord) will be a sort of double-barreled or two-in-one affair.

There has been such a clamor for reservations by both official Washington and the general public that it has been decided to reserve the mezzanine for the former and the orchestra floor for the latter. I leave it to you to determine on which floor you belong.

The unprecedented demand for seats may be traced to two sure causes: First, the tremendous popularity of Seth Parker on the air; second, the recollection fresh in the public mind of the overflow crowds Phillips Lord attracted to the largest auditorium in Washington upon the occasions of his three personal visits last year.

And beside all that is the fact that "Way Back Home" has been proclaimed by those who have previewed it one of the epochal films of later day production.

Well, what if the Akron and the Los Angeles DID soar over Washington at 9:50 a. m., instead of 8:30? That's still the middle of the night, ask anybody.

NEW TRUSTEE ASKED IN MAYFLOWER CASE

Mabel W. Willebrandt Acts for Bondholders in the Supreme Court.

The appointment of a new trustee for the $7,500,000 first trust of the Mayflower Hotel was asked of the District Supreme Court yesterday by Mabel Walker Willebrandt, attorney for a group of men who described themselves as "a Bondholders' Protective Committee."

Pursuant to the request, an order was obtained requiring the named defendants to appear in the District Supreme Court within ten days, exclusive of holidays and Sundays, and show cause why a new trustee should not be appointed, and why an accounting of the management of the hotel should not be given.

Those in whose name the suit was brought were: J. Clifford Folger, 1661 Crescent place northwest; Thomas P. Littlepage, 1829 Wyoming avenue northwest; D. W. Walker, Temple, Calif., and W. Worth Smith, of Richmond, Va. The defendants were Charles C. Moore, Bronxville, N. Y.; Harold C. Moore, Chicago; Kenneth W. Moore, and Charles B. Moore, of Chicago; the Chatham Phenix National Bank & Trust Co., trustee; the American Bond & Mortgage Co., the Mayflower Hotel Co., and the three receivers, John Lewis Smith, J. Miller Kenyon and Rush L. Holland.

The receivers are at present acting only for the second trust bondholders, whom Mrs. Willebrandt originally represented. Recently, she resigned from that position, and now is allied with the first trust interests.

The bill asks that either the District National Bank or the American Security & Trust Co. be substituted for the present trustees.

Rev. J. A. Ryan to Talk On Employment Crisis

The unemployment crisis will be the subject of an address by the Rev. John A. Ryan, director of the department of social action of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, which is to be given tonight at 8 o'clock in Corcoran Hall before the Liberal Club of George Washington University.

Father Ryan is noted as an economist and theologian. He has written several books, among which are included "The Living Age" and "Capital and Labor." He is an advocate of minimum wage legislation.

Reno School Site Being Considered

Question of Elementary at 39th and Fessenden Streets Is Studied.

The question of whether an elementary school has to be built on the Thirty-ninth and Fessenden street site, now in the process of condemnation, is being studied by District officials as they consider the respective merits of two other sites near the Reno reservoir, Maj. D. A. Davison, acting Engineer Commissioner, said yesterday.

Although the appropriations act states that the Thirty-ninth and Fessenden streets site shall be acquired as a location for an elementary school, officials believe this clause in the law may be evaded. Meanwhile, the condemnation proceedings continue.

A decision is expected within another week on the selection of the other site, for the purchase of which there is about $200,000 available. It is proposed to build both a senior high school and an elementary school in the Reno vicinity.

YOUNG BALTIMOREAN TO HANG FOR KILLING

Herman Duker, 21, Scion of Prominent Family, to Die; Aid Gets Life Term.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Herman Webb Duker, 21-year-old scion of a prominent Baltimore family, today was sentenced to hang for the murder of John W. Anderson last April 20.

Dale Lambert, Duker's 19-year-old companion in the attempted holdup, which led to the killing of Anderson, a milk company collector, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

The sentences were passed by Judge Joseph N. Ulman, in criminal court. He found the two boys guilty of first degree murder just a week ago, following their pleas of guilty to the joint indictment charging them with the crime.

Duker received the sentense calmly, stooping from the effect of bullet wounds inflicted by a Los Angeles policeman, who captured him several weeks after the killing of Anderson. He looked steadily at Judge Ulman as he heard the death septence, and then turned and was led limping from the court.

The youth did not hesitate even to speak to his father, Herman S. Duker, lumber manufacturer, as he was led away.

Judge Ulman pronounced sentence after hearing three hours of argument presented by attorneys for the two youths, pleading to avoid the death penalty. The State demanded the capital sentence for both of the youths, holding they were equally guilty, although Duker admitted firing the fatal shot.

Friendly to the Teeth

Just ask any Old Gold smoker!

A good cigarette is like a good friend. It aims to give you pleasure without causing you any annoyance or regrets.

OLD GOLD is that kind of cigarette... and friend. It is not content merely to give you a finer smoke. But it gives it to you without tainting your breath. Without leaving unsightly stains on your teeth, and with far less tendency to stain the fingers.

That's because OLD GOLD is a pure-tobacco cigarette. Free of clinging, staining, oily flavorings.

SECOND MONOXIDE GAS VICTIM IS DEAD

Blood Transfusions Fail as Son's Death Follows His Father's.

Blood transfusions for father and son, Homer and Homer Hiugill, jr., of Asheville, N. C., proved futile when the father died at Emergency Hospital Sunday and the son died there yesterday, both from monoxide gas poisoning suffered last Saturday.

The two men arrived in Washington last week and had rented a cabin at the Washington Tourist Camp while they searched for work here. Saturday they went to sleep in their cabin and left a gas heater turned on. The two men were found several hours later in an unconscious condition.

They were removed to the hospital and physicians there broadcast an appeal Sunday for donors of blood in an attempt to save their lives, and over 80 Washingtonians responded. Several transfusions were given, but the poison had done its work.

A Masonic organization in Asheville wired the hospital authorities to have a local undertaker take charge of the remains; that they would be responsible for the burials.

Although it is believed that they died from the monoxide gas poisoning, no official cause of death has been given pending an inquest by the coroner.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Whether You Occupy One Room or a Large Suite

The Washington Building does not limit its advantage to those who pay for the larger space units—its offices and suites are uniformly desirable.

The dominant decorative note of the lobby and corridors—in marble, bronze and mahogany—gives one an impression of distinction and refinement that is reflected as well in the spacious dignity of the light, airy offices themselves. Six high speed elevators with skilled operators give quick access to upper floors.

The highly efficient staff of an organization of extensive experience in property management keeps constant supervision of the details that contribute to the faultless service that tenants are assured of.

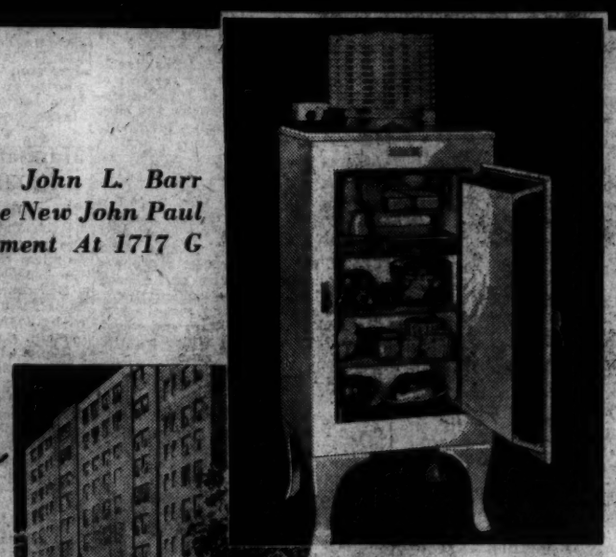
"MORE BUSINESS than we can handle!"

Says John L. Barr
Builder of the New John Paul Jones Apartment At 1717 G Street N. W.



NOT in many years has an apartment house met with the tremendous success of the John Paul Jones. Weeks in advance of completion, every apartment in this new building was leased, and for the last two weeks Mr. Barr has been turning away a steady stream of prospects.

Few business men are in this fortunate position today. It is a real tribute to the ability, the foresight, and the sound business sense of Mr. Barr and his father that they are able to say—"We have more business than we can handle!"

Much of this remarkable success they attribute to the unusually thorough electrical equipment in the John Paul Jones—the General Electric Refrigerators, the L&H Electric Ranges and the complete GE wiring system with its many convenient outlets. Real Estate men who contemplate new building operations will do well to bear in mind these factors in Mr. Barr's recent achievement.

Three Facts That Every Real Estate Man Should Know

1 The General Electric Refrigerator is an important sales-producer in any kind of real estate operation. It is a nationally-advertised, nationally-known and nationally-accepted product that creates a favorable impression on the mind of every prospect. It is sold in Washington by the city's leading electrical house, 100% Washington owned—the National Electrical Supply Company. A man may have no way of telling what brick, what tile, what plaster, or what kind of wall paper has been used—and as a general rule he knows nothing about the construction—but he will see in the GE Refrigerator tangible evidences of REAL VALUE. The John Paul Jones Apartments prove it!

2 The GE wiring system—composed of the best materials that money can buy, and installed by the best workmen obtainable—is your assurance of long-lived dependability. A wiring system that will stand up under every demand put upon it is a sound investment in tenant-satisfaction. The John Paul Jones Apartments prove it!

3 Kitchens with old style equipment become almost unbearably hot and stuffy. For complete comfort, install the dependable L&H Electric Range. This fine unit, with automatic oven control, completely insulated and sturdily built, not only keeps down the temperature, and the volume of the kitchen odors, but gives long and satisfactory service. It gives a wider range of heat control — makes baking an easier, more certain matter—retains the full flavor and rich food-value of meats—and shortens time in the kitchen. Women know this. More and more they are going in search of houses and apartments that are so equipped. The John Paul Jones Apartments prove it!

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE revised, revamped and revitalized Western High grid team experienced little difficulty yesterday afternoon in handing to Eastern High a 25-0 trouncing, which might just as well have been 100-0, since it was a more decisive victory than any of the schools have been able to administer to any team this year. A chilled crowd of 2,500 saw the game.

Stripped of its only two ball-carrying backs, Bus Boyd and Tony Palmer, by early injuries, Eastern was a puerile kitten in the paws of the big horny-handed Western team, whose ranks were given a stiff shot in the arm before the game in the personages of Jim Draper, Turk Teehan and Bill Payne, veteran schoolboy gridders, who returned to the fold at the start of activities.

Return of Trio Big Help.

That Western in no way suffered from the entrance of this battering trio into eligibility may be seen from the fact that it was Draper who scored three touchdowns, Teehan who battered his way to a niche which entitles him to rank as the roughest player in town, and Payne, whose play, offensively and defensively, was generally good all day.

Eastern was never in the picture. It threatened to score only feebly and never threatened to win the game. A fumble, recovered by Bernie Kleb, and a pass, which Referee O'Meara ruled good when "Bones" Courtney was interfered with, gave Eastern the ball, in the second and third periods, respectively, on the Western 30-yard line, but they were forthright smeared by a charging, aggressive, heavy Western line. Eastern's lone chance of scoring a touchdown came on the very last play of the game, when Adams flung a 35-yard pass into the arms of Beuchler, who ran to Western's 25-yard line before disappearing beneath a cavalcade of diving Westerners.

Western, playing straight offensive football, marched 70 yards to the first touchdown in the first four minutes of play. Eastern had received, was popped like a go-cart ramming a battleship, and kicked to Lynham on his 30-yard line. The full power of Western was unleashed at once. The big-driving Draper, Teehan and Hillmary and the high stepping Lynham could be brought down only by the Eastern secondaries, and by one Eastern lineman, Capt. Charlie Mades. Draper put it across and Teehan walked over for the extra point.

Buscher Misses Try For Point.

Gammage's recovery of Minni's fumble on Eastern's 40-yard line paveled the road for Western's second touchdown. Reynolds started the drive with a good 11-yard drive with three Easterners atop him. Draper scored from the 20-yard line, around left end and Payne missed a drop-kick. Another fumble by Minni, recovered this time by Payne, led to the third touchdown. The drive went 34 yards, and erupted Reynolds on its dynamite end to score from the 1-yard line. Lawrence Buscher, biggest lineman of the series, missed a drop-kick for the extra point.

Western wound up its field day beginning with Ireland's interception of a pass by Adams on Western's 40-yard line. In successive first downs the ball went the 60 yards down the field moved by the irrepressible force of the never-tiring Western heavyweights. Draper made it 25-0 from the 1-foot line and Buscher's drop-kick just missed.

A local moving picture house, which issued placards to the fans that the pictures would be shown next week, found its plans disheveled soon after the start of the game when hefty Bus Boyd, while running like a catapulted rig along the sidelines near the sound recording camera and microphone, was tackled by a brace of Westerners and all three, as they went down, "took out" the camera, a $6,000 instrument, which suffered a broken tripod and possible internal injuries.

Victory Makes Western Choice.

Western's 25-0 performance yesterday against Eastern, coupled with the terrific blow Central's ranks suffered with the release of scholastic marks Monday, make the Georgetown owners a distinct favorite to defeat the Blue and White next week when they come together in the game which will decide second place in the series.

Nine Central regulars and second-stringers went ineligible. They were Koscis, King, Bryant and Dunlap, backs, and Lamond, Cleveland, Fisher, Brasch and Raub, linemen. The fate of Emmett Buscher, regular end, still hangs in balance, pending a "make up" examination.

Central has had winning ways over

Broullard to Defend Welter Crown Dec. 11

New York, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—Lou Broullard, of Worcester, Mass., will defend his welterweight title in a bout with Jackie Fields, of Chicago, at Boston, December 11, it was announced today.

The winner is expected to be matched with Jimmy McLarnin, of Vancouver, B. C.

Western High Star Gains Through Line

BATTALINO'S CROWN AT STAKE

Lightweight Champ 6-5 Favorite Over Mastro Tonight.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Bat Battalino, the battered boy from Hartford, Conn., will defend his world featherweight championship for the third time since he won it two years ago, by engaging the fiery Earl Mastro, 23-year-old Chicagoan in the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night.

The match will be for ten rounds or less at the featherweight limit of 126 pounds.

Indications were tonight that a crowd in excess of 15,000 will witness the contest with gate receipts between $50,000 and $60,000.

Rises to Heights In Title Bouts.

Battalino was a 6 to 5 choice in defending his title, because he has the reputation of taking his title engagements with extreme seriousness. The battler has ...pped several non-title decisions because of a bit of indifference, but when his championship is involved, it is something else again, as Kid Chocolate, Fidel LaBarba, and Freddie Miller, promising Cincinnati youngster, can testify.

However, Mastro remained a sentimental favorite with Chicagoans, because he is the first bonafide Chicago boxer to have an opportunity of winning a championship in 37 years, or since back in 1894, when little Jimmy Barry won the bantamweight title from Casper Leon. Mastro's admirers have watched him come up from the amateur ranks, when he boxed as a scrawny little kid to compile a record as a bantamweight and featherweight which few fighters have equaled. Over a five-year period he has dropped only three decisions.

Sammy Mandell, former lightweight champion, will box Ralph Lenny, of Union City, N. J., one of the finest sharpshooters since Mandell himself was in his prime, in one of the preliminaries. Mandell, campaigning now as a welterweight, is making his first start in the stadium since he ruled the lightweights.

St. John's and Devitt Elevens Meet Today

Two teams which are tuning up for bigger and better contests later on in the season will meet tomorrow afternoon when St. John's and Devitt clash in the only game on the prep or high schools lists. The game will be played at the Tidal Basin field at 3:30 o'clock.

St. John's is attempting to round a team of reserves into shape for the Gonzaga game November 13, while Devitt has the same end in view for a game, Thanksgiving Day, with the Trinity school of Sioux City, Iowa.

Both teams have been hit badly by injuries this year. The Cadets are without such regulars as Sullivan, Cullinan, Lynch and McCarthy, while Devitt has lost Naylor and Flick.

Boxing Tomorrow At Congressional Club

Boxers representing the local American Legion will meet a picked team of Baltimore fisticuffers tomorrow night at Congressional Club in a series of amateur bouts for entertainment of club members and invited guests. Nine professional golfers, here for the National Capital open tournament, have been invited to attend. They are Tommy Armour, Bobby Cruikshank, Ed Dudley, Johnny Farrell, Gene Sarazen, Tony Manero, Johnny Golden, Paul Runyan and Tom Karrigan.

Trade Is Impending Among A's, Is Report

Philadelphia, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia Record quotes Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, as saying two or three members of the American League champions will be traded or sold on waivers within a short time. Mr. Mack, the paper says, will announce details at the end of the week, with another "more important announcement" next Wednesday.

Mr. Mack refused to name any player that might be traded or sold, but the Record intimated Phil Todt, reserve first baseman, would be sent to St. Paul in part payment for Oscar Roettger, who was purchased late in the season, and Jim Moore would be sent to Dallas.

MARYLAND U. HAS SLIM CHANCE

Faces Heavier, More Experienced Team in Vanderbilt.

A LINE that averages 198 pounds to the man, a back field that averages 180, and speed, brains and experience—these qualities make up the team that Maryland University must overcome next Saturday at Nashville, Tenn., if it hopes to keep clean its record in the Southern Conference in its game with Vanderbilt.

Maryland observers are frank; they see only a slim chance of the Old Line adding this powerful Vanderbilt club to its already impressive record. In fact, Old Line supporters are scratching their heads in an attempt to figure out just how Curley Byrd's unbeaten eleven can win.

Vanderbilt Has Weight Advantage.

With a weight advantage of about 20 pounds per player, Vanderbilt will present virtually the same line-up that crushed Maryland last year by 22 to 7, and though Maryland is conceded by everyone to have improved since 1930, its outlook for Saturday's clash has not brightened accordingly.

Outstanding among the Commodores, coached by the veteran, Dan McGugin, are Tuggy Fortune, a back, and Pete Gracey, center, both of whom know no superiors in their respective positions in Southern football. Gracey, a 200-pounder, is being touted as an all-American. Fortune, who weighs about 190 pounds, is exceptionally fast for his weight. Twice last year he caught Bozie Berger, fleet Maryland back, from behind as the Old Line star was dashing goalward.

Maryland Hopes Depend On Backs.

Maryland's chances, considering past performances, seem to rest upon its ability to shake loose its clever backs, Berger, Poppelman and Chalmers. If able to do this, Maryland can mix running plays with aerial thrusts and thus maintain the vital element of surprise without which no attack can make much headway. Should Vanderbilt stop their ground offense, the Old Liners' fine passing attack probably will meet an unceasingly alert defense with disastrous results.

New Orleans to Bid For $5,000 Open Golf

New Orleans, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—New Orleans will bid for the golfing stars of America next February 11 to 14 with a $5,000 open golf tournament to be sponsored by the Association of Commerce and the New Orleans Golfing Association. Cash prizes will be put up by commercial firms.

NAVY FACES SECONDS IN DRILL

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 3.—With the strongest combination that has played together this season, the Navy football team this afternoon engaged in one of its most spirited practice sessions as part of the final roundup of preparations for the Ohio State game at Columbus on Saturday, and it was one of the few times that the varsity has lined up against the second team, the usual routine being workouts against the shock troops of squad B or the plebes.

The practice was strictly of an offensive nature, with particular stress being laid upon the passing game, indicating that the Tars will employ every possible weapon of attack in an effort to subdue the Buckeyes, every one connected with the team realizing that a difficult task lies ahead. The coaches are fairly well satisfied with the defensive work of their charges, but offensively the team is much below par for midseason, even though the new wrinkle of instituting the Notre Dame system is in vogue.

Navy Ragged Against Bobcats.

A ragged exhibition, coupled with errors of judgment, marked the team's attack in the scoreless tie played against West Virginia Wesleyan Saturday. True, the Middies gained considerable more ground than the enemy in rushing, but they not only failed to develop a scoring punch, but neglected to take advantage of a chance to score via the field goal, after realizing that the Bobcats were capable of stopping their thrusts inside of the 20-yard stripe.

In today's session the Tars carried on with a fair degree of success, but it was to be expected that many of their tosses, of which they have a variety, were to be batted down, since the second team, knownig all signals, was aware of the direction of every play.

Today's line-up indicated the manner in which the Middies will take the field against the Buckeyes. In the back field were "Bullet Lou" Kirn and Tschirgi; at the halves, Campbell, full back, and Denny at the quarter. Konrad, an understudy, alternated with Kirn and Tschirgi. On the flanks were Smith and Elliott, with Jones and Bryan at tackles; Reedy and Underwood, guards, and Capt. Tuttle, center.

Middies in Final Drill Tomorrow.

Arrangements for the trip to Columbus were completed today. Final practice on home grounds will be held Thursday afternoon, and the squad will entrain at 7:30 that night, making the journey over the Baltimore & Ohio. Forty-four players will make the trip. The party will reach Columbus at 10 o'clock Friday, and engage in a last workout in the afternoon. The Navy contingent will be quartered at the Columbus Athletic Club.

Rifle Honors Won By Western High

905 Out of Possible 1,000 in Prone-Standing Division Was Score.

The Western High School rifle team won first place in the prone-standing division and tied for first place in the highest division of the prone shooting class at the first match of the first series of junior biweekly rifle matches conducted by the National Rifle Association.

The Western High riflemen scored 905 out of a possible 1,000 in the prone-standing division in the second match, now holding a 30 point lead over their closest rival, the Grover Cleveland High School, of St. Louis, Mo. In the prone division, Western tied with the Fresno, Calif., High School team with a score of 497 out of a possible 500. The same two teams tied with 495 in the first match and are still deadlocked.

Central High School, scoring 483 in the prone matches, is tied for second place with Warren Harding High School, Bridgeport, Conn., each having a total of 510 points, 80 under the tied leading teams.

G. U.-Bisons Pointing for Test Here

Enthused Opponents Seek Redemption Saturday.

Stopping of Hinkle, Bison Star, Goal of Hilltop.

WHEN a college football team is infused with that almost indefinable something known as "pepper," it may be expected to put up a terrific battle against any sort of opposition. And taking that for granted, you may expect to have your hair stand up on end if you are among the thrill-seekers parked in Griffith Stadium next Saturday.

From here it looks as if Georgetown and Bucknell are going to accommodate the customers Saturday with an old-fashioned battle for blood. Not that it is a grudge game or that any ill-feeling exists, but both teams will be out to redeem themselves. Each sees in this occasion a chance to atone for past failures, and the rival coaches are working the psychological angle for all it is worth.

Georgetown "Rarin' To Go."

Georgetown is "rarin' to go" to counterbalance, as far as possible, those beatings at Boston, New York and East Lansing and that ignominious tie to which Duquesne, an underdog, held them at Pittsburgh. Injuries are not worrying the Hilltoppers, though it would be excusable if they did, and they are as much enthused right now as at the beginning of the current season, when they boasted rare prospects.

Bucknell is fired with an ambition to make its first score of the year against a major opponent. The Bisons are nettled at their failure to register a single point against Villanova or Temple, the only foes of their own caliber they have met thus far. Furthermore, the Lewisburg collegians wish to win the approval of their coach, Carl Snavely, who has told them in no uncertain terms of his disappointment over those scoreless games. Snavely believes his club should have beaten both Villanova and Temple by a comfortable margin.

Plans to Check Hinkle.

Georgetown has an added incentive. It wants to check the famous Clark Hinkle, Bucknell back, who led the East in scoring two years ago. Tommy Mills has forewarned the Hilltoppers of Hinkle's all-around ability, evidence of which was striking in the Villanova game when, despite disadvantageous weather conditions, he carried a slippery ball for huge individual gains through the fighting Wildcat line and passed and kicked as well as on a dry day.

Already this year, the Hilltoppers have succeeded in stopping a big enemy threat, having held the great Bob Monnett of Michigan State to negligible gains at East Lansing. This same Monnett wrought havoc against Army early in the season, but Mills' players determined before meeting the Spartans that they would bottle up Monnett, and how well they did is a matter of history.

Loughran-Uzcudun Card Is Completed

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Three 10-round heavyweight bouts were announced today as the supporting card for the scheduled scrap between Tommy Loughran, of Philadelphia, and Paulino Uzcudun, of Spain, at Madison Square Garden November 13.

Walter Cobb, of Baltimore, will meet Hans Birkie, recent importation from Germany, in the semifinal. Giovini Bergomas, of Italy, meets Charlie Retzlaff, of Duluth, and Ted Sandwina, of Germany, faces Matec Osa, of Spain, in the other 10-rounders.

Police Halt Near Riot In N. Y. Soccer Game

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Police halted a near riot at Commercial Field today as the Makoah Soccer Club defeated the Racing Club of Madrid, 3 to 1.

During the second half players of both teams engaged in a heated argument over the tactics employed by each other. Most of the crowd of 2,000 then invaded the field to participate in the dispute. Police promptly arrested one of the ringleaders and restored order after the game had been delayed 20 minutes.

Australian Classic Won by 8-to-1 Shot

White Nose Wins 71st Running of Melbourne Cup as Phar Lap Trails.

Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Phar Lap, rated as Australia's wonder horse, lost his first race in six starts today at White Nose, a lightly weighted 3-year-old, won the seventy-first running of the Melbourne Cup, classic of Australia's racing season.

Burdened with 150 pounds, Phar Lap, which won four races in eight days as a 4-year-old last year, was unplaced in the field of sixteen. Shadow King, a 25-to-1 shot, finished the 2-mile journey 2½ lengths back of White Nose in second place, with Concentrate, quoted at 4 to 1, third. White Nose, carrying 96 pounds, went to the post at odds of 8 to 1.

Phar Lap, winner of more than $275,000, won the cup last year, after an attempt had been made to shoot him. Despite his heavy burden and the fact that only three horses ever carried more than 140 pounds to victory, Phar Lap was made the favorite. Had Phar Lap won, he would have been the second horse to score a double. Archer won the 1861 and 1862 renewals.

Navy Ace Is Happy With Headgear Found

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 3.—"Bullet Lou" Kirn, Navy back field ace, will go into the Ohio State game Saturday in a much happier frame of mind than had been anticipated. It is all because his favorite piece of headgear, missing since the West Virginia Wesleyan Saturday, has been returned to him intact.

Attendants at the Naval Academy gymnasium, where the gridders' dressing rooms are located, had searched high and low for the missing helmet, but its whereabouts did not become known until today, when Lieut. Comdr. J. L. Hall, graduate manager of athletics, received a letter from the management of the Bobcats squad stating that Kirn's headpiece had in some manner got mixed with the paraphernalia of the Wesleyan players and that it is now on its way to Annapolis by mail. The letter also referred to the fine sportsmanship displayed in the game between the two teams.

MINNESOTA PRACTICES AERIALS

Somers' Passing Arm Gets Test; Big Ten Elevens Busy.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Pete Somers' forward-passing arm, contemplated as an important weapon in Minnesota's attack against Northwestern next Saturday, was given a hard drill against the reserves and freshmen today.

Somers and Ubl were given the major attention as the Gophers resumed drill after the Badger contest last Saturday. Practice for the Gopher regulars was resumed with Stein and Gay again in the first-string lineup. They replaced Oen and Wells against Wisconsin last week.

Badger Frosh Use Illini Plays.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Freshmen used Illinois plays against the Badger varsity in scrimmage today, but neither aggregation appeared especially effective during the workout. Blocking and tackling were emphasized as a result of the Badgers' poor showing in these duties in the last two games. Pip Nelson appeared slated to start in place of Goldenberg at quarter against the Illini.

Chicago Uses Bucking Machine.

Chicago, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—For the first time in University of Chicago football history, a bucking machine was hauled onto the practice field today. Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg forgot his aversion to the new fangled gridiron invention and had his Maroons push it all over the field. Later, he gave them two new plays to use against Arkansas.

Stanley Hamberg, regular tackle who was believed lost for the rest of the season because of injuries, returned to practice tonight and may play Saturday, greatly improving chances for a victory.

Indiana Backs Work Hard.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—It was another easy day for Indiana linemen today while the back field caught a fairly stiff workout with Opasik, Vic Dauer, Saluski and Jones continuing as the first string back field. The first three tackles, Rhem, Rascher and Anglemeyer, and the first three guards, Zeller, Nylec and Keckich, all are suffering minor injuries from the Ohio State game.

Purdue Forwards Displease Coach.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Coach Kizer still was displeased with the Purdue forward wall today and almost the entire practice was spent in drilling the line on offensive tactics. The Purdue coach threatened to demote all of his regulars if improvement wasn't shown in the Centenary game Saturday.

Russell Returns to Purple.

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Bad news for Minnesota: Reb Russell, Northwestern's star full back, returned to active practice tonight and was as good as ever. Apparently none the worse for the back injury suffered in the Nebraska game, he ripped up the Frosh in a short scrimmage and was almost certain to play in the Minnesota game.

Coach Dick Hanley devoted much of the drill to pass defense, while Ollie Olson polished up his boots for the expected punting duel.

Iowa Back to Fundamentals In Drill.

Iowa City, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—University of Iowa coaches went back to fundamentals today as they prepared for the Nebraska game Saturday. Head Coach Burt Ingwersen began grooming Moore, a center, to fill the place vacated by Tompkins, injured veteran guard, who probably will not be able to play this week.

Penn Seeking Revenge for 1930 Rout

Eager for Game With Notre Dame at South Bend.

Perina, in Back Field, Will Test Line of Ramblers.

By HENRY McLEMORE.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—Come Thursday night, a bunch of determined Quakers will ride out of this City of Brotherly Love bound for South Bend, Ind., and a fight with the Irish of Notre Dame.

They are the members of the University of Pennsylvania Football Team, and win, lose, or draw, they are eager for the battle. The Quakers are fired by two burning desires. The first and most important is revenge for the unholy 60-to-20 licking handed them by Notre Dame last year. The second is to do their bit in upholding what little football prestige the East has left.

Eastern football prestige was in pretty good shape until last Saturday, when an Oregon team that is rated second class on the Coast smacked down N. Y. U., supposedly one of the East's greats. If Penn loses to Notre Dame this Saturday while Georgia is handing N. Y. U. a second pasting, there won't be any such thing as Eastern prestige.

Penn Remembers 1930 Beating.

You don't have to hang around Pennsylvania's practice field more than a few minutes before you understand that this trip to Notre Dame is something of the nature of a crusade. The Quakers, at least those around last year, have been thinking about this game ever since that balmy afternoon in 1930 when the Irish, headed by Marty Brill, slammed Penn from one end of the field to the other in winning, 60 to 20. It was one of the worst lickings a Penn team ever took, and Quakers are like elephants, it seems, in that they have powerful memories.

But we don't think Pennsylvania expects to win this time, although it thinks it has a pretty good football team, one strong enough to prevent a repetition of 1930's slaughter, and one capable of giving the South Bend machine a tussle.

In Carl Perina, 200-plus-pound full back, Penn has a man who will gain against any line in the world. This big boy runs with amazing speed for a man his size, and when he smacks a line, something has to give. Munger, Gette and Smith, who make up the rest of the back field, all are neat runners and know a thing or two about passing.

Riblett Is Star At Right End.

Paul Riblett, who captains the team and does its right-ending, is the best end in the East. He gets in every play, and what is more important, gets in for a purpose.

If the team performs Saturday as it did against Wisconsin a couple of weeks ago, Notre Dame is in for an interesting afternoon. Against the Badgers Penn did everything right. The line was fast, aggressive and resourceful, and the back field a smooth-working, hard driving unit that started off in high gear and stayed there until the end.

Manhattan Is Tied, 0-0, by City College

New York, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—Manhattan College and the College of the City of New York fought to a scoreless tie in a football game for the benefit of charity today.

Not conceded a chance before the game against the strong team coached by John Law, former Notre Dame captain, C. C. N. Y. outplayed and outfought its rival.

Only once did either team succeed in coming within striking distance, when Clemens fumbled and the Green recovered on the C. C. N. Y. 12-yard line.

Hy Kaplowitz's superb kicking and brilliant ball-carrying dispelled Manhattan hopes for recovery.

Navy and Pittsburgh "B" Elevens to Meet

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 3.—While the varsity eleven is battling Ohio State at Columbus Saturday, the B squad players, the lads who bear the brunt of the work in prepping the regulars for their big games, will be holding the spotlight at Annapolis, arrangements having been made to meet the B squad of the University of Pittsburgh. During the quarters, review of the big game will be read through a loud speaker for the benefit of spectators, a running story being received by telegraph.

As the Navy Athletic Association is charging admission to home games this year, proceeds going to President Hoover's national unemployment relief fund, the nominal charge of 25 and 50 cents will be made for this contest.

The Middie reserves will engage in another game as a reward for their season's efforts, meeting the University of Maryland freshmen on Thanksgiving Day.

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

SO Sammy West went to the hardware store and filled the prescription for the cure of his crooked throwing arm. Which is this column's quaint way of saying that the Nats' outfielder bought a 6-pound weight to carry about with him as his own household remedy for the cure of his arm ailment.

It seems that the recent operation for a growth in West's throwing arm left that member with a very definite crook which the outfielder is unable to straighten, tug though he may at the muscles. The weight, a black iron gadget, designed on the lines of a dumbbell, is carried in his left hand throughout his day's meanderings. Constant tightening of the fingers of his hand around the weight, which is equipped with springs and contracts and relaxes with every grip, is expected to loosen the taut muscles in his arm to the point where he again may have the full use of the limb.

When his arm was in fettle, West enjoyed the reputation of being one of the best throwing outfielders in the majors. If he continues to throw strikes across the plate from the outfield next season, his cure will carry a lot of weight.

In the case of Garland Braxton, a crooked arm proved a distinct asset. Braxton, who pitched for the Nats several seasons before he was traded to the White Sox, suffered an accident in his early youth that left his arm with a slight crook. But, he continued as a pitcher and the crook enabled him to impart a peculiar twist to his delivery that resulted in his mastery of the screw ball. The screw ball later became his chief stock in trade and for two seasons at least he was one of the mainstays of the Washington staff.

Braxton's screw ball differs from a normal curve only in that it is a reverse English delivery. The ball rotates opposite from the direction in which it breaks and against a right-handed batter curves out instead of in as does the orthodox curve. Coupled with his ability to throw an ordinary curve, Braxton is thus possessed of a natural change of pace. The batter, knowing not what to expect, is often thrown off balance if he fails to guess Braxton's delivery.

The screw ball, thrown with a turn of both the arm and the wrist, is difficult for a pitcher to master; but Braxton's crook has eliminated the necessity for this effort, although he often has complained that the delivery is hard on his elbow.

Sammy West's weight cure is not new in the realm of sports. Gene Tunney, afflicted with brittle hands from the start of his boxing career, always carried in both hands a little rubber ball which he constantly gripped in an effort to strengthen his fingers. And to that practice he attributes the improvement in his hitting ability. In his championship battles, Tunney's hands suffered not at all in the poundings he delivered to Dempsey on two occasions and Tom Heaney once.

When the Nats trained at Tampa, Irving Hadley suffered from tender skin on the fingers of his pitching hand. His fast ball delivery wore blisters on the digits until he often was forced to take long lay-offs. One day he found the cure and for the remainder of the training trip his constant companion was a little lump of alum that he fingered whenever he was not sleeping or eating. The alum had the same effect as brine on a fighter's fists, toughening the skin on the fingers until Hadley was able to take his regular turn without fear of blisters.

A common cure for fumbling among the college football players is the old custom of carrying a football about. The epidemic of fumbling became so great at one of the Southern schools a few years ago that the entire back field was ordered by the coach to carry a football about with them in their arms wherever they went, in uniform and out of uniform, until the "feel" of the ball became so natural that they were positively lonesome without a leather oval in their hands. The fumbling ceased.

Walker-Stribling Bout In Miami Is Planned

New York, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Bill Duffy, New York night club owner and promoter, said today he had three major fights in prospect during the coming winter season at Daytona Beach, Fla.

He plans the first between Mickey Walker and Young Stribling some time late in December or early in January, another between Primo Carnera and some suitable opponent and the third involving Jack Sharkey.

Sharkey's participation was doubtful, he said, but he was sure the other two matches would be made. He is American representative for Carnera.

G. U. May Play Gators In Florida Next Year

Negotiations are reported underway between Georgetown University and the University of Florida to schedule a football game in Florida next year. If scheduled, it will be the first gridiron contest between the Hilltop and a Southern Conference eleven in a decade, Georgetown having visited Atlanta to meet Georgia Tech in 1922. The Florida game, if arranged, will take the place of the Michigan State game on Georgetown's schedule for 1932, the two-year agreement with the East Lansing institution having terminated with the recent Hilltop-Spartan clash.

Dempsey Says Schmeling Would Be His First Foe

PARIS, Nov. 3. (A.P.)—Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, world's heavyweight boxing champion, today said that if Jack Dempsey ever returned to the ring Schmeling would be the man he would meet.

Jacobs, who sails for the United States on the Ile de France Thursday cited a cablegram from Leonard Sach's Dempsey's busines manager, to substantiate his assertion.

Schmeling will sail for the United States late in November, Jacobs said, for an exhibition tour of the larger cities, ending his tour in Los Angeles the middle of January. The champion will train there for his fight with Mickey Walker in February, said Jacobs, and then will meet Dempsey for the title in June if Max still has the crown and Jack decides to try a comeback.

Jacobs said the Madison Square Garden of Illinois had no contract with Schmeling.

Ruth Sees South's Sandlots As Best Baseball Incubator

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—The big league baseball players of the future, in the belief of George Herman Ruth, will come mainly from the sandlots of the South, the Southwest and California, where baseball can be played throughout the year.

The "Mighty Babe" is here to start work on a series of short films, explaining how he plays the game and does those things with a bat.

"A kid who wants to be a ball player has to start early," says Ruth, "and work hard at it. I was playing ball almost as soon as I could run around. You can't make a good ball player in just a few years."

College baseball is not contributing much to the leagues, and will not in the future, declares the Babe, one reason being that the college ball player usually goes in for other sports, including football, and is burned out athletically by the time he finishes school.

HYGRO WINS PIMLICO HELPFUL STAKES BY FIVE LENGTHS

BejshakRides Favorite to Victory

Tred Avon Ties Record for Mile and 70 Yards in Fifth.

Inferno Lad Scores at $43.60 in Upset in First Race.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Nov. 3.—Hydro, the Nevada Stock Farm's chestnut 2-year-old son of Epinard—Ruddy Light, showed a sparkling performance in the Helpful, feature here today, winning by five lengths. The Northway Stable's Gallant Sir was second, a head in front of Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Rabbit Skin. The time was 1:12 1-5.

Bejshak and Hygro broke in front and led all the way, never seriously challenged by any of the eight rivals for the $3,680 purse. The start was long delayed by Rabbit Skin, which, after all, was second away. Gallant Sir was taken up a time or so, but came fast in the stretch to nose out Rabbit Skin for second money.

The winner paid only $2.90, so certain were the patrons that they were right. Hygro redeemed himself somewhat by his clean cut victory. He was beaten in two stakes in Maryland by Burning Blaze, but it seems the latter would have little chance against him in this dash of six furlongs. With an outside post position, he came clear of the field at the first jump. He also was conceding much weight to all the others with 128 pounds up. There were better weather conditions today than on opening day and the crowd was almost as large as that of yesterday.

Tred Avon Draws Away at End.

S. W. Labrot's gray filly, Tred Avon, equaled the track record for a mile and seventy yards in winning the Arlington Purse, covering the distance in 1:42 1-5. Admiral Grayson's Happy Scot was second and Mrs. Herbert Pulitzer's Repentance, third. Misstep finished fourth.

Repentance led around the elbow, with Happy Scot, Tred Avon and Misstep lined up heads apart behind. Tred Avon took the lead turning for the stretch and drew away to win by three lengths, ridden by Remillard. She paid $5.50. Tred Avon is to start in the mile and a half Bowie Handicap tomorrow.

An upset started the racing here today when the Brandywine Stable's Inferno Lad won by five lengths from Dancing Mack. John F. was third, and the favorite, The Gen, fourth. The winner paid $43.60 for $2. The Gen was away from the gate like a flash, turning the clubhouse corner in front, but on the back stretch Barnes took Inferno Lad, which had been forcing the pace, to the front and in the stretch he drew away. The time was 1:44 for the 1 1-16 miles.

Disqualification Marks Second Race.

The first disqualification of the meeting came in the second race, when the LeMar Stock Farm's Mouthpiece was displaced from second position for bearing over on Tancred. There was no contest over the winner, John Goff's Quarterdeck, finishing first by three-fourths of a length from Mouthpiece. With Mouthpiece disqualified Khorasan was officially placed second and Tancred third.

Tancred, after delaying the start, was outrun by Mouthpiece, and Khorasan was running second to Mouthpiece on the back stretch. When the field reached the stretch Quarterdeck, J. Renick up, went to the front with Mouthpiece second, Khorasan third and Tancred fourth. There was no change in the stretch run, except the official disqualification. The winner paid $10.40. The time was 1:45 for the 1 1-16 miles.

H. Callahan, who rode Mouthpiece, was suspended for the meeting for striking Tancred with his whip through the stretch.

Vacillate Scores as Sea Fox Bleeds.

H. D. Bonesteel's Vacillate, with Nertney up, won the third race, and Sea Fox, the favorite, was out of the money. F. F. Brandt's Maid of Honor was second. She was ridden by M. Lewis, the young sensation of the West. Grand Prince was third. Maid of Honor went to the front from the start. Sea Fox was in a contending position at the far turn, but dropped out, and Vacillate went to the front and won by more than a length. The winner paid $13.60. Maid of Honor was $16 for place.

Sea Fox is said to have bled during the race. The colt was claimed by C. R. Gerling for $3,500.

Monocle, Long-Shot, Second.

Homelike, owned by J. C. Kirkpatrick, ran one of his best races today to win the seventh race from Monocle. Piloted by Jockey V. Roussell, Homelike allowed Monocle and Nealon Kay to make the pace and then shot by them both in the home stretch to win by a nose. Nealon Kay fell out of the picture in the final drive, wasted by his duel with Monocle, but the latter held on to save the place from the onrushing Fair Folly, who beat out Vimont in this contest over 1 1-16 miles.

Homelike, played down in the late betting, paid $10.40 in the $2 mutuels. Monocle, a long shot, paid $18.20 to show. There was no decided favorite in the race, and the time was 1:47.

The Brandywine Stable made it a double, as did Jockey Barnes, when Pencader won the sixth race. The Seagram Stable's Dark Mission was second and Hal Price Headley's Big Beau third. Mad Frump finished fourth, tiring in the stretch. Renewed showed early speed and was showing the way to the favorite, Cambal, on the back stretch, but Pencader made them all quit in the stretch, winning by 1½ lengths. The time was 1:44 1-5 for a mile and 70 yards. The winner paid $14.40.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—QUARTER DECK, $10.40, $3.90, $3.70; KHORASAN, $3.10, $2.60; TANCRED, $5.60.

QUARTER DECK, outpaced for the first six furlongs, secured racing room next to the inner rail when challenging the leaders at the stretch turn, finished full of courage under punishment, and won. MOUTHPIECE, down in the final sixteenth. MOUTHPIECE, under slight restraint while resisting keen contention from TANCRED, continued determinedly in the final drive and outstayed KHORASAN. MOUTHPIECE was disqualified for bumping TANCRED during the stretch run and when Callahan used his whip on other horses during the final furlong, latter kept within striking distance of the leaders and closed with good courage. TANCRED was in tight quarters at the end and after forcing a steady pace from the start. PRINCE PEST raced evenly. NOSTAW raced on his own courage the entire trip.

VACILLATE, displaying good speed, drew into an easy lead when leaving the back stretch, saved ground the entire trip, but had to be shaken up in the final furlong to withstand MAID OF HONOR. Latter, in closest pursuit of the winner throughout, came again after dropping back rounding the turn. GRAND PRINCE, in the first flight from the start, closed with good courage. GERARD finished full of run. WACKET could not reach the leaders at any stage. CRYSTAL DOMINO was outrun. GUILDER tired. SEA FOX was taken up at the break and raced disgracefully.

HYGRO, quick to get going, raced in hand for the first half mile, drew clear entering the home stretch and was placed to punishment to make certain of victory. GALLANT SIR worked his way up on the inside and finished stoutly to outfinish RABBIT SKIN. Latter followed the winner closely for the first half mile and weakened thereafter. MASKED KNIGHT tired in the final drive. DAISABURO, slow to begin, made up ground in the final stages. FLAGPOLE stopped badly.

TRED AVON hustled to the first turn, was taken in hand while racing down the back stretch, went to the leaders stoutly midway of the far turn, was shaken up inside the final furlong, and had speed in reserve at the end. HAPPY SCOT, reserved early, moved up fast when released from restraint, but was not a match for the winner in the final drive. REPENTANCE took command without effort, was steadied along and held on gamely. MISSTEP threatened desperately at the far turn, but faltered in the closing furlong. The others were outrun.

PENCADER, shuffled back going to the first turn and forced to pull up, was shaken up stoutly when straightened out in the back stretch, responded with excellent courage when finding racing room between his field during the final stages and took command inside the final furlong to win under strong urging. DARK MISSION, kept forwardly placed, came courageously for the final issue. BIG BEAU, slow to get going, came with a belated rush in the final half mile. MAD FRUMP, hard hustled from the start, had no mishaps. MAD WIND was forced to race on the outside throughout. RENEWED weakened badly. CAMBAL was not good enough.

HOMELIKE, hurried into a forward position, slipped through on the inside rounding the far turn, wore the leaders down, but had to be vigorously urged to stall off MONOCLE. Latter, going in improved form, raced close up from the start, closed fast and just failed to get up in time, was wearing the first two down at every stride. VIMONT disposed of NEALON KAY when ready, was game enough, but tired in the final test. NEALON KAY, having the most speed, tired after seven furlongs. ROYAL PANOPLY was unable to get to the early leaders. The others were outrun.

—Pimlico Selections—

—By J. B. SNODGRASS.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 3.—Pimlico's outstanding feature tomorrow is the Bowie Handicap, $10,000 added, at 1½ miles. This is an unusual test in flat racing, for cup races at long distances are not handicaps and do not require the carrying of great weight. MATE holds the top impost of 127 pounds, getting no leniency because of his recent defeats, but being taxed 2 pounds above his impost in the Washington Handicap at Laurel a week ago in which he finished fourth to Clock Tower.

Best among the eleven entries for the Bowie seems to be the Greentree Stable's ST. BRIDEAUX, winner last Saturday of the Latonia championship, and has shipped well, working a fast half mile since his return. John Whalen's PILATE, working 1¼ miles in 2:15 2-5 over the Pimlico track, is rated the condender over PITTSBURGHER, which was sent 1½ miles here in 2:41. These are all seasoned campaigners and their records well established. MATE must be accorded some recognition of his class and should get fourth money. The fault with MATE is found not so much in his class as in his training. He may do better than recent races show, but he will have to improve suddenly, for he was well up in the Washington and tired. He will like this track better than that at Laurel.

FIRST RACE—Maiden 2-year-olds start in the first race. REBUFF has worked 6 furlongs in 1:16 on this track and is selected to win. GLORIA MARIS is a fast filly of the Jeffords Stable and should be the contender. FACCHINA on her last race is entitled to consideration and should be third. OXLIP ran well last time out.

SECOND RACE—Seven horses are to start in the Towson Steeplechase, $2,000 added. CREEK, on New York races, is best, but MOONSTRUCK, winner at Laurel will be dangerous. COQ GRIS should figure in the race. The last named horse is from the winning stable of Mrs. J. H. Whitney, and all their horses are rapidly improving.

THIRD RACE—GENERAL LEJEUNE, which has not started this fall, is in trim for one of his best races and is selected for the third race for 2-year-olds at a mile and 70 yards. SHIVA, winner at Laurel, appears next best, and these two tower above the others in the capacity field.

FOURTH RACE—SONNELLI has worked well here and raced well in New York. He is selected to win over FORTUNATE YOUTH, which has won several races in Maryland, in the fourth race. At the distance SONNELLI should get so far in front that the Labrot horse could not catch him. GOLDEN PRINCE, which has speed at times, seems best of the others.

SIXTH RACE—SOLACE outclasses his field in the sixth race and should win going away under the light impost of 113 pounds. The Seagram horse should beat the overworked THE HEATHEN. BERBER is dangerous. He has worked well and is rounding to winning form.

SEVENTH RACE—KADIAK may come to life in the seventh race, the change of tracks expected to be in his favor. He failed in all his Laurel starts and generally was well backed. SWEEP PIC won last out easily. MERIDIAN QUEEN has not run her race yet, but showed improvement in her last at Laurel. WILLIE K. is a possibility.

Sun Beau Is Absent From Pimlico Stakes

Baltimore, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Willis Sharpe Kilmer apparently meant it when he said his all-time money-winning champion, Sun Beau, had been retired.

Kilmer made the announcement some time ago that Sun Beau would be retired to the stud, but he was shipped to Havre de Grace and then to Laurel and was kept in the best of training. Race followers refused to believe that Kilmer was in earnest about the retirement.

Many of them declared that Kilmer was merely waiting for the right weight assignment to slip the Beau into a fat stake race. They forecast this plan would be followed at the Bowie meeting which follows Pimlico's close.

ALEXANDRIA NAMES SITE FOR BOUTS

Nursery Benefit to Be Staged Nov. 16 in Old Brewery.

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Nov. 3.—Final plans for the boxing card under the auspices of the Day Nursery Athletic Association were being completed today for the initial event of the fall and winter season by the executive committee.

The promoters of this affair completed arrangements yesterday for the use of Portner's Brewery Warehouse, formerly occupied by the Agriculture Department, on North St. Asaph street near Wythe.

Schwartz-Weiss in Feature.

The first show of the season, to be staged November 16, instead of next Monday night as originally announced, will be featured with Billy Schwartz, Alexandria youth, meeting Sammy Weiss, light-heavyweight from Philadelphia, in a slashing eight-round go.

In the semifinal Sailor McKenna ties up with Bill Burns, crack light-weight from Baltimore. These two boys fought a good fight at Fort Washington this past season which ended in a draw.

The preliminary card is not completed. Marino Marini, of Uniontown, Pa.; Nevin Barber, of Washington, and others will box. K. O. Riley, of Patsy Donovan's stable in Washington, may appear in one of the bouts.

The clubhouse for the bouts will seat approximately 4,000. Arrangements for fitting out the building will be made today. Seats will be secured from Fort Washington.

The Day Nursery committee of Abe Martin, Julian Chauncey, Dr. Herbert Cross, James Armstrong and Jack Tulloch is busy with all details for the event.

Nursery to Receive All Profits.

All funds received from this event will be turned over to the Children's Home and Day Nursery. This organization meets a real need in the city. A drive is under way at present for $10,000 and the committee on athletic events hopes to make a large sum from the boxing show.

Memberships in the Day Nursery Athletic Association may be secured at the Suto Acessories Co., King and Washington streets, or the Gazette sporting department.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

SEVENTY-EIGHT per cent of all Portland cement must pass through a "200 mesh sieve," which contains 200 bronze wires per linear inch, or 40,000 openings per square inch. This sieve is actually finer than silk; in fact, it is so fine that it will hold water!

In the manufacture of cement, mountains of limestone and clay are blasted down. It is crushed and crushed again, and, finally, the whole mountain is literally put through a sieve.

Cement is manufactured with a heat of 2,700 degrees to 2,800 degrees F., greater than that required to melt steel, and cement sacks are sewed up before they are filled.

CATHOLIC U. FEARS THOMAS, MANHATTAN'S TRIPLE THREAT

Invaders' Ace Marked Man To Cards

Look for Keen Opposition From Jaspers Here Saturday.

Practice Defense of Visitors' Notre Dame System.

WHILE Manhattan College's football team is adopting as its slogan "Stop Whelan," Catholic University's defense, too, is receiving particular instruction nowadays. Checking the versatile offensive qualities of Mal Thomas, ace "Jasper," halfback, is the problem confronting Head Coach "Dutch" Bergman prior to Saturday's game at Brookland, 2:30 o'clock.

A triple threat extraordinary, Thomas is said to be one of the finest backs in Manhattan's history. He passes, punts and carries the leather equally well and has performed brilliantly in every game played to date. Using Thomas as its spearhead, Manhattan's back field, in its entirety, is exceptionally formidable.

Heavy Line Opens Holes.

Capt. John Del Negro calls signals; Thomas shows advantageously in multiple roles; Ed Ashkar blocks savagely and runs the ball at right half, while Pete Battle does the plunging at full back.

Opening holes for these specialists is a forward wall that averages 189 pounds. Since the back field ranges in the neighborhood of 170, there is little question but what C. U. will be decisively outweighed at game time.

Following its game with City College of New York yesterday, the "Jaspers" today are to launch their final drive prior to Saturday's clash. Pointing their defense specifically for Tom Whelan and "Bus" Sheary, the Gothamites, too, are stressing defense, being particularly active in their attempts to break up passes.

C. U. in Two-Hour Drill.

Whelan, Catholic's great scoring back, is remembered from last year when, on a slippery field, he stepped 90 yards for a touchdown against Manhattan.

Hyattsville Booters Lose to Alumni, 3-2

The master tamed his disciples in good style yesterday afternoon when Stanleigh Jenkins, coach of the crack Hyattsville High Soccer Team, scored the goal which gave the school's alumni team a 3-to-2 victory over the boys. Jenkins' goal came just as the first half closed. No more scoring was accomplished during the remainder of the game.

The schoolboys were the first to tally, when Calhoun slipped one by the alumni goalie for 2 points. Michaelson pulled the Alumni up a bit closer when he scored a penalty goal.

Yesterday's losers were prepping for the final game of the Montgomery County championship, which will be played Friday at a yet to be named field. Hyattsville, winner of the event last year, meets the victor between Brandywine and Upper Marlboro, to be played today at Baden.

St. John's Pressing For Game With Yale

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 3.—Following a complete rest yesterday, gridders of St. John's College today buckled down to preparations for what will be one of the severest tests in long history of the sport at the institution, the game with Yale, to be played at New Haven on Saturday.

The Johnnies have had their ups and downs this season. Defeated by their ancient rivals of Johns Hopkins, and also Western Maryland, yet they made a highly creditable showing against a strong Lafayette team. In meeting Yale they are stepping well out of their class, and the best they can possibly hope for is to hold the score down to a low margin. However, much enthusiasm pervades the local camp and the players are counting upon getting their passing game to function to the surprise of the Elis. Meanwhile, Head Coach "Tody" Riggs and his assistant, "Dutch" Lentz, are bending every effort to build up a defense against Yale's style of attack. An encouraging announcement today was that Jim Parks, all-Maryland guard last year, may get into the game. His return would materially bolster the forward wall.

Twenty-three players will make the trip, leaving here Friday.

Hitting the Head Pin

SOMETHING in the air sponsored good bowling last night. Several league records toppled, for one thing, and a fair exponent of the game hauled off and smashed the local women's high game record, but it will never go into the record books.

Just to get the ball rolling, let us pause a moment to speculate on the doleful case of Mrs. L. P. Payne. In her competitive moments, Mrs. Payne is a paid-up member of the Records Team in the Internal Revenue League. Well, yesterday afternoon she did not have her team with her, and it will cost her a niche in the bowling halls of fame.

It seems she stepped nonchalantly into Columbia and in the presence of a couple of sleepy-eyed pin boys rolled a 160 game. Now if that is not the highest mark a woman has ever bowled here, the editor of "Hitting the Headpin" will promptly visit each and every alley here and consume all the ten pins, without the aid of salt and mayonnaise. An agent reports that the irrepressible Lorraine Gulli has tippled 155, which, you'll admit, is a pretty mess of bowling, but here's a 160—and ah, the pity of it all.

En route 160, Mrs. Payne set 'em all down on three consecutive strikes, followed with a spare, and spared in the last box. But it's no more official than a detective school graduate.

They don't come much closer than the Rinaldi-King's Palace tussle last night in the National Capital League at Lucky. Rinaldi copped the first game at 556 to 517 and dropped the second, 564 to 571, and then the two teams got together and rolled 583 apiece. Well, this called for everybody to roll one more box, and when the statisticians added them up, they were still tied.

The thing went into the twelfth box, and both teams collapsed. Rinaldi won by the almost embarrassing total of 39 pins to 34. Just think of such bowlers as Santini, Nicro, Rinaldi, Freschi and Pacini being able to amass only 39 pins, less than an average of 8, but then again, just think of Cox, Esterbrook, Moore, Hopkins and Phillips bowling a nifty 34!

That wasn't all at Lucky Strike last night. The Ruth Team, of the Eastern Star League, saw its star set when a ruthless Bethany outfit won the third game of their contest. Including the first two games last night, Ruth had won 24 straight games, while the lowly Bethany team was floundering somewhere among the also rans.

Wilkerson and Farber, with 138, tied for top honors in the Insurance League, aboard the Equitable Team. The team rolled a 604 game and a 1,674 set. In the Supervising Architects League Williams hit 'em for 140 and the Imperials took high game honors with 557. The Saxons, with 1,564, were high team. All these things came to pass within the clattering confines of Lucky Strikes.

Over at Convention Hall, the Masonic League functioned without undue fireworks, excepting Maxie Rosenberg's 380 set and the 1,667 total for his team, Gompers. The Gompers, incidentally, took two from Hiram.

By the margin of 2-1, Lansburgh's and Hecht's won their meets in the King Pin Business Men's League, beating, respectively, Union Wall Paper and Nationals. Also at King Pin No. 2, Capital and Tip Top, in the Ladies' Independent League, beat out Columbia and Lansburgh. Kann's won three by default.

Congress Heights jumped into first place in the East Washington Church League, at the same alleys, when they won all three from First Brethren, while the Centennials No. 1, former leaders, were losing a game to Douglas No. 1. Roesser's 350 was high individual for the night.

An all-time Lutheran League record was established by David A. Davis, of the St. Paul entrant, last night at the Arcadia when he rolled a 422 set, including games of 120, 174 and 128. Despite his heroics, it was the St. Mark's team which won all team honors in the league, chalking up a 603 game and a 1,675 set.

Ford Electric dominated the Columbia Heights League last night, gaining honors in high team game and set, 605 and 1,712, and also producing in Burns high individual set man for the night, 391. Warman, of Crandall Realty, won high game honors with 146.

With Carmichael levelling the pins at the rate of a 123 game and a 319 set, Trinity No. 1 held the spotlight in the Ladies' Lutheran League at Arcadia. The team gathered a 474 game and a 1,351 set. At the same alleys, Bob Sellers, of the Owls, a Postoffice League Team, rolled a 345 set, which aided his team in gaining team game honors for the night, 521.

The Lions cleaned up otherwise, taking high team set honors, 1,520, and offering Jack White, whose 121 was high game for the night.

No bowling column would be complete unless it took cognizance of something Lorraine Gulli had accomplished the night before. Well, this time it was a 144 game and a 361 set, the season's record for the Washington Ladies League, in which she is a valued and respected member of the University Park Team. Her team beat the Keenos, two to one.

Columbia's alleys resounded to some good bowling in other sections of the same league. The Shamrocks, for instance, beat the Cardinals, three to nothing, with Betty Hoffman rolling a 338 set and Madeline Burke a 125 game. The Beeques (whose name was evolved from the fact that when the team was formed half of the members' names began with "B" and the other half with "Q") trounced the oft-trounced Veterans' Bureau, three to nothing. Billie Butler copped high team prize with 345, while Eva Lieverman's 137 was plenty good enough to win individual honors.

The Hilltoppers won a two-to-one decision over the Columbians, on the same alleys.

The Washington Post Printers League is getting so good that yesterday three or four of the boys managed to beat out a fellow named Marmaduke J. Dummy, whose consistent 85's have been winning high individual honors all season. During the course of the day, be that as it may, the Quads, Pearls, Ionics and Gothics were the winners, while the sad holders of the bag proved to be the Agates, Picas, Rubies and Minions.

Navy-Notre Dame Game Likely to Be Sell-Out

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 3.—Tickets for the Navy-Notre Dame game in Baltimore Stadium November 14 are selling at such a rapid clip that a sell-out is indicated, according to announcement by Navy athletic authorities.

The ducats were placed on sale in Washington and Baltimore, in addition to Annapolis, only a few days ago and the demand was heavy from the outset. Hundreds of requests for big blocks of seats were made at both Annapolis and South Bend, prior to the public sale, and all of these have been filled. The demand from Notre Dame alumni in the Eastern States has been heavy. And as the game is one of the outstanding attractions on Navy's schedule, and to be played close to home, service folk and followers of the Middies also have drawn heavily on the allotment.

G. W. TO PLAY PAYNE AT CENTER

Will Sub for Injured Regular Against Salem Team.

WITH Frank Blackistone still hobbling about unable to don a suit for practice, his understudy, Jay Payne, a tall scrappy youngster, with a world of spirit, is likely to start at center for George Washington against Salem College Saturday night in Griffith Stadium.

Payne subbed for Blackistone against Iowa last Saturday in the closing minutes and put up a strong showing. His work in this game and his willingness and spirit on the practice field have stamped him as a most promising prospect.

Blackistone Has Had Call.

Heretofore Payne has had little chance to show his worth. Blackistone has so completely dominated the pivot situation that both Payne and Conn, reserve centers, have been warming the bench practically all of the time. Now it looks like Payne is to get his chance in this week's game.

Salem is reputed to have a first-class passing attack combined with a fair running attack that features a wide open or spread formation. Coach Pixlee yesterday emphasized defensive measures against both of these plans of attack and sent his men through a snappy drill. The G. W. mentor is taking no chances on the visitors staging a "surprise" party with his team as the victim of one of those little fellows trimming the big fellow.

FIVES RALLY TO DEFEAT EMERSON

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 3.—With the score tied, 7 to 7, at the start of the final quarter, the Fives, varsity team of the Charlottesville School for Boys, opened its most powerful attack of a spectacular season and pushed over three touchdowns to defeat Emerson Prep, of Washington, here tonight, the final count standing, 27 to 7.

Consistent gains by Brooks and Gasque led to the touchdown which broke the tie, the former dashing 16 yards through the middle of the Washington line to score. Gasque made the extra pont on a line plunge.

Intercepted passes by Quarter Back Little, who once raced sixty yards behind beautiful interference for a touchdown, clinched the contest for the local eleven.

Raum, Whalen Figure in Emerson Tally.

Emerson's lone touchdown came after consistent line plunges by Raum and Whalen, the former taking the ball across and also contributing the extra point.

The Fives came back in the same period to knot the count. After three cleverly executed passes, Little to Davis, Gasque plunged off left tackle for the touchdown.

The Fives forwards opened up large gaps in the visiting line, and held tenaciously during the entire second half in face of Emerson's strong attack.

WAR VETERAN PENS VAGUE NOTE, KILLS HIMSELF WITH GAS

Body of Joseph Trumbley Is Found by Woman Friend in Apartment.

'I HAVE NOTHING TO SAY,' HIS PARTING MESSAGE

Leaves Widow, Said to Work in Navy Department; Won Decorations.

After penning the simple sentence, "I have nothing to say," on a sheet of paper, Joseph William Trumbley, 55, World War veteran, was found death yesterday in his bachelor apartment, 1465 Columbia road northwest. Gas was escaping from two open jets in the range in the adjoining kitchenette.

Miss Nellie Howard, 24 years old, of 919 Sixth street northeast, discovered the body as she came to the apartment in response to a request made by Trumbley Monday afternoon, when he told her he would "have a surprise" for her.

Miss Howard told police she had met the man down town and he had asked her to buy him a gray necktie and handkerchief to match a gray suit he had. She said Trumbley gave her the key to the apartment and asked her to bring the articles there yesterday and receive the surprise. On approaching the apartment she smelled gas and opening the door she found Trumbley's body, clad in pajamas, lying on the bed.

Neighbor Responds to Cries.

A neighbor, Mrs. Edna Rosenberg, 30 years old, responded to her cries and helped Miss Howard open the windows and turn off the gas. Tenth Precinct police and the Fire Rescue Squad answered an emergency call, but the man was pronounced dead by Dr. C. W. Culver, of 1425 Columbia road northwest, who was summoned.

Miss Nellie Howard, 24, of 919 Sixth street northeast, told police she stopped in to see Trumbley, an acquaintance of hers, late yesterday afternoon. As she approached the apartment she noticed his door ajar and smelled gas. Fearing that something was wrong, she burst into the room and discovered the man, dressed in pajamas, on the bed. She immediately summoned police. Tenth Precinct police and Fire Rescue Squad No. 2 responded, but could render no assistance. Trumbley was pronounced dead by Dr. C. W. Culver, of 1425 Columbia road northwest, who also was summoned. Coroner Joseph D. Rogers was then called.

Mr. Trumbley, a native of Oklahoma, had been in Washington about three years and was employed as a watchmaker in the jewelry shop of Leroy F. Lupton, 901½ E street northwest. His wife, Mrs. Gertrude Trumbley, is said to be an employe of the Navy Department and to live with her father at a downtown hotel.

Mr. Lupton, Mr. Trumbley's employer, said that when Mr. Trumbley left work Saturday night he appeared in good spirits, but that he had not reported back to work since. Mr. Lupton also said Mr. Trumbley was a Marine during the last war and that he had spent much time in service hospitals since the war as a result of wounds received at the front.

Leaves Several Relatives.

Besides his widow Mr. Trumbley is survived by an aunt and several relatives, all of whom live in Kansas City. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Trumbley was twice decorated for his services during the World War with the Sixth Marines. He received the Croix de Guerre from the French government and the Distinguished Service Medal from his own country. He was wounded twice in France, once in the chest and again in the left lung. He was also a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor.

Sky Views of Washington—No. 4

Fairchild Aerial Surveys, Inc.

The row of buildings above the Courthouse, facing Judiciary Square, furnishes a retreat for much of this legal talent, many of whom are quartered in the Columbian, Century, Appeals buildings in that row.

In the upper right-hand corner is the old United States Pension Office, now the General Accounting Office Building, where Comptroller General J. R. McCarl passes final judgment on knotty problems of law.

The spired structure, facing southeast corner of the square between Pensions Office and Courthouse, is the Trinity Lutheran Church. At the left, in the triangle formed by the intersection of Indiana avenue and D street, (D street runs vertically through to Pennsylvania avenue), is the statue of Albert Pike.

Police Headquarters, which not so many years ago was the District Building, faces the Courthouse from the opposite side of D street. The roof of the Police Court Building can just be made out, a block west of the Courthouse, on the north side of D street.

RHEEM BANKRUPTCY CASE TO BE TRIED BY JUSTICE TOMORROW

Former Smith Co. Head Rejects Jury Action on Private Solvency.

DOCUMENTS REQUIRED BY COURT'S DIRECTION

Officers of Five Banks Are Ordered to Appear at Hearing.

Officers of five Washington banks were ordered yesterday by Chief Justice A. A. Wheat to appear in District Supreme Court, tomorrow in the involuntary bankruptcy hearing of Edmund D. Rheem, former head of the bankrupt Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co.

Another action of the court acquiesced in the plea of Rheem yesterday that he be given a trial by judge, not jury, when the matter of his personal bankruptcy or solvency comes up tomorrow before Justice F. D. Letts in Bankruptcy Court. Rheem's request is tantamount to a decision, since a defendant has the right to elect, in such a case, whether he shall be heard by a judge or jury.

Frederick H. Cox, cashier of the Commercial National Bank, was directed yesterday to appear in court tomorrow and bring with him all papers, documents, accounts, discounts, and other relevant matter, affecting Rheem's accounts in his bank.

The order, prepared by E. Hilton Jackson, attorney for a number of creditors of the Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co., also directed William H. Baden, trust officer of the Washington Loan & Trust Co.; George O. Vass, cashier of the Riggs National Bank; Charles D. Boyer, cashier of the Federal-American National Bank, and Samuel R. Baulsir, cashier of the Security & Savings & Commercial Bank, 1918 K street northwest, to appear and bring papers relating to Rheem's accounts.

The petition to have Rheem adjudged an involuntary bankrupt was filed several months ago. Creditors of the firm which he once headed started the move to have him placed in bankruptcy, and his own counsel, Tobriner & Graham, have steadfastly opposed that move. The designation given Rheem in the official record is "Edmund D. Rheem, alleged bankrupt."

HOME AGAIN

RUDOLPH RUEHL, Jr.

It's a long trip afoot for a 5-year-old young man from 317 Third street southeast to Twelfth and F streets northwest, but anticipated joy of meeting "mother" after she finished her work at a downtown store yesterday lured Rudolph Ruehl, jr., to attempt the journey.

He might have made his goal if he had not bumped into a kindly woman at Tenth and F streets, who decided he was lost. She bought him a bag of candy and bundled him into a taxicab. She took him to the First Precinct Station, where Rudy's heart warmed to the husky policemen.

He could not tell them his name, except that it was "Rudy" and "mother" called him "Junior." But he could and did tell them all about how Santa Claus brought him a trunk last Christmas and was going to furnish a train this year.

But the long, unaccustomed trip had worn him out and in the midst of his tale his eyelids drooped and the policemen furnished him a soft bed, composed of blue coats piled up over several chairs drawn close together. Rudy did not awake until his frantic mother, Mrs. Estelle Ruehl, who had finally trailed him to the police station, came in the door. Then the child proudly offered her some of his candy and then sleepily bade his new friends good-by as he left for a sounder sleep in his own bed.

Y. W. C. A. RESERVES GREET MRS. HOOVER AT GOLDEN JUBILEE

First Lady Cuts Birthday Cake at Headquarters Celebration.

UNIFORMED OFFICERS FORM RECEPTION GROUP

Participants Hosts to More Than 1,000 Guests From Other Organizations.

The Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A. yesterday celebrated their golden jubilee at the Y. W. C. A. headquarters, Mrs. Hoover attending and cutting a white birthday cake built in five tiers to represent the five decades of the organization's existence.

Cutting the cake Mrs. Hoover wished luck to the Girl Reserves after which she made an informal talk to the members.

Following this the Glee Club sang several selections under the direction of Miss Mary M. Burnett.

Arriving at the headquarters Mrs. Hoover was received by members of the reserves from the junior and senior high schools and the grade schools dressed in their white and blue uniforms. Officers of the organization formed a special reception committee.

During the afternoon the Girl Reserves were hosts to more than 1,000 guests representing all the girl organizations in the city.

President Hoover will receive a deputation of the Girl Reserves today at 12:30 at the White House, at which time the Girl Reserves Council, headed by Miss Mary Lesta Wakeman, will present a formal petition from thousands of Reserves all over the country asking for "a strong program for the reduction of all forms of armament at the world disarmament conference in 1932."

Each group of Reserves in the various cities in the country has worded its own petition, which will be presented to the President in a bound volume. The council which will go to the White House to present the Nation-wide petition includes Charlotte Nicholson, Edith Wallenstein, Ruth Murray, Marjorie Lipske, Barbara Brothers, Polly Nolte, Lois Lainhart, Alice Haley, Louise Thompson, Betty Royle, Verna Royle, Robert Boyd, Ruth Stone, Evelyn Padgett and Agnes Shapter.

They represent approximately 300,000 girls throughout the country.

Plasterers and Hodcarriers on Five Contract Jobs Go on Strike.

A labor dispute involving the sum of $6 has caused the withdrawal of 60 plasterers, whose collective earning capacity is $840 a day, and 30 hodcarriers who collectively earn $210 a day, from five jobs under A. W. Lee, plastering contractor.

A representative of the International Union of Plasterers and Cement Finishers is expected to arrive here today to attempt to adjust the dispute.

Mr. Lee refused to pay $6 to two men for overtime work which he claims he did not authorize. Subsequently the Local Union of Plasterers and Cement Finishers called 90 men off five jobs being handled by Mr. Lee.

Overtime work involved in the dispute, Mr. Lee said, was done by two men employed on an apartment job at Thirteenth and Taylor streets northwest. The work, Mr. Lee said, was ordered by Harry Furr, business agent of the union, who, Mr. Lee said, declared the work done by the men was unsatisfactory.

Furr ordered the men to remain after working hours to repeat the job, Mr. Lee said, and he was billed by the union for overtime wages which he refused to pay. Usually, Mr. Lee said, when work is unsatisfactory, the workmen adjust the deficiency on their own time. Mr. Lee said he found no fault with the work.

In addition to the apartment house, the plasterers and hodcarriers were called off the Brown Junior High School, the Hecht Co. warehouse on G street, the Metropolitan Methodist Church, on Nebraska avenue and a private residence. The men were withdrawn Monday.

Wine for Wife's Welcome Lost in Apartment Blaze

Fire last night almost ruined the plans of Joe P. Perrello, a native of Italy, who makes his home in Washington at 923 Twenty-second street northwest, for welcoming his wife, who will come to join him soon in his new home.

In celebration of the event, Perrello had prepared some of the choicest grapes he could find and they were rapidly turning into the kind of "vino" he and his wife enjoyed in their native Italy. He had made up just the legal amount—five gallons—for home consumption.

Last night he was busily engaged in washing the dishes in his bachelor quarters, singing at his work as he thought of the coming reunion. But he did not notice a can of gasoline at his elbow, and in an extra flourish with the dish cloth, sent the can spilling over the stove.

The gasoline exploded with a flash. Then worse luck befell—the explosion ignited the alcohol-laden atmosphere above the fragrant, fermenting grapes. Perrello struggled manfully to put out the fire. He threw water all over the place, but the gasoline fire only spread. Some one turned in an alarm and he soon had firemen to help.

They extinguished the fire with little damage, but Perrello will have to get some more grapes to use in welcoming his wife.

SABATINI REVEALED IN DETECTIVE ROLE

Author Tells Lecture Crowd History Writers Were Scandal Mongers.

Rafael Sabatini, in a lecture last night, revealed himself to be a literary Sherlock Holmes, delving into baffling mysteries left by history, as well as a weaver of thrilling romances.

Speaking in a carefully modulated, detached tone to an audience that filled the auditorium of Central High School, the author of "Scaramouche" and other historical novels declared that reporters of history included a great many propagandists and scandal mongers, who colored their writing with doubtful facts to satisfy their vanities. For this reason he warned students of history to investigate every possible source before reaching conclusions.

The writer presented several instances in French, Italian and English history that are not thoroughly supported by facts. He then proceeded to dissect the stories in much the same way that a detective plunges into evidence in a murder mystery. And Sabatini, like a great many detectives of the present day, failed to solve the mysteries. He intimated that they will always remain.

"Many historians lead us astray with false assumptions," he declared, "leaving accretions that obscure the facts. The truth of history is the secret of dead men. In the records left us the touchstone of truth is in the logic of events. Study these facts from every angle and avoid the propagandists, the scandal mongers and those who show a temptation to display their vanity."

Subject to Sabatini's lecture was "Fiction in History." It marked the first of a winter series by the Community Institute of Washington. Sir Willmott Lewis introduced the author as "the master of the craft of Walter Scott."

After the lecture Sabatini was guest of honor of the Lido Civic Club at a reception and dance at the Mayflower Hotel. An illuminated Venetian scene served as setting for his introduction. The Italian Embassy was represented by Count Carlo Soardi and Signor Adriano Monaco, secretaries, and Cav. Di Girolamo, chancellor. Among other guests were Representatives Vincent L. Palmisano, Maryland, and Fiorello LaGuardia, New York; Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby and District Attorney Leo A. Rover.

North Carolina Man Held For Jury in Auto Death

Frank Finch, who gave a North Carolina address, is being held for the grand jury of Calvert County after an accident yesterday at Mount Harmony, Md., in which S. M. Warren, 76 years old, of 1712 Irving street northwest, was killed.

Mr. Warren was a passenger in an auto which was being driven by Finch when it was in collision with a heavy oil truck. He was killed almost instantly, but Finch escaped except for severe shock. N. L. Condon, of Owings Station, Md., driver of the oil truck, also escaped injury.

The dead man had been retired from the Government Printing Office several years ago. Since then he had divided his time between his Washington home and a home in North Beach, Md. According to Judge John E. Donald, who conducted the inquest, Warren and Finch were returning from North Carolina to North Beach at the time of the crash.

2 "Rear Tire Bandits" Steal Woman's Purse and Escape

A new type of racket appeared in Washington yesterday as "rear tire bandits," robbed Mrs. Nathan B. Williams, 3917 McKinley street northwest, wife of a local attorney, of her purse, containing $15 in cash and valuable papers, in broad daylight on fashionable Connecticut avenue in the midst of heavy, homegoing traffic.

Mrs. Williams turned her head just in time to see an arm disappear through the rear window of her coupe, and with the arm went her purse. She immediately pulled her car to the curb and got out to give chase. Several passersby joined with her in an attempt to capture two young men who had dropped from the rear tire rack as the car came to a stop.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

HARK TO THE LARK!

BUSINESS is better throughout the United States, but the country hates to admit it.

• • • • •

Just as the people had about settled back for a nice, long winter of comforting discontent, comes disappointing news from all parts of the Nation that things are picking up.

• • • • •

Spreading the good news is taken as the height of poor sportsmanship. If a man wants to see how long he can stay under water is it fair to empty the tub without warning?

• • • • •

All summer and most of the autumn the average man has been comforted by the belief that there wasn't a ray of sunshine anywhere and that he could continue going around with a long face waiting for the country to disintegrate, and for President Hoover to transfer the National Capital to the whirlpools of Niagara.

• • • • •

And now he is slapped in the face with information that the country is getting well.

• • • • •

To encroach on an old story, Uncle Sam, when asked today where he was going, replied, "I'm just taking a walk back to prosperity, and gosh, how I dread it!"

• • • • •

New England reports many signs of an improvement, although it must be admitted that after what she has been through, the failure of the patient to have a daily relapse would be interpreted as a big pick-up.

BETTER conditions in the boot, shoe and hat industries in Massachusetts and Connecticut indicate that the people have decided to dress for business, come what may. A New Haven hotel must believe prosperity is back, travelers reporting that it has boosted its rate to $18 minimum for a double room over week-ends during the football season.

• • • • •

The Middle States say scores of sales agents in automobile and steel plants were thrown into a panic last week by the sound of their telephones ringing.

• • • • •

Out West where men are men and Alfalfa Bills are governors, there was a sharp rise in the prices of wheat and oil. This was so sudden that parades were held and bonfires started. The West now believes that the turn is the real thing and positively not a moving picture special.

• • • • •

Even the South reports many signs of an industrial revival. Florida is so confident of the future of America that it is planning to operate three horse racing tracks at Miami instead of one, which was considered par for the community even during the big boom.

• • • • •

The only drawback is that several recognized leaders in the world of finance are optimistic. They were so wrong during the boom years that the average man dreads to hear them speak.

Citizens Cite Need Of Rescue Squad

North Cleveland Park Body May Seek Establishment of Apparatus.

The necessity of having a fire rescue squad located in the far Northwest portion of the city was one of several matters which were referred to committees for investigation at the meeting of the North Cleveland Park Citizens Association last night.

The need for a traffic light at Connecticut avenue and Van Ness street will be investigated by the streets committee.

The streets committee also was asked to investigate establishment of a greater traffic turning radius at Wisconsin avenue and Van Ness street. The president, A. J. Barrett, congratulated the committee responsible for the float representing the society in the Halloween parade.

Change in Taxicab System Favored

Five Recommendations Are Approved by Chamber of Commerce Board.

Five recommendations for the betterment of the taxicab industry here were approved as suggestions for consideration of the Public Utilities Commission by the board of directors of the Washington Chamber of Commerce at its monthly meeting last night. Martin A. Leese, Dorsey W. Hyde and Walter L. Balderston were reelected treasurer, secretary and general counsel, respectively, of the organization and the executive committee for the year also was named.

Included in the recommendations drawn up by a special subcommittee after a period of exhaustive study of taxi systems in other cities was one suggesting "the advisability of some change in method of measuring service so that the charge per customer would be more nearly proportionate to the service rendered." It was pointed out that this recommendation did not specifically envisage either the meter or zone system of rates.

Provision for periodic inspection of brakes, lights and other equipment of taxicabs was suggested by the subcommittee as well as favoring provision for compulsory indemnity insurance by cab owners.

Garage Contract Is Let.

Contract for the construction of a garage in the sewer department yard was awarded yesterday by the District Commissioners to the Fidelity Construction Co., Inc., on a low bid of $36,085.

"John Bull" To Run Again On Birthday

The wheels of John Bull, America's oldest steam locomotive, will turn once more and its whistle will echo through the halls of the Smithsonian Institution on November 12, and thereafter daily for two months, on the occasion of the centenary of its first run in this country.

On November 12, 1831, the engine arrived in Philadelphia in a sailing vessel from England and was put in service on the run of the pioneer Camden and Amboy Railroad, one of the earliest lines in the United States and now a part of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The institution now has in its possession the engine and its tender, and one of the original coaches will be lent for the demonstration. During the exhibition compressed air will be used to turn the wheels. Officials have explained that this procedure has been resorted to because of the inconvenience of starting an old-type boiler fire several times a day, and not because of the inability of the engine to perform by itself.

Auto Violator Is Held On Rumrunning Count

Driving the wrong way on a one-way street may prove costly to Herman Rosenstein, 23 years old, of 1125 Maryland avenue northeast, who was arrested by Detective R. McNeil, of the Third Precinct, after a chase of several blocks last night. Rosenstein was booked on charges of illegal possession of 12 half gallons of whisky, reckless driving and driving without a District permit.

McNeil said he saw Rosenstein turn from Pennsylvania avenue northwest the wrong way into H street and gave chase. He pursued the man north to Eighteenth street, west on K street and at Nineteenth and K streets the man is said to have run through a stop signal. Bonds totaling $1,300 were fixed for Rosenstein on the three charges.

Inmates of Cell Ousted by Water

Tap Removal From Faucet Floods Supreme Court Detention Pen.

Prisoners in the cell block at the District Supreme Court set up an emergency howl late yesterday afternoon when water, to the depth of 3 inches, flooded the floor of the cell and forced them to stand on benches.

Before deputy marshals could dam the source, the water was pouring out into the basement of the courthouse. There was a good deal of accompanying mopping. It appears that some prisoner with a zest for the unusual, unscrewed a spigot in the cell room. The prisoner who received the blame, Clarence Back, was later brought into court on a charge of joy riding, still stoutly maintaining his innocence—of the water charge.

Woman's Arm Broken in Fall.

A fall down a flight of steps at the International Building, where she is employed resulted in a broken arm and scalp wounds yesterday for Mary Burdette, 57 years old, of 37 Scott street northwest. The woman's arm was fractured at the elbow. She was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Citizens' Body Requests Protection for Hospital

Adequate police protection at Garfield Hospital was urged in a resolution adopted last night by the Columbia Heights Citizens Association. The resolution had its inception in the recent attack on one of the nurses at that institution by a man who leaped at her from the shadows of one of the buildings. The resolution suggested that police beats near the hospital be shortened.

Another resolution favored a plan of the Park and Planning Commission to request an appropriation for purchase of property at Fourteenth and Harvard streets northwest to eliminate the "staggered" corner. Speakers at the meeting were Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, who told of bicentennial celebration plans; Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, who discussed the bicentennial year firemen's parade, and W. F. Dismer, who talked on plans for "Santa Claus Lane."

Fine Arts Group Visits Wakefield

Question of Ornaments Planned on Columbia Island Delayed Anew.

A visit to Wakefield Manor, Va., to inspect the progress of the restoration of the birthplace of George Washington occupied the Fine Arts Commission yesterday. Special attention was given to plans submitted by Edward W. Donn, jr., Washington architect, for a rest house.

The dedication of Wakefield Manor is scheduled for February 11, 1932, the birthday of Washington, according to the old-style calendar, H. P. Caemmerer, secretary of the commission, said.

The question of what type of ornament might be erected on Columbia Island in place of the proposed columns will not be decided for another week. Members of the commission, after visiting the island and inspecting substitute plans, asked more time to study the matter. The columns were objected to on the ground that they would be a menace to aviation.

Ima Holtszcheiter and Edwin C. Steffe Will Compete in New York.

Miss Ina M. Holtzscheiter, lyric soprano, 335 Kentucky avenue southeast, and Edwin C. Steffe, barytone, 509 Third street northwest, today were declared winners of the District of Columbia finals of the fifth national radio audition for young singers.

This victory entitles them to go to New York as guests of the Atwater Kent Foundation, where they will compete November 23 with State audition winners of New England and other North Atlantic States for a share of the $25,000 in cash awards and scholarships which the foundation offers.

Miss Helen Donofrio, coloratura soprano, of 3700 Massachusetts avenue northwest, and Leonard R. Davis, barytone, of 712 Fifth street northeast, were declared winners of second places in the District of Columbia audition, which was broadcast by WRC last Saturday evening, October 31.

Fall Seriously Injures Man.

John Connors, 52 years old, of 408 E street northwest, is in a serious condition following a fall in front of 941 D street northwest yesterday afternoon. The man's head struck the curbstone when he fell and physicians believe he may have suffered a fractured skull.
